SYNOPSIS.

Chip McIntire, a 15-year-old girl living at Tim's place in the Maine woods...

CHAPTER IV.—Continued.

Then, Chip's presence was an added danger. If once this brute found that she was here, there was no doubt...

CHAPTER V.

There were three people at Birch Camp—as Angie had christened it...

It was only a beginning, of course, and with constant repetition...

But with Ray it was different. He was near his own ace, the companionship...

But the winged god wots not of speech or manhood. A year ago it is a maid of 16...

But for them all was this charming change given, with all that made it unique...

Not far worlds would be hid this to Angie or Martin. Full well he knew...

Working as all the men had done from dawn until dark to complete this cabin...

But never a word or hint of this fell from her lips. Ray was so far above her and such a young hero...

It was of extra large size, and as Old Cy bent over it, he saw it had recently been made. Glancing along...

Curious now, and somewhat startled, he looked along where the narrow beach curved out and around to the landing...

Chip was kept an almost prisoner, hardly ever permitted out of Angie's sight. One of the men, always with the hands, rounded on the shore...

With all these precautions against surprise, came a certain feeling of danger in Martin's sixth play...

Only a few weeks of his outing remained, and on his second day...

The morning was damp, cloudy and still—conditions suitable for smoking and yet so faint and distant...

An enemy we can meet in the open need not appeal us; but an enemy who creeps up to us by day, or still worse by night...

Such a one had spied upon Martin's camp that night, and all the tales of this half-breed's cunning...

FIRE LOSSES FOR A YEAR; CARELESSNESS IS COSTLY

FOR carelessly dropped cigarettes and matches New York city pays in fire losses the tidy sum of $2,500,000 in a single year...

WIDE RANGE OF LUNCHEON PLACES IN WALL STREET

NEW YORK—There is a wide range it to the lunchons of Wall Street. It is a far cry from the simple...

Consolidated exchange brokers scatter at luncheon hour, while the men on the curb take a hasty noonday bite...

Wall Street—That is, the street proper is decidedly interested at the lunch (not luncheon in this instance) hour...

Many of the larger brokerage offices have small dining rooms fitted up for luncheon purposes.

Little Modern Fiction Read by New York Men

NEW YORK men are not novel readers. This conclusion is reached after a careful study of the libraries of the city...

From the 147 public libraries in New York city about 100,000 volumes are drawn for home reading each year...
