Good Jokes

SPRINGING A NEW ONE.
With a wild look in his eyes the man with the green satchel rushed ahead of the excited mob. "Discovered!" he shouted for the twentieth time. "Discovered! It is all over now."
"That's a burglar," said one. "Looks more like a counterfeiter," announced another.
"Assassin!" whispered the third. And so they kept shouting.
"Where'd you escape from?"
"Nowhere."
"What were you locked up for?"
"Nothing."
"Then what in thunderation is discovered?"
"The north pole, gentlemen, the north pole, and if you will allow me to open this satchel you will discover the greatest bargain in double action, automatic self-revolving collar buttons that—"
"But ten determined men picked him up and dropped him into the nearest ash barrel."

Cautious.
The old gentleman was in a fury. "Young man," he stormed in angry tones, "didn't I tell you never to darken my doorway again?"
"But that I didn't darken it this time," retorted the trembling youth.
"What do you mean?"
"Why, I cleaned my shoes five times before I took my step on the sill. If the doorway has been darned again I didn't do it, sir."

Not Angry.
"It has been so long since we met!" "Yes, more than a year."
"I am glad you are not angry with me."
"Why in the world should I be angry with you?"
"I treated you so abominably!"
"I think you treated me with a great deal of kindness."
"Why, I jilted you."
"That's what I mean."

Nice of Him.
Pearl—Why, he is such an honest young man I can't help but admire him.
Ruby—And why do you think he is so honest?
Pearl—Why, he stole a kiss last summer and this summer he came around and returned it. I think his conscience must have troubled him.

ONE IS ENOUGH.

By Inference.
Bridge Teacher—Now, if your partner is dealer and has a dreadful hand, what will she make it?
Mrs. Baker—No trumps.
Bridge Teacher—Why, you don't know anything about bridge.
Mrs. Baker—Possibly not, but I know all about my partner—Harpers' Bazar.

Source of Information.
"Narrowing—I hear you are engaged to a young widow who is visiting relatives here. Is it true?"
Greening—Yes.
Brown—How did you discover this?
Greening—The man in the world for an old bachelor like you.
Greening—Why, she—er—told me so.

Not the Kind.
"I want to recommend to you, sir, for employment a man of unflagging industry."
"Then he won't suit us."
"Why not, sir?"
"Because we want a man to flag trains."

Her Nagging Way.
"A monkey which acts just like a human being gets a salary of $200 a week in a vaudeville theater. A man who acts just like a monkey, however, gets nothing."
"It's a shame! If he did you'd buy me a touring car, wouldn't you, dear?"

A MATTER OF OPINION.

Well Sounded.
"When those investigating directors get to work there will be music in the air."
"So that board of directors is a sort of sounding board?"

Preferred the Baby.
"A Michigan bear carried off a baby from a blackberry patch when it might have had all the blackberries it could have eaten."
"That was distinctly complimentary to the baby?"

Chance for Both.
"The man who wins," remarked the gambler, is credited with having foresight.
"Yes," rejoined the demoralizer, "and the man who loses is given a chance to develop his hindsight."

Not So Brave.
"He must be a very brave man."
"How so?"
"He says he loves the smell of powder."
"He means talcum powder, he's a mollycoddle!"

Skilful Driving.
First Irishman (in London taxi)—Sure an 'tis a mighty strange way of traveling I have had all the blackberries it could have eaten."
Second Irishman—Bedad, 'tis a wonder he don't strike and burst some sather pipe—Punch.

In the Natural Order.
"I saw Billy at the party trying to kiss that fat girl. Did she let him?"
"Well, she offered a stout resistance."
"Mrs. Smith's Housekeeping." Grownells—Smith's wife must be a poor housekeeper.
Mrs. Grownells—Why do you think so?
Grownells—He declares he's perfectly comfortable at home every day in the year.

Trouble for Pa.
"Where do thy wind you up, Miss Shrewsbury?"
"Wind me up?"
"Yes, pa said you sang mechanically."

SEVEN MILLION DOLLAR DAM

A Structure Higher Than the Famous New York Flatiron Building Out in Wyoming.

These are good towns, including Cody, Basin, Worland, Garland, Powell and Thermopola, already mentioned. At the latter place are situated the Thermopola Hot Springs, and for their curative properties they are long to be as famous as the Hot Springs, Arkansas, and the hot springs at Carlsbad, Germany, and are long to be as famous as the best better known springs.

Perhaps in no other one section in there so much land susceptible of irrigation and such an abundant and certain water supply combined with perfect climatic conditions and beautiful physical surroundings as in the Big Horn Basin. On all sides rise the snow-capped peaks of the Big Horn, Absaroka, Pryor and Owl Ranges, forming an enclosing mountain barrier, assuring protection from every direction and serving as a constant inspiration to those so fortunate as to live in this region of already great development and still greater possibilities. Immediately to the west within driving distance Yellowstone Park, the people's great playground, while on all sides are found the finest hunting and fishing grounds of the country.

Alfalfa, the great forage crop of the west, small grains, sugar beets, potatoes, all the fruits which grow in the temperate zone, and garden truck, comprise the principal agricultural products.

Some of the great areas are phenomenal, sometimes so great as to enable the settler to pay for his entire farm from the proceeds of a single crop. Coal of the finest quality in abundance, natural gas already lighting the houses of the Big Horn Basin, and the fact that the mineral resources of the basin, the development of which is already yielding rich returns, give some idea of the mineral resources of the basin, the development of which is already yielding rich returns, give some idea of the mineral resources of the basin, the development of which is already yielding rich returns.

Hon. Frank W. Mondell, Chairman of the Committee on Territories of the House of Representatives of the United States, says:

"I know of no region that I know of in the United States has a brighter prospect than the Big Horn Basin. In this region, indeed, the products and possibilities that it might easily be made self-supporting are so numerous and so varied, and the people who have cast their lot with that region and who continue to their faith in its assured future."

"This wonderful country is developing rapidly. Churches and schools abound. The population is intelligent, God-fearing, law-abiding, and any man out there who is half a man has the opportunity to quickly make himself independent."

The greatest need of the Big Horn Basin, however, in common with other parts of the west, is the need of advantage of the wonderful opportunities which it has to offer, and now that these are becoming better known, settlers are coming in ever-increasing numbers. One of the surprising features of this region is the large number of settlers who come from the cities and towns and who, knowing comparatively little about farming, are making a great success. Irrigated farming is certainly proving a great boon to the "butcher boy" who makes and the candlestick maker" as well as to the farmer himself, and with the great land hunger which seems to have seized the people generally, it will be but a comparatively short time, now, before the lands of the entire public domain which are susceptible of cultivation will have been settled upon; and then those who might have taken advantage of those opportunities will find that it is too late.

Nowhere will the farmer, the stock raiser, the tradesman and the small business man find more or better opportunities for acquiring independence, and for establishing new homes under the most favorable conditions in a new and rapidly developing country, than in the Big Horn Basin of Wyoming.
