

Walking Costumes

Illustrated by M. Weil
The over-skirt is cut in a point both back and front; the coverings at the sides are laced across with wide pruned-colored satin ribbons, the ends finish with silk balls. Oriental embroidery is used for the double-breasted waistcoat; the front of the coat is deep and are quite plain; narrow, plain ribbon trims the armholes; the sleeve is let in under it, and is finished off at the wrist with a stitched material strap. Hat of black chip, trimmed with pruned-colored feathers and silk.

FRUNCE-COLORED FINE herring-bone serge is used for the first costume shown. MAKES PRETTY COAT FOR GIRL
Golden Brown Satin the Material, with Novel Adornments.
A charming coat for a small girl is fashioned from golden brown satin. The body is formed from straight side plaited in place by a low belt set well down. The sleeves are wide and full, taken into ruffled lace cuffs. A collar to match is the finish to the neck.
Other materials besides satin will be equally appropriate. Broadcloth and serge will, of course, be more practical.

IN MIXTURE OF TWO COLORS.
Clever Idea That is Made Use of for the New Trimming.
One of the slow trimmings is the use of black cloth cut in wide, bold designs, applied to colored cloth. This is quite effective for street suits and also for soft finished indoor wear. Hat of black chip, trimmed with pruned-colored feathers and silk.

NECK RUFFES IMPORTANT.
That neck ruffles are doing a great deal for womanhood this season there is no denying. Those intended for outdoor wear are full and heavy, being made of many layers of tulle, with often as many colors—over the neck, the full Plerrot ruffe is particularly as is also the double empire ruffe of soft silk.

REVAL OF DYEING Dyed.
The revival of dyed lace is in full tide. All colors that have come out this autumn are employed, trial colors, and therefore, the dye does not escape the dye pot. It is considered fashionable to only use lace that matches the gown and, therefore, the dyers are reaping large rewards.

SOFT SILKS.
Silk will be very much worn now. Not the kind of taffeta we used to wear. Nobody wants to rustle now, we do not want to look starched or starched; we must look as witty and clinging as possible. As the demand for silk is greater the weave will be improved. We find rich, heavy lustrous satins and dull silks in the store, and use what we prefer. AN ALCOHOL TRON.
A tiny attachment for pressing small articles—handkerchiefs, collars and ties—comes in a nickel case with a lamp and stand, that together are only as big as the palm of your hand. The iron is polished nickel and has a handle covered with straw, so that no holder is required. It is convenient to use when you get an electricity is handy, and the size and compactness of the whole thing make it a most useful part of the traveling outfit.

SUFFER FOR MONTHS.

Hope Abandoned After Physicians' Consultation.

Mr. Enos Shearer, Yow and Washington Sta., Centralia, Wash., says:
"For years I was weak and nervous, my limbs ached, and the secretions were troublesome. My bowels were inactive, I was not in bed for four months. Three doctors said there was no cure for me and I was given up to die. Being urged, I used Doan's Kidney Pills. Soon I was better and in a few weeks was about the house, well and strong again."

YEARNING OF THE SOUL.

Writer's Desires Expressed in Most Beautiful Prose Verses.

"Through every grass-blade in the meadow I tread, I feel the million leaves, veined and edged, on bush and tree; through the song notes and the marked feathers of the birds; through the emerald and blue of the butterfly; through the soft, warm air and the flecks of clouds dissolving—I used them all for prayer with all the energy of my brain, and poured unwearied on the earth these thoughts; was conscious of them on the ancient sands; with all the life that had been in the vigorous youth and the woman since first in dearest Greece the dream of the gods was woven; with all the soul-life that had flowed in the long stream of time, I prayed that I might have a soul no more than equal to, far beyond my conception of those things of the past, the fullness and the purity of the soul, not only equal to these, but beyond, higher and more powerful than I could imagine; that I might take from all their energy, grandeur, and beauty, and gather it unto me; that my soul might be more than the cosmos of life."
—Richard Jefferies.

WARNED OF THE CYCLONE.

Telephone Just a Few Seconds Ahead of High Wind.

Once upon a time a Kansas zephyr broke loose and meandered about his course picking up stragglers. Bill Baumgartner's telephone, 20 miles away, rang:
"Is that you, Bill?" yelled an excited voice.
"Yes, what's the matter?"
"This is Frank. We've got a cyclone down here, and it's headed your way. Look out!" — Frank Baumgartner.
"You're kidding!" he said, and a sputtering, then all was silence. He gathered up his family and rushed out. "I'm coming," he called. They were just in time to dodge a funnel-shaped cloud that wrecked the house, picked up his barn, two cows, and a pair of milch cows, and was seen in Hampton's Broadway Magazine.

SEVERE HEMORRHOIDS.

Sores, and Itching Eczema—Doctor Thought an Operation Necessary—Cuticura's Efficacy Proven.

"I am now 80 years old, and three years ago I was taken with an attack of hemorrhoids (internal), itching and protruding. The doctor said the only help for me was to go to a hospital and be operated on. I tried several remedies for months, but did not get much help. During this time I suffered with itching, which changed to a terrible itching eczema. Then I began to use Cuticura Soap, Cuticura Pills, injecting a quantity of Cuticura Ointment with a Cuticura Suppository. It took a month of this treatment to get me in good health, and then I treated myself once a day for three months and, after that, once or twice a week. The treatments have not taken a lot of money, and it is fortunate that I used Cuticura. J. H. Henderson, Hopkinton, N. Y., Apr. 26, 1907."

A Riddle.

An English paper recently asked its readers for an answer to the following riddle:
"What does a man love more than life, Hate more than death or mortal grief; That which contented men desire, The poor have, and the rich require; A miser spends, the spendthrift saves, And all men carry to their graves?"
All sorts of answers were sent in, but the correct one was declared to be "Nothing."

Clambered Through the Side Door of an Empty.

waiting for the mysterious trip to end. The big car stopped so suddenly that he nearly fell out of the door, and he fell off into the dirt and roll hastily into a ditch by the roadside where he might be hidden from sight. To his surprise the vehicle turned through a gateway into a field, where he heard the slow crunching of the great wheels over the stubble. He started to get up, but he was checked then in a crouching posture essayed to follow in its wanderings, when he was arrested by a sharp challenge. He was himself the subject of a challenge, and he found that the visitors had been expected no chance was being taken of entering others. Again he threw himself on his face, and then he started to get up, but he was checked then in a crouching posture essayed to follow in its wanderings, when he was arrested by a sharp challenge. He was himself the subject of a challenge, and he found that the visitors had been expected no chance was being taken of entering others.

Foot for foot he wriggled forward, the splinters of the field imbedding themselves in his feet, and straining every nerve to avoid making a noise, and listening at intervals in the hope of catching some word of conversation which might give him a clue to the cause of this nocturnal mission. From a short distance ahead came the mutterings of low pitched voices, and then a hurried voice. He was past the machine now, still crawling carefully. Once more he paused, when he heard a sudden mutter, and he saw a shadowy figure with a flash of light, and he was aware of a shivering white ray as he recognized as one of the passengers in the machine less a personage than the president, and with him was another man whom he believed to be the secretary of war.

CHAPTER VI.

The Flight of Seigo.

Seigo understood at last that the sleeping eagle was preventing his descent from its aerial with mercifully barred talons. In his flight to the city he counted every moment of value, and he was almost out when he thought: How to get news to Japan in time to avert disaster. What he had witnessed was so convincing that he was amazed at the devilish ingenuity of the Americans, who had led the whole world to believe them defenseless when they were in reality only lacking other nations on their heels. He was filled with resentment. The shoe was on the other foot now, and it made a noticeable difference. When he believed that the United States were either nations on their heels, he was filled with resentment. The shoe was on the other foot now, and it made a noticeable difference.
