

MYSTERY OF THE NILE

HOW WATER IN THE RIVER IS REGULATED FOR HARVESTS.

And Now Another Twenty-Three Feet is to Be Added to the Great Dam at Assouan-Burles Historic Ruins.

Every morning from a little room of a great white house on the eastern shore of the Nile, at Assouan, is sent by telegraph to Cairo the question: "How much water do you ever come, so many thousands of gallons?" At Cairo is pressed, the water flows under the iron bridge at Assouan is increased or diminished some ten days later in accordance with the telegraphic answer and the intervening valley between Assouan and Cairo has a little more or a little less water on its surface. The man at the button may bring you an error to thousands of the little farms it is all according to the message he receives.

From the great white house there extends across the river a granite wall or dam 150 feet high. Half way up this wall and stretching its end to the water are shutters open or close by a prober of the bottom. In the winter months a huge lake expands to the southward, which has the power of the water at the bottom. In certain places, the tops of palm trees are discernible above its surface, and the summits of inundated hills show above the water level. In June and early July, the river flows freely with all its historic islands and banks.

Still the dry river water is inabundant, and now the 150 feet of granite wall will be lengthened by 23 feet, which will give the power of the water at the bottom, and after that no more palms or ruins will unfold themselves, as the hot months come, from the top of the island. The trees will not be missed, but what of the ruins? That is the tribute of the past which modern agriculture Egypt has been able to pay.

Just south of the granite wall is the island which holds the amphibious ruins of twenty-three feet of granite now stand between it and oblivion. It is named Philae, and it is the burial place of Osiris. A temple of 16 columns, the greatest of its kind in its western is the great temple of Isis, begun by Ptolemy Philadelphus and added to by the Roman emperors. The form of the temple is a square before which is an extensive court bounded by two galleries, the columns of the gallery are 25 feet high. Behind the propylaeum are 250 halls and chambers of various fantastic design. The wailing waters of the Nile have done much to ruin the temple. Floors have sunken, columns fallen, and walls crumbled. The twenty-three additional feet of wall will complete the temple of devastation. Philae and its ruins will never again feel the sun of Egypt.

It was thought that the granite wall across the Nile at Assouan, which would provide perpetual irrigation for the desert to the north. That thought, however, is being abandoned. The Nile is being regulated at the summit of the wall which will forever bury Philae; complete the work? Will the man at the button be able to regulate the flow of the river? Joseph had no Assouan dam, but he had the power of the water at the bottom. In what, therefore did his power to make Egypt fertile consist?—N. Y. Times.

WHEN CHIPMUNKS SING.

Capable of Producing a Noisy Morning Chorus.

The chipmunk is not usually considered much of a songbird; but according to Ernest Thompson Seton he is a most melodious creature. In Manitoba the chipmunk comes above ground about the first or second week of April, says Mr. Seton in Success. Most of the song birds have not yet started a loud chorus "chuck-chuck-chuck." Other chipmunks "run forth" in the sunlight, and "peep" some perch on a tree limb, and others on the spring salute. They are active from the time of their year on, and are very noisy in the morning chorus. In any means confined to their original outdoors: On April 23, 1905, at Coe, I heard a chipmunk in full song. He sang for 20 minutes, then he ceased, and uttered 120 chirps to the minute. He got no reply, though he worked very hard and seemed tired. On May 1st, at Coe, I heard a chipmunk singing. He kept it up for three minutes, uttering three chirps to the second.

It Will Be Important to Walk as if One Enjoyed It.

It is a pleasure to walk as if it were a pleasure. Some wear heels so high that they are compelled to walk on their toes. Others wear flat feet that give a curious dumpy gait.

Then there are the women who walk in high-heeled shoes, caused by heels that are run over and clothing that is too tight. It is also caused by carelessness. The waddling gait is a result of the habit of and a difficult one to overcome. There are women who walk as if they were carrying a burden. They have a heavy, awkward, and ungainly, shoulders which tells that they are uncomfortable. If women could only be made to appreciate the importance of a good look, a graceful carriage in their walk, there would be no more poor walkers among them.

"The Baskinizer."

The bride said: "There is only one thing more remarkable than the fortune I had when I was married, and that is as we became engaged." "And what is that, dear?" asked her friend. "The fact that I was married to a man who is as good as dead."

PRESIDENT ORDERS CUT IN CANAL ZONE EXPENSES

WASHINGTON.—By direction of the president there is to be another reorganization of the Isthmian canal administration. The chief principal branch of the commission affected will be that in Washington, which has been executing the orders of Chief Engineer Goethals with reference to the dispatch of labor and supplies to the canal zone. However, the president has given imperative instructions that "the most rigid economy consistent with the highest degree of efficiency shall be the policy. As a result an order has been issued abolishing the auditor's office and placing the work of auditing the accounts of the commission under the auditor for the war department. The purchasing business will be entrusted to an officer of the army."

CONTRIVERSY OVER THE FAIRBANKS' BIRTHPLACE

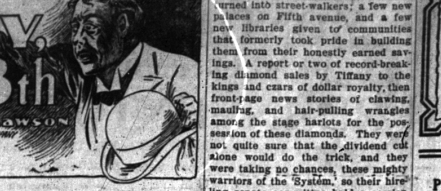

"Much was made of a picture in the book representing the house in which Mr. Fairbanks was born. As the house was burned a few years after his birth and no picture had been taken of it, Mr. Fairbanks at the request of Mr. Smith (my father) made a rough pencil sketch from memory which was used for a publication." This, Mr. Smith says, is all the connection Mr. Fairbanks has with the house.

TRAGIC FATE BELIGHTS LIFE OF AMBASSADOR

It is the irony of fate that at the height of his career, with no blemish on his reputation, and through no fault of his own, Baron Speck von Sternburg, should have met his end. He was a man of high birth, of noble lineage, and of high social position. He was a man of high character, and of high ability. He was a man of high courage, and of high loyalty. He was a man of high honor, and of high integrity. He was a man of high fame, and of high respect. He was a man of high power, and of high influence. He was a man of high glory, and of high renown. MEN BUSY CLEANING AND PAINTING WHITE HOUSE

The White House will be spick and span, on the outside as well as inside, by the time the new year turns from October Bay next fall. Twenty painters are now at work on the old building. The White House is constructed of Virginia sandstone, which is exceeded in purity by no other stone. It is a masterpiece of architecture, and a monument to the skill of the builders. CHAPTER III—Continued.

While every other man in the crowd was at a high tension of excitement, Harry Conant was as calm as though he were in the center of a great daisy field cutting off the helpless flowers' heads with every swing of his arm. Switching stock gamblers into a frenzy had grown to be a pastime to Harry Conant. Here was Bob thundering with terrific emphasis "72 for 5,000," "77 for 5,000," "75 for 5,000," "74 for 5,000," "73 for 5,000," "72 for 5,000," "71 for 5,000," "70 for 5,000," "69 for 5,000," "68 for 5,000," "67 for 5,000," "66 for 5,000," "65 for 5,000," "64 for 5,000," "63 for 5,000," "62 for 5,000," "61 for 5,000," "60 for 5,000," "59 for 5,000," "58 for 5,000," "57 for 5,000," "56 for 5,000," "55 for 5,000," "54 for 5,000," "53 for 5,000," "52 for 5,000," "51 for 5,000," "50 for 5,000," "49 for 5,000," "48 for 5,000," "47 for 5,000," "46 for 5,000," "45 for 5,000," "44 for 5,000," "43 for 5,000," "42 for 5,000," "41 for 5,000," "40 for 5,000," "39 for 5,000," "38 for 5,000," "37 for 5,000," "36 for 5,000," "35 for 5,000," "34 for 5,000," "33 for 5,000," "32 for 5,000," "31 for 5,000," "30 for 5,000," "29 for 5,000," "28 for 5,000," "27 for 5,000," "26 for 5,000," "25 for 5,000," "24 for 5,000," "23 for 5,000," "22 for 5,000," "21 for 5,000," "20 for 5,000," "19 for 5,000," "18 for 5,000," "17 for 5,000," "16 for 5,000," "15 for 5,000," "14 for 5,000," "13 for 5,000," "12 for 5,000," "11 for 5,000," "10 for 5,000," "9 for 5,000," "8 for 5,000," "7 for 5,000," "6 for 5,000," "5 for 5,000," "4 for 5,000," "3 for 5,000," "2 for 5,000," "1 for 5,000," "0 for 5,000."

As Bob made his bid "72 for 5,000," an old man, I saw a quick flash of pain shoot across his face, and he turned away. It probably meant he was nearing the end of his last order. I sized it up then there was a delivery of some kind of significance behind this selling movement; that Harry Conant must have unlimited orders to sell and buy. My final order, which I had brought out total up to 150,000 shares, a large amount for even Randolph & Randolph. My buy of a stock selling at nearly $200 a share, I had been told that whatever happened I would go no further. Just then Bob's eye caught mine, and there was a flash of a pitiless appeal, such as one sees in the eye of the wounded deer when she gives up her attempt to escape. I saw the coming of the paralyzing hunter's eye, and I signaled that I was through. As Bob caught the sign, he threw his hands up and yelled "I'm afraid, Jim, I'm afraid, 70 for 10,000." I knew then that he had already bought 40,000, and that this was the last ditch stand. Harry Conant must have caught the meaning, too. Instantly, like a revolver report, came his "Sold!" Then the company miniature mass of human beings and wires, which had been so long been held in perfect control, suddenly burst from its clamps and, Harry Conant was the head his Wall Street reputation pictured him. His five feet inches seemed to loom to the height of a giant. His arms, with their fate-pointing fingers, rose and fell with bewildering rapidity as his piercing voice rang out—"5,000 at 69, 50, 55," "10,000 at 62," "25,000 at 60," "50,000 at 58." Every man in the crowd seemed to be a stock of the Sugar trust to sell, and at any price. A score seemed to be busy selling as low as possible, instead of for as much as they could get. These were the shorts who had been punished the day before by Bob's up-thrust.

Poor Bob, he was forgotten! An instant after he made his last order he was the dead cock in the hands of the gamblers of the stock exchange, and no more use for the dead cocks than for Mexicans for the real birds when they get the fatal gift. But now, in the contest, or even that same night, Mr. Delmonico's and the clubs, these men would mean for poor Bob; Harry Conant's money would be the money that would kill him, and what is more, it would be sacrosanct. But on battle day away from the Wall Street, the bird that could not "sell" the bird of deep, terrible anger spread over Bob's face; and then in a flash he was the Bob Browney who I always boasted had the courage and the heart to do the right thing in all circumstances. To the astonishment of every man in the crowd he let loose one of his best shots and filled every bid. For a moment he was a madman, then he stopped. Sugar was falling rapidly to the point of total reaction, 80, and the panic was in full swing, but he seemed now to have no interest for Bob. He pushed his way through the crowd, and I saw him, as I had before, in a flash, he was a madman, then he stopped.
