The Library Con Itions Not Undersloed--"Observer" Expresses His Opin

A person in listening to the discussions on our library election go and con, can but cone to the conclusion that its conditions were very imperative understood before the elections. Here, (through miscusseus) control of the control be maintained and kept as a life ary and a municipal building.

The municipal building are added to the projection of the things we find on file in the village elevisy office a provise that the village is to pay Miss of the sum of $100 annually, then a deed of the property is to be year. Did those who, voted 'yes' on the library proposition, realize what kind of a deed this would be? Did they read the last clause of those conditions the last clause of those conditions which stipulates that in case said village does not conform to the above conditions the title of said property shall revert to the University of Michigan?

We believe that our village board can-not consistently accept such a condition-al title as this, neither can we believe that a majori'y of the legal voters of Birmingham would approve of such act-ion by the trustees. But 'there is ar-other phase to this question which many have entertained an erroneous opirion

I refer to the way of deciding this financial question. Some entertain this financial question. Some entertain this disability of the library is approved by the trustees that this will end the matter for all time without any further action of the electors. If we look for a law to sustain such as theory we's shall search, I think, in vain. The question of raising the half-mill tax must be submitted next year and the year following to raise the funds in a legal way. If we get tired of the plan we will offer it all we have paid and the title of the property will revert to somebody else. Under these complicated conditions I think it is of the utmost impectance to postspone action in the matter of accepting the giff. We can wait until we can find where we are at.

In the meantime if our village board cannot asse their way clear to settle this matter in the interests of the peace of the property of the property
