MAIDEN LOST HER BLI-PRER

Anything that her besopke the returning Summer Girl as strapped blithely out of the Grand Central station, says the New York Press.

She was no fool to look at, despite the fiery tan of the summer sun and the fringe of fragrant tresses across the slightly upturned nose.

With a sudden jerk the car came to a stop before it had gone ten feet.

Down the street he walked with his hair flying in the breeze.

"The matter with you?" he demanded.

"Nothing," he responded mildly.

"How it is, my dear?" he asked.

There comes a time when a man who has been sailing the seas by the aid of an enormous mast.

"I've just had a letter," he said to a neighbor.

"The waves rose like mountains, while the lightning broke the pitchy gloom."

"What I want to know is," said the shipowner, as he folded the sheet.

Whereupon the laureate turned away and the interview was over.

"Tell us a joke, Mr. Fogg," said the pretty American girl.

"With a flourish." "I hope you observe the Sabbath at that lake resort where you spent your vacation."

"Your honor," said the lawyer, turning to the court, "I cannot prosecute an insane man."

"You admit having received a $50,000 fee from the trust?" said the lawyer for the state.

"I do," replied the senator, calmly.
