Yellowstone park is becoming almost as unsafe as it ever was a great city.

An infant weighing 20 pounds was born at Shewana, Wis., the other day. Who can think of an appropriate name for him?

Every American must respect the army uniform and the navy uniform, but he need not respect the man who wears it when that man proves himself unworthy.

A shortage of chorus girls was reported lately in New York and now Oklahoma reports a shortage of 1,200 school teachers. What is the girls doing anyhow?

The success of Maxim's notorious device for making the machine gun somewhat popular notion that Maxim is something loud and noisy, as well as festive.

Washington dispatches say that within the next 30 days a new Panama canal law will be introduced into the house, amounting to about $25,000,000, but stage stamp bids won't go.

Texas has more miles of railroad than any other state, but still it is possible for the mosquitoes to get to the belt through the network of telegraph wires above the tracks.

If Minister Wu has really discovered the secret of prolonging life indefinitely, the empress of China would surely be blamed for wanting the personal advice of so valuable a subject.

We are not surprised at the feat of a St. Louis woman who has written a play in 16 hours. A good many other women play the same game, but have been written in less time than that.

According to an observing coin collector superstitious persons who believe in the "13" hood should have been warned with probability that for the unlucky 13 is much in evidence on the collector's list of denominations.

A British peer has just married a chorus girl in London. Maybe the general feeling in America is not giving out or getting wary, and is looking for wives among women who can support their husbands by going to work.

The British consul at Tamsui reports that the total export of copper from Formosa in 1907 amounted to 4,121,566 pounds, of which 2,462,933 pounds was sent to Havre, London and Antwerp, 1,625,700 to the United States, and 3,333 tons to Manila.

The New York health board has again arraigned the fly on the murder charge of carrying typhoid microbes on its feet and thus distributing them in food, and it is not clear if the fly is a murderer or not, finally, but whether it be true or not, the fly is a malefactor and should be eliminated.

The French Panama Canal Company, which went into bankruptcy in 1910, finally passed out of existence last month when the receivers were discharged. It took longer to wind up the affairs of the unsuccessful corporation than will be required for the American government to buy the canal.

The contest over the will of the late Sir Lionel Sackville Sackville West is not altogether astonishing. His domestic relations were somewhat negative and complicated, and it is inferred from a bet he once made while at sea, that he would marry the first woman he met when he landed. He won—in a way.

The duke of the Abruzzi continues to have difficulty in persuading the queen of Italy to marry her daughter to Miss Elkins. The queen has a reputation at home for beauty, and it is not natural that she should not want another woman as a rival who would become, as a well-known Chicagoan once said, the steersman of all eyes.

That Genoa father who shot and killed the driver of an automobile, and the woman who was the driver of the vehicle, who was a marchioness, when he saw his child crushed to death before his eyes, is commended by some in Genoa who do not know the reason; but his violence is more reprehensible than the neglect of the chauffeur.

An American woman has made a gown of Europe, with her own gown and she took it all she has in comfort to style, and the fact of seeing to being seen. Having nothing to do with the debate between Abraham Lincoln and Stephen A. Douglas, she was not the steersman of all eyes.

Toledo, Ohio, is said to have fewer bad boys than any other city in America. A writer in the World's Work gives the reason in his account of the juvenile organization established there by a wise philanthropist. He committed suicide by hanging.

The Union National bank of Summerville, Pa., was closed by the bank examiner. The plants of the Barber Asphalt Company at North Vicks, Ill., were destroyed by fire. The loss is about $50,000.

Three fires broke out again in northern Michigan, the towns of Metz and La Roque being burned and others threatened. The fire at Chicago, Ill., in jail at Champaign, Ill., waiting trial for the murder of Mrs. Edna McClellan, committed suicide by hanging.

Dr. Marcus Tessler, a well-known physician of St. Paul, Minn., killed his wife with poison. The coroner of Detroit by Indians in northern Canada were untrue.

Frederick S. Baird, a Chicago lawyer, was indicted for conspiracy to defraud the government of public lands in Nebraska. The Hindu colony in British Columbia, 2,000 persons, will be moved to British Honduras.

A memorial tablet to mark the site of the debate between Abraham Lincoln and Stephen A. Douglas occurred on October 15, 1858, was unveiled at Alton, Ill.

The Christian Science Publishing office at Boston will publish a daily paper called the "Christian Science Monitor."

The 11th annual convention of the National American Woman Suffrage association opened in Buffalo, N. Y.
