Grand D. & C.

is itself. It has its commodious open basin; there are faucets of running water. Every stateroom, moreover, has its own telephone, which connects with every other room aboard the ship, and when the boat reaches her dock 10 trunk lines are connected with the telephone service of the city. Moreover, the wireless telegraph service with which the ship is equipped, is so arranged that messages can be sent from every stateroom while the "City of Cleveland" is in the middle of Lake Erie.

If our love of elegant luxury is insistent and we have the means to indulge it, as most traveling Americans have—the ship offers still wider facilities. There are 20 private parlors on the "City of Cleveland" of exquisite design and dainty beauty. These are finished in Marie Antoinette and colonial styles. They border on the grand salon. Here, too, is the predominating scheme of ivory and gold. Upon the walls and ceiling are delicate floral designs which merge gracefully into the panel paintings. The windows are dimmed by soft lace. About the rooms are brass beds, with ventilated hair mattresses, luxurious divans, easy chairs and dainty tables. With each of the 20 parlors there is connected a bath-room in immaculate white tile.

Twelve of them actually have shower baths. Think of boarding the "City of Cleveland" from out a city sweltering after a July day, and bathing in Lake Erie water or taking your shower in the morning after a night's travel through lake breezes!

Six private parlors have logges or little verandas of their own, shut off from the rest of the ship, where no one can walk by. Here one has all the beauty high above the lake, together with the privacy of a yacht.

In the designing and building of the "City of Cleveland" one fundamental principal has been borne steadfastly in mind; that she is queen of passenger steamers; that her mission here lies in outings more than in rapid and convenient transportation; that for outings one needs the out-of-doors. There are literally miles of deck promenade-places to sit and dream; nooks for tete-a-tete; places to walk and places to sit in the sun or the moonlight and drink deeply of the fresh lake breezes. Everywhere there are broad windows; everything looks out upon the water.

This manifestly and universally is important. On the new "City of Cleveland" it is vital, because in the luxury and elegance of correct dining, this ship has facilities unsurpassed on fresh or salt water. Suppose we have returned to the lobby. By entering on either side of the grand stairway we descend to the main dining salon, which is in the hollow of the ship or on the deep deck. It is of imposing size, and is decorated in the art douveau style. At the foot of the stairs are massive carved newels, Extending the entire length of the great hall are sideboards with doors paneled in quarter oak and finished in richest forest green. The white linen and glistening silver on the tables will reflect the soft glow of the light from the electroliers above, of quaint old lantern design. Squares of green tile, the exact shade of the woodwork, cover the floor.

The latest system of water, filtration is used on the D. & C. Line boats for water supplied to the dining rooms and all drinking fountains; thus passengers are served only absolutely pure lake water.

The buffet, quaint and striking, is directly after the dining salon. It is the only Venetian Garden ever reproduced aboardship. Massive columns support great ceiling beams, with lattice-work entwined with vines and blossoms. The walls are covered with paintings so cunningly done that they give the impression of perspective extending miles and miles away. The ceiling, lighted by blue electric lamps, gives the impression of the soft Italian moonlight. Fans make the soft breezes of the Mediterranean. The soft, red leather cushions and the ease and quiet of the place complete the illusion of a transplanted Italy.

Above the main deck the "City of Cleve" is beyond all question more spacious and luxurious than any other steamer that sails fresh water. But below decks she is no less unique, as a product of naval engineering and architecture.

Here the really great problem has been worked out and the vital results achieved. It will probably prove of some passing interest to the most indifferent passenger to know that he is riding the waters thus majestically at a speed of 25 miles an hour. In the first place, the hull is of mild steel up to the main rail and including the main deck, which is sheathed in wood. Water-tight bulkheads of steel divide the hold into 10 compartments. These compartments are fitted with watertight steel doors which can be opened or closed by means of hydraulic gear operated in the engine room. In case of emergency any compartment can be shut off from the rest of the ship as though hermetically sealed.

As a still futher and more infallible precaution, the "City of Cleveland" virtually has a double inner bottom. The significance of this is obvious. At last naval science has evolved a ship that is practically unsinkable. To change the trim of the ship or the draft, water ballast is carried, and there are great tanks, holding from 25 to 100 tons, located on the guards or amidship to keep the boat from rolling in heavy seas. The evil spirit of sea sickness has been routed utterly from the "City of Cleveland." Under all condition the ship is as level and steady as a hotel or the proverbial church. To the rudder are fitted three complete steering gears; no chances are taken with broken wheel-chains, for there is a complete auxiliary gear.

The most original and perhaps vital of all the new ship's mechanical innovations, however, is her bow rudder operated by steam steering gear. What this device means in following a crowded or narrow channel is easily discernible. With it the "City of Cleveland" can back as readily, quickly, and accurately as she can go ahead. It will enable her to turn in a little more than her own length; it makes her as easily handled as a yacht. It will save a vast amount of time and it will be a vital safeguard against emergencies of all kinds. The bow rudder itself is enough to make the "City of Cleveland" historic. No other passenger steamer in the world has a bow rudder operated by steam gear.

On this ship and on all D. & C. steamers there is installed 25 per cent more safety devices for the guarding of human life than the federal government requires by law. For instance, there is a complete automatic sprinkling system throughout the ship. A fire breaking out would be extinguished without the attention and possibly the knowledge of the crew. Automatic thermostatic fire alarms are fitted in every room on the vessel; there is an annunciator in the engine room and alarms in the Captain's, Engineer's and Purser's rooms.

The new stamer "City of Cleveland" operates on the Lake Erie division, which is the main line of the D. & C. system. Running between the great cities of Detroit and Cleveland, it forms as complete a trunk line as does the best railroad. The steamers on the Lake Erie division leave Detroit and Cleveland simultaneously at a late hour evening and reach their destination early the next morning. During the hot summer months, habitual travelers invariably forsake the dusty and noisy cars for these steamers.

Daylight trips will be operated during July and August between Detroit and Cleveland, leaving Cleveland every Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday morning, and from Detroit every Sunday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Saturday. The cost of transportation on these daylight trips is only one cent per mile, which is the cheapest water transportation in the world.

On account of the safety, regularity and great speed of the D. & C. Line steamers, the U. S. government has awarded this line the contract for carrying the mail between Detroit and Cleveland during the season of 1909.

In addition to the direct curative properties it has a soothing effect upon the nervous system by which the rheumatic pains are controlled, and rest and sleep assured. It has made many cures of this painful disease, some of them after years of suffering. If it will cure others why not you. If your case is complicated, write us for advice, it costs you nothing and may save you prolonged suffering.

"I was crippled that I could scarcely walk. After having my shoes on for an hour or two I could manage to walk for relieving the pain. Then I began to have pains all through my system. The doctor told me I had an acute attack of inflammatory rheumatism. I read about Dr. Miles' Nervine, bought a bottle and I commenced to get better from the start and for the past six months have scarcely any pain, and am able to walk as well as ever."

Indigestion

Stomach trouble is but a symptom of, and not in itself a true disease. We think of Dyspepsia, Heartburn, and Indigestion as real diseases, but they are symptoms only of a certain specific Nerve sickness—nothing else.

It was this fact that first correctly led Dr. Shoop in the creation of that now very popular stomach remedy—Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Going direct to the stomach nerves, alone brought that success and favor to Dr. Shoop and his Restorative. Without that original and highly vital principle, no such lasting accomplishments were ever to be had.

For stomach distress, bloating, biliousness, bad breath and sallow complexion, try Dr. Shoop's Restorative—Tablets or Liquid—and see for yourself what it can and will do. We sell and cheerfully recommend

Which One Owns This Tree?

For sixty years and more a tree has stood on the dividing line between two properties in Germantown, Pa. It is a big tree now, and the base of the trunk extends 22 inches on land owned by R. G. The latter, making improvements, arranged to have the tree cut down, but Mr. Beale has obtained a preliminary injunction, and the case will be threshed out in court.—Hartford Courant.

Too Big a Price.

Does the pursuit of wealth cut the American man of business off from the old-fashioned relish of books and society? In other words, is he paying too big or disproportionate a price in time and strength for wealth and commercial prominence? My answer would be: Yes, beyond question.—From A. Barton Hepburn's "The American Business Man" in the Century.

The First "Blue Laws."

The name "blue laws" was given to the first collection of laws framed for the government of the New Haven colony. They were published in collective form in 1650, the volume being in a blue cover, which gave rise to the name that has clung to the laws ever since.

A Noble Rule of Life.

To live content with small means; to seek elegance rather than luxury; and refinement rather than fashion; to be worthy, not respectable, and wealthy, not rich; to listen to stars and birds, babes and sages, with open heart; to study hard, to think quietly, act frankly, talk gently; await occasions, hurry never; in a word, to let the spiritual, unbidden, and unconscious grow up through the common—that is my symphony.—W. Carlyle's Expressive Phrase.

The phrase "unspeakable Turk" came into use in England during the Bulgarian insurrection of 1876. It originated with Thomas Carlyle and made its appearance in a published letter of his, in which occurred the following sentence: "The unspeakable Turk should be immediately struck out of the question and the country left to honest European guidance."
