

OLE MIS' MOON WITH THEM.

No Chance of the Visitors Being Homesick in the City.

Mrs. Fairfax was wont to stand on the porch of her old Virginia home and rejoice on moonlight nights in the beauty, says the Youth's Companion.

CHILDHOOD'S HAPPY DAYS.

The Hunter—Ain't it a shame, fido? It says here that mountain lions are rapidly becoming extinct.

IT SEEMED INCURABLE.

Body raw with Eczema—Cured from Hospital at Hospital—Cuticura Remedies Discharged.

Training of Royal Children. Most of the royal children of Europe are brought up much more simply than American children.

Socialistic. The Patient—No, I can't buy you no money while I ain't gone none a'ready. Will you take it out in drade?

His Mark. Hewitt—Griet can't write his own name. Jewett—I know it; whenever he sees a man showing another man how to make a cross on an Australian, he thinks he is forging his signature.

Waste not the remnant of thy life in those imaginings touching other folk, whereby thou contribute not to the common weal.—Marcus Aurelius.

Even a drunken man doesn't care to be held up by a footpad.

Wanted a pair of boots. The doctor said that the patient was suffering from a severe case of eczema.

THE REXFORTH CIRCULATING LIBRARY

By DONMARK LEMON

(Copyright, by Storyhour Pub. Co.)

He handed the beggar a half-dollar, for the pathetic old fellow had made a moving appeal, and was about to turn on his pocket for the other coin in his hand.

He saw that it was his pocket-piece, a Louis d'or with the image of the Grande Monarque, and made a hasty dash for his pocket.

He heard a laugh at his amazing predicament, but did not look up, as his blood was aroused, and he was bound that the coin should not escape down some hole or cranny.

It was about three-fourths its length, the courtyard lifted a bit, retarding the speed of the coin, which finally struck a ridge in its downward path and shot around the corner of a public courtyard.

He heard a laugh at his amazing predicament, but did not look up, as his blood was aroused, and he was bound that the coin should not escape down some hole or cranny.

THE REXFORTH CIRCULATING LIBRARY. The courtyard or narrow street behind which the golden Louis had been hidden was wide and looked along the flagstone, to lead at last like a very drunken Louis into a doorway.

He looked about the way smiling at his late predicament. He would step into Rexforth's and recover his serenely. He opened the door and found himself in a large, well-lighted room, fitted up more like a ladies' parlor than a library.

He looked about the way smiling at his late predicament. He would step into Rexforth's and recover his serenely. He opened the door and found himself in a large, well-lighted room, fitted up more like a ladies' parlor than a library.

WAITING FOR A FORTUNE.

Mr. Blinky Not Worrying Over It, Not the Least Bit, Gladly Forgetting It.

Like many another man, Mr. Blinky is always hoping that something will turn up. He is a very good man and he knows perfectly well that there isn't one chance in seven hundred that he'll ever get a dollar that he doesn't work for and earn; and he's always hoping and thinking that something might happen.

WHY HE WAS WORRIED.

Fly in the Ointment That Was Handled to Good Man.

"Why?" asked the good man's wife. "You look as if something disagreeable had happened."

"Perhaps," he replied, "I am foolish to feel as I do about it. My congregation has raised a purse for the purpose of sending me to Europe."

"And are you sorry it isn't larger?" "I don't know," he replied, "I shall be very glad to see you."

"I am very glad of you to look at it in that way, my dear. I appreciate your feeling. But the gentleman who made the presentation speech said he had sent me to Europe."
