UNITED STATES SENATOR FROM SOUTH CAROLINA PRAISES PE-RU-NA.

Ex-Senator M. C. Butler.

Dyspepsia Is Often Caused By Catarrh of the Stomach—Peruna Relieves Catarrh of the Stomach and Is Therefore a Remedy for Dyspepsia.

Hon. M. C. Butler, U. S. Senator from South Carolina for two terms, in a letter from Washington, D. C., writes to the Peruna Medicine Co., as follows:

"I can recommend Peruna for dyspepsia and stomach trouble. I have been using your medicine for a short period and I feel very much relieved. It is indeed a wonderful medicine, besides a good tonic."

CATARRH of the stomach is the correct name for most cases of dyspepsia. Only an internal catarrh remedy, such as Peruna, is available.

Peruna Tablets can now be procured.

A Lesson for the Girls

By Hope Daring

(Copyright, by Joseph B. Bowles.)

The Dailies were seated at their midday dinner when a neighbor's boy unceremoniously pushed open the screen door and tossed in a letter.

"Got your mail, 'Mis' Dailey," he called out as he ran off.

Mrs. Dailey, a little faded blonde, turned and picked up the envelope. "It's from Katherine, girls," she cried, her voice not quite steady.

Bernice, the eldest daughter, held out her hand. "I will read it, mamma," she said, speaking in a commanding although well-bred voice.

Mrs. Dailey handed her the letter. To be sure, it was addressed to herself, but Beatrice attended to the affairs of the entire household.

Beatrice was 23, tall and erect, she resembled her mother, only her eyes and hair were darker, and she had the air of one born to command. Bernice, three years Beatrice's junior, was the beauty of the family. She was small and dark, with sparkling face, and long-lashed, Spanish eyes. Gladys was 18, and looked like her mother. She was musical and ambitious, their limited means alone preventing the thorough cultivation of her gift.

The letter was from Mrs. Dailey's sister and only near relative, Mrs. Katherine Dillon, who had been for years abroad with an invalid husband. Mr. Dillon had died several months before, and the return of the sister and aunt had been eagerly looked forward to by the Daileys.

"Why don't you read it aloud?" Bernice asked petulantly, as Beatrice turned another leaf of the letter.

"Oh, I always knew life held something for me besides existence here in Hamlin," the elder sister exclaimed,

"I Tell You I Have Decided to Adopt Your Mother."

her face aglow with excitement. "Listen to Aunt Katherine's letter:

"Dear Sister—I will arrive in Hamlin on or about the tenth and will probably remain a month. I long to look again in your face, Margaret, for it is 12 years since we met. Now that I am alone in the world, my heart turns to you and your dear daughters. I almost envy you, sister. You would gladly give my wealth for your girls. I am going to borrow one of your treasures for the winter at least. Which one we will decide after I have had an opportunity of becoming acquainted with them. I shall spend the winter either in Florida or southern California, and am sure I can make the season a delightful one for a girl. Good-bye, dearest sister. I shall have much to tell you when we meet. Love to all.

"Your affectionate sister,

"KATHERINE DILLION.'"

"Of course she'll take me," Bernice cried, a crimson flush staining her olive cheek. "Just think of dozens of new dresses and a winter in a fashionable southern resort!"

Gladys sat bolt upright and opened her pale-blue eyes to their greatest extent. "I don't see why you should be so sure. Aunt Katherine loves music, and when she knows how eager I am to study under the better masters—"

"Don't dispute, girls; it's vulgar," Beatrice said. "Mamma, a cup of fresh tea, please. You all seem to forget that I am the eldest and strongly resemble Aunt Katherine."

Mrs. Dailey sighed as she hurried out to the kitchen after hot water for Beatrice's tea. No one remembered her own deep joy at the coming of Katherine.

"But I am selfish to think about myself," she concluded when dinner was over and she began clearing the table. "Katherine will be as proud of my daughters as I am. No, girls, I don't need any help. I can do the dishes."

The next few days were busy ones. As the exact date of Mrs. Dillon's arrival was uncertain, the Daileys resolved to be ready at the earliest possible time when she could be looked for.

She arrived at nine in the morning, and walked up from the depot. Margaret Dillon was a woman of 40. Her form was slender but gracefully poised. Her face was much like that of Beatrice, but the years had brought to it lines of thought as well as to her blue-gray eyes a serene light.

"Aunt Katherine," both girls exclaimed, hurrying forward.

Mrs. Dillon greeted her nieces affectionately. Gladys heard the hum of voices and came running down, her bow was still in her hand.

When the aunt could make herself heard, she said softly: "You forget, my dears, that I want your mother."

Mrs. Dailey was busy in the kitchen. Through the open door, Katherine caught a glimpse of her. Springing forward, she caught her in a close embrace.

There was a moment's silence. Then Mrs. Dillon held her sister at arm's length and carefully studied her face. Mrs. Dailey was worn and wan, she wore a faded but clean print dress; her sleeves were rolled up above her elbows, and specks of flour clung to her toil-hardened hands.

Katherine Dillon's keen eyes noted the warm kitchen. Then she glanced at the three girls. "What have you been doing with your mother, girlies? It is not only that she is warm and tired, but what has brought this old look? You are only 40, Margaret, and should be a comparatively young woman."

The days went by. Mrs. Dillon's comfort and pleasure was so deftly ministered to that she could not be grateful enough to the bright-faced girls whom she was learning to love. The only drawback to her enjoyment was her disappointment regarding her sister.

What was wrong? Katherine did not doubt her sister's love. But the hours of companionship she had looked forward to were few and unsatisfactory. Mrs. Dailey spent the greatest part of her time in the kitchen. When not there, she was silent, her daughters evidently not expecting her to take part in the conversation. She seldom went into society, read little, and was really "behind the times."

Mrs. Dillon gave the matter much thought. She saw that the girls were much surprised when she expected their mother to take her rightful place both at home and in the society of the little place. It was not easy to tell where the fault lay.

A month passed. September gave place to October and the air grew crisp and invigorating.

"A week more," Mrs. Dillon announced one morning at the breakfast table, "a week more of pleasure. Then we must decide which of you is to go with me, and I must hie me away to Chicago to provide a suitable outfit for myself and my companion."

It was the first time she had directly mentioned the matter. The color deepened in each girl's cheeks, but they made no reply. They had all grown very fond of their aunt, and a winter with her had many attractions.

The week that Mrs. Dillon had mentioned went by. They were again at the breakfast table when the southern trip was referred to.

"I shall start on Thursday," Katherine said. "Now as to who is to go with me."

She paused and reflectively stirred her coffee. "Girls, I hope you will all be satisfied when I tell you I have decided to adopt your mother."

No one spoke. The canary trilled gayly, a passing wagon rattled along the street, and Mrs. Dillon finished her graham gem with apparent relish. Then she went on:

"I mean it, girls. I don't know whose fault it is, but there is something wrong in your home. Instead of being your friend and confidante, instead of being petted and care for, instead of enjoying the Indian summer of her life, your mother is a kitchen drudge. More than this—she is fast approaching a broken-down and loveless old age. She may be as much to blame as any one. I am going to make one effort to bring sunshine into her life. I shall take her to Chicago and purchase her a supply of suitable and dainty clothing. Then I shall carry her away with me for the winter. She shall rest, read, enjoy pretty things and bright people, and be loved and petted. In the spring she shall come back to you—if you deserve her."

"Oh, Katherine, don't," cried the mother. "I couldn't leave my girls alone, and besides I would rather they should have the pleasure."

"Aunt Hester Main, my housekeeper, is to come and spend the winter here," was Katherine's cool reply. "About going, let the girls speak for themselves."

Another pause. Then the latent nobleness of Margaret Dailey's daughters asserted itself.

Beatrice arose and went round to her aunt. "We want her to go. Thank you, Aunt Katherine. You have taught us a lesson, and we needed it."

Bernice added: "We will try to deserve her when she comes back."

Gladys caught her mother in her arms. "Precious little mamma! We do love you, even if we have been so careless."

Mrs. Dillon's programme was carried out. The lesson was, as Beatrice had said, a needed one; but, like many such, the learning of it was not pleasant. A quiet winter at home, sharing the duties that had been too long relegated to the mother, contrasted sharply with the pleasures each had confidently expected for herself. They missed and longed for the gentle presence they had so little prized.

The mother and aunt, happy in each other, yet anxious for the real welfare of the girls at home, knew that a womanly care for the happiness of others was being developed in the nature of Margaret Dailey's daughters.

The reform was a thorough one. In the spring the mother went back to be the real mistress of her home and the loved mother of her proud daughters.

Swiss Naval Wars.

References to the Swiss navy are usually jocular; but it is none the less a fact that ships of war once floated and even fought on the waters of the Lake of Geneva.

The great fleet was that of the duke of Savoy, who at the beginning of the fourteenth century maintained a number of war galleys armed with rams and protected by turrets and propelled by a crew of oarsmen varying in number from 40 to 72. These vessels besieged Versoix and even blockaded Geneva.

But Geneva also had a fleet which helped in the capture of Chilon in 1536; and when the Bernese annexed the Canton of Vaud they too had their flotilla. Their largest vessel was the Great Bear, with 64 oarsmen, eight guns, and 150 fighting men.

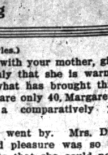
A TERRIBLE EXPERIENCE.

How a Veteran Was Saved the Amputation of a Limb.



B. Frank Doremus, veteran, of Roosevelt avenue, Indianapolis, Ind., says: "I had been showing symptoms of kidney trouble from the time I was mustered out of the army, but in all my life I never suffered as in 1897. Headaches, dizziness and sleeplessness, first, and then dropsy. I was weak and helpless, having run down from 180 to 125 pounds. I was having terrible pain in the kidneys, and the secretions passed almost involuntarily. My left leg swelled until it was 24 inches around, and the doctor tapped it night and morning until I could no longer stand it, and then he advised amputation. I refused, and began using Doan's Kidney Pills. The swelling subsided gradually, the urine became natural, and all my pains and aches disappeared. I have been well now for nine years since using Doan's Kidney Pills."

COINED A BIG WORD.

Little One Wanted to Pick the "Underchildrenable" Flowers.

When the first little granddaughter was big enough to want to pick the garden flowers, the grandparents tried every gulleful means to save their pet posies from devastation. A truce was reached when it was agreed that Harriet should let the garden plants alone and pick only "children's flowers," a descriptive name bestowed at once allke on dandelions, buttercups, daisies and clovers. After this there was peace in the family. One day Katherine, the newest granddaughter, was contentedly pulling grasses while grandmother snipped off blossoms from the forget-me-nots. Katherine remembered that fresh flowers had not been gathered for the dinner table. She ran over to grandmother and promptly coined one of the longest words a four-year-old ever used. "Grandmother," she begged, "can't I pick the underchildrenable flowers for dinner?"

SLEEP BROKEN BY ITCHING.

Eczema Covered Whole Body for a Year—No Relief Until Cuticura Remedies Prove a Success.

"For a year I have had what they call eczema. I had an itching all over my body, and when I would retire for the night it would keep me awake half the night, and the more I would scratch, the more it would itch. I tried all kinds of remedies, but could get no relief.

"I used one cake of Cuticura Soap, one box of Cuticura, and two vials of Cuticura Resolvent Pills, which cost me a dollar and twenty-five cents in all, and am very glad I tried them, for I was completely cured. Walter W. Pagluech, 207 N. Robey St., Chicago, Ill., Oct. 8 and 16, 1906."

Knew What She Wanted.

"A foreign looking woman, rather well dressed, came in the other day," said the librarian at one of the East side branches, "and asked for 'Cottage Cheese.' I supposed, of course, that some one had directed her to a dairy or perhaps a grocery, and that she had got into the wrong place. But she insisted that she was in the right place and that it was 'Cottage Cheese' that she wanted. 'It's the name of a book,' she said. That gave me the tip that she simply had a title mixed up, and, sure enough, it was 'Scottish Chiefs.'"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Conceit.

"There goes the big-feelin'est man n town!" pessimistically said a citizen of Pettyville, indicating with a contemptuous jerk of his thumb a pompous-appearing personage who was passing. "He thinks so darned much of himself that he won't loaf in a grocery store like ordinary folks—if he can't loaf in the bank he won't loaf at all. And, as far as I can see, he aint' so all-fired better than some of the rest of us, neither!"—Puck.

Grammar and Grippe.

A professor at the University of Virginia was endeavoring to impress upon the youths of his class the monstrous crime of using the adverb "badly" where the adjective "bad" should be used.

"Now," he said, after an exhaustive explanation, "if a man should say to you 'I feel badly,' what would you think?"

"I'd think he had the grippe, sir," responded the wag of the class.

Sea Trout Fattened.

A sea trout was caught at Aberdeen recently, which swam 120 miles in 49 days, and doubled its weight on the way. It was marked and put into the Coquet in Northumberland, and when recaught at Aberdeen, its length was not increased, its rapid gain in weight being due to corpulence.

Poultney Bigelow, the brilliant author and journalist, said the other day of the chicken farm that he is about to set up at Malden:

"I hope to succeed with this farm. I hope our experiences won't too closely resemble that of my old friend Horatio Rogers. Rash Rogers lived in the suburbs. On the suburban train one morning he said to me with a sour laugh:

"'I've got something nobody else has got, Mr. Bigelow.'

"'Have you, Rash?' said I. 'What is it?'

"'Well,' said Rogers, 'I bought a $50 incubator last month, put $15 worth of eggs in it, and hatched out a blubottle fly.'

"He frowned, then sighed.

"'Yes,' he said, 'I've got the only $65 blubottle fly in the world.'"

Mary's Important Testimony.

Justice Brewer, of the United States supreme court is said to be the author of this story: A witness testified in a certain case that a person named Mary was present when a particular conversation took place and the question was asked: "What did Mary say?" This was objected to and after some discussion the judge ruled out the question. An exception to this decision was immediately taken and on appeal the higher court reversed the verdict and ordered a new trial on the ground that the question should have been answered. At the second trial the same inquiry was propounded and elicited the information that "Mary said nothing."

Witty Jury Verdict.

There is a lot or humor and, besides, a splendid moral for the young business man in a verdict recently rendered by a coroner's jury.

"We, the jury, find from the physician's statement that the deceased came to his death from heart failure, superinduced by business failure, which was caused by speculative failure, which was in turn the result of failure to look ahead."

Marrying for Love.

Happy marriages are surely possible even in these unpoetic, hard-hearted times. They are, if the people will only follow the instinct of their better natures and marry for love—the reverent, impassionate love of the man for the maiden, the pure, unsophisticated affection of the maiden for the man—instead of bartering happiness for rank or money.—Thorne.

ON A MACKEREL SCHOONER.

Daily Routine in the Life of the Gloucester Fishermen.

The routine life on a mackerel schooner is not strenuous. The crew consists of 14 men, a skipper and cook. Two men constitute a watch, one aloft as a lookout, the other at the wheel, so that each man has two hours on duty, and then 12 hours off, before his turn comes around again. During this period he may be called on to shorten sail, wash the deck or to perform other work. Half of the crew have their bunks forward with the cook, who is king of the forecastle, and the rest sleep aft with the captain. We were assigned to a double bunk aft, where we were not troubled with galley smells, but had to be on our good behavior. All the rollics and revels were forward. The crew ate in two shifts, the older men with the skipper.—Travel Magazine.

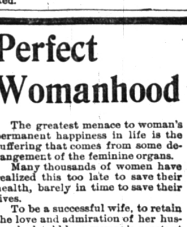
Perfect Womanhood



The greatest menace to woman's permanent happiness in life is the suffering that comes from some derangement of the feminine organs.

Many thousands of women have realized this too late to save their health, barely in time to save their lives.

To be a successful wife, to retain the love and admiration of her husband, should be a woman's constant study.

If a woman finds that her energies are flagging, that she gets easily tired, dark shadows appear under her eyes, she has backache, headache, bearing-down sensations, nervousness, irregularities or the "blues," she should start at once to build up her system by a tonic with specific powers, such as the great woman's remedy for woman's ills, made only of roots and herbs.

It cures Female Complaints, such as Dragging Sensations, Weak Back, Falling and Displacements, Inflammation and Ulceration, and all Organic Diseases, and is invaluable in the Change of Life. It dissolves and Expels Tumors at an early stage. Subdues Faintness, Nervous Prostration, Exhaustion, and strengthens and tones the Stomach. Cures Headache, General Debility, Indigestion, and invigorates the whole female system. It is an excellent remedy for derangements of the Kidneys in either sex.
