Praises Peruna as a Catarrh Remedy

MRS. E. M. TINNEY

Mrs. E. M. Tinney, story writer, 235 E. Nueva St., San Antonio, Tex., writes: During 1901 I suffered from nasal catarrh, which various other remedies failed to relieve.

Mrs. Ellen Nagle, 414 1/2 St., Green Bay, Wis., writes: I have heard Peruna praised and it is more widely known than any other medicine...

PERUNA TABLETS—Some people prefer to take tablets rather than to take medicine in a fluid form.

The Bright Firestorm.

They were discussing the law of entail—the English law bequeathing the bulk of the family property to the eldest son.

There is $0 per cent. of logic in that law," said a physician; "and if the family property went to the firstborn, whether son or daughter, the law would contain 100 per cent. of logic.

Why is this so? It is because married people love one another more profusely at the beginning than afterward; for love, like all things, grows old, grows weak, often dies.

Pat Wasn't Going Home.

An Englishman, an Irishman and a Scotchman were one day arguing as to which of the three countries possessed the fastest train.

A Prayer for Rain.

The minister was having Sunday dinner with one of his brother parsons. Suddenly the 8-year-old daughter of the hostess came up.

Much the Same.

"Why, I see by the paper that a wedding in Ohio was a failure, for the man promised to obey instead of the woman. I wonder how the marriage will turn out."

HIS FLOWER GIRL

By Georgia Custis

When Mr. Ferris Archer was sublimed, she shone better into the luxurious living of Judge Van Nostrand on a certain cold evening late in November, and sank into the bright fire of the easy-chair before the red glow of the soft coal. It was with a feeling of complete and entire satisfaction.

Among the wild tribes to be found in the Philippines is that of the Igorots.

She told them that she had written a poem to learn and they will study and dream over it for hours, but give the Bogobo a problem in arithmetic.

SIGNS OF LONG LIFE

Dr. H. J. DeBorja writes: "I took a deep interest in longevity and its earmarks."

"You've live long, Bacon pointed out. If you have lost, fair hair, a large nose, a large mouth, a large early childhood, a small mouth, a brittle and separated teeth and fat ears.

To Err Is Human.

Robert Browning once found himself at a dinner, at a great English house, sitting next to a lady who was connected with the highest aristocracy.

No Decoration Required.

It was Mr. Hobart's first experience with waffles, and he liked the taste of them so well that he had to have them again.

There's no advantage in making men weary with a sermon inviting them to rest.

She Did Not Fear Death.

An old lady, in her seventy-third birthday, once said to me, "I do not mind getting old, and I do not fear death, but I live in constant fear of paralysis."

For some time I have been wanting to tell you of the great good your wonderful Sion's Liniment is doing here," writes Mr. J. M. Abernethy.

Manuel's Rebuke.

A group of theatrical men were talking in New York about the late Richard Mansfield.

Well, one night at a party, a man came up behind this great artist, staggered him with a violent slap on the back and exclaimed in a loud, joyful familiar voice:

Slight Misunderstanding.

They had been engaged just seventeen minutes by the clock, yet for the three or four months of their betrothal period there had been a proud, scornful look upon her fair face that was calculated to wither the orange blossom.

"I can't imagine, dear," he said sadly, "what has come over you so suddenly. I simply asked if you were ready to let me marry you."

How's This?
