THE DUKE OF THE ABRUZZI

Washington, and his son, the prince of Aosta and his cousin, the duke of Turin, and the count of Turin, and the duke of the Abruzzi were to be king.

It is a remote possibility, of course, but the chance has given a certain international significance to the Italian suit of the popular duke of the Abruzzi and his family.

There is nothing in the Italian law to prevent it. If the marriage is legal, it is a matter of course.

present at the wedding and forty or a few weeks ago, the duke was there. When it was announced that she and her mother were going to Florida for a brief outing, the duke of the Abruzzi did not run down there, too.

They went to Palm Beach. Nobody there knew the fascinating Italian who was so devoted to Miss Elkina, and the duke's two sons, the Princes Amadeo and the Prince Aimo, then the duke of the Abruzzi would be king.

MISS KATHERINE ELKINA

HATE BOUND TO BREED HATE

Nothing True Than That Revengful, Bitter Thought Will Inevitably Recall on Those That Harbor Them.

How little we realize when we throw hundreds of hatred toward another that those terrible thoughts always come back upon the sender, that all the hateful, revengful, bitter thoughts intended for another are great javelins hurled to pierce the sender's heart.

How many people go through life lacerated and bleeding from these thoughts which were intended for others.

Think of what people who refuse to speak to another, because of some fancied grievance or wrong, are really doing to themselves! How this resentment intended for another poisons their own minds and cripples their efficiency!

A kindly feeling, a feeling of good will toward another, is our best protection against bitter hatred or injurious thoughts of any kind. Nothing can penetrate the love shield, the good-will shield; we are unharmed behind that.

It does not matter what feelings of revenge and jealousy a person may have toward us. If he harbors love thoughts, the charitable thoughts toward him, his feelings of hate will guard him, his feelings of hate will guard him, his feelings of hate will guard him.

How easily, beautifully and sweetly some people go through life, with very little to jar them or to disturb their equanimity. It is because they have thought, the charitable thought toward him, his feelings of hate will guard him, his feelings of hate will guard him.
