

HEARTFELT SYMPATHY.

WE VETERANS MARCH IN GREAT REVIEW

PARADE OF THE GRAND ARMY IN SALT LAKE CITY

CLIMAX OF ENCAMPMENT

Old Soldiers Are Greeted with Cheers and Tears—Gathering in the Utah Capital Well Managed.

Salt Lake City, Utah, Aug. 11.—Forty-four departments of the Grand Army of the Republic, escorted by the Fifteenth United States Infantry and the National Guard of Utah and followed by the Naval Veterans, the Ex-Union Prisoners of War, the Army Nurses in carriages, the Sons of Veterans and the women's organizations...

Commander-in-Chief Nevius.

Monday evening came the first public event of the program—a great campfire in the assembly hall in the Temple grounds. All that night and throughout Tuesday the stream of arrivals continued, but by Tuesday evening practically all the veterans had been received and distributed. That night the greatest function of the encampment took place, one of the "Greetings" meetings in the Mormon Tabernacle. The immense building resounded with cheering...

When Seventh South street was reached the parade themselves broke out in mighty cheering, for there they turned in front of the most beautiful feature of the day, the "Living Flag." On an immense stand were 2,600 children dressed in the national colors and so arranged that they made a perfect representation of a waving American flag.

The little ones had been drilled for many weeks and while the old soldiers passed by they sang patriotic airs. Reviewed by Notables. Counter-marching the parade moved north on Main street back to South Temple street. Here, just to the left of the Brigham Young pioneer monument and close to Temple square, the reviewing stand had been erected. All the bands as they arrived here were dressed close to the stand and as the culmination of the parade, 4,000 school children, marched by the united bands...

Acquiring a Reputation. It doesn't take much to give a man a reputation for meanness. Even the laborers who shovel dirt on the sticky grass plots of retarded upper Broadway have earned it by refusing to give away pails of earth. "We had to shut down some time," said one of the misers. "If we hadn't had our little boys and girls to beautify the landscape. Folks in this town are the biggest beggars you ever saw. No sooner is a cart loaded with dirt dumped out than children all over...

playing and the children sing "Our Father, Our Father."

The great review was excellently managed in every way. All along the line of marching in such a noble manner, fringed nurses and numerous other attendants to care for any of the veterans who might be overcome by fatigue and in such a manner as to suffer in the crush on the sidewalks. Fortunately, their services were seldom needed.

Fine Pyrotechnic Display. After a good rest, the city's guests all turned out again this evening and witnessed the magnificent display of fireworks on the top of Eagle peak. This peak lies immediately north of the city and is the highest point of the Wasatch mountains, rising 1,200 feet higher than Temple square. The pyrotechnic display is a mighty feature of the encampment week. Salt Lake City has thrown open her arms to the old soldiers. She never has the Grand Army been more enthusiastically received, or more generously entertained, than at this encampment. Many thousands of the veterans and their families and members of all the organizations allied to the Grand Army have participated in the exercises and entertainments, and are unanimous in their praise of the treatment they have received.

Well-Managed Encampment. The old soldiers have been very carefully looked after by the local committee on public comfort and privileges. On Sunday the city's guests began their information bureau at the various railway stations and convenient places about the city. During the entire time of the encampment the city's guests have had the services of 300 high school cadets, whose duties have been to render every possible assistance to the visitor. Henry M. Nevius, the commander-in-chief, arrived here Saturday with his staff and inspected the arrangements. On Sunday the city's guests began arriving by the thousand, and on Monday they came in so fast that the committee had to work like sailors to get them all housed in such a manner as to avoid congestion in any part of the city.

TWO GOOD LITERS OF PIGS A YEAR

Where This Is Accomplished the First Cost Is Comparatively Small—Some Good Points About It—By E. T. Robbins.

A mature sow can raise two litters as successfully as one, and with no extra feed save that required for nourishing the second litter. Where only one litter of pigs is raised yearly from mature sows, it is difficult to keep them contented during the summer and fall unless they are fed so heavily as to become too fat. An old sow which has raised a litter of March pigs and is bred again for September, will keep in good health during the summer on clover pasture alone, says Orange Judd Farmer. If she is suckled down in the spring, because she was insufficiently fed at that time, she needs a little grain during the summer on good pasture to put her in fine condition again. One litter is enough for a sow in her first year. In her second year and thereafter she is not...

Profitable Kind of Pig. A pig that will push as rapidly as possible, so as to be large enough to withstand winter weather successfully. It will not do to get the draft animal on pasture with little grain. Well fed September pigs will weigh pounds when winter sets in, and be fat and well covered with hair, so they do not suffer from the cold. Such pigs will thrive all winter if properly sheltered during the winter. They must be fed some neat milk, tankage, or oil meal to the extent of ten per cent of their ration, or some shorts to the extent of 25 per cent of ration along with them. These feeds, while expensive, do not need to be fed in large amounts in order to increase the growth of the pigs as much as 50 per cent. At the same time, pigs so fed will keep far more healthy than those fed on a straight corn diet.

move all corn from the bottom. When a rat or mouse enters the crib, it will fall into the trap and be caught. This is a very effective method of keeping your store of grain safe from these pests.

Farm Blacksmithing. Get a size and set of taps and dies for one-quarter, five-eighths, three-eighths, seven-eighths and one-half inch bolts. These sizes will cover all the bolts used in the farm. The best quality of bolts is made by the American Agricultural Bolt Works. You can get your bolts and nuts at a very low price from these works. They also sell a variety of other hardware and tools.

The Live Stock Man. The more I see of the men who raise live stock in this country, says the Oregon Farmer, the more I am convinced that the live stock industry is the backbone of the rural community. It is the source of many of our food products and provides employment for a large number of people. The live stock man must be careful to keep his animals healthy and to breed them for quality.

ACTUGLY AT HOME

A WORD ABOUT FRETFUL AND FAULT-FINDING HUSBANDS.

Too Many Men Vent on the Family Circle Irritation They Have Been Restraining All Day. Necessity for "Growlery." Men are apt to fall into careless habits at home. They thoughtlessly, perhaps, speak sharp words that strike and sting like arrows in the heart of their wives. They are not so often aware of their thoughtfulness to other women, and smile their sweetest smile. But at home, so often, they are careless and unkind of the effect of their words.
