THE members of President Taft's cabinet have a new room in which to meet, and it is so located that they have complete privacy not only on the days when the cabinet is in session, but when, as department chiefs...

R. C. KNOX, SECRETARY OF STATE, MAKING A DRIVE

Without being obliged to wait their turn with senators, representatives and the private citizens of the land, who under the new arrangement are given a waiting room of their own...

Mr. Taft's cabinet forms what might be called a legal family. Most of the members are lawyers of the first rank, and it is an open secret that they were selected because of their high ability.

Mr. Taft's cabinet forms what might be called a legal family. Most of the members are lawyers of the first rank, and it is an open secret that they were selected because of their high ability.

What the president said at that time is practically true of most of the present sessions of the cabinet, for it is known that while Mr. Taft is anxious to carry out the Roosevelt policies, he wants to buttress them with the law so that no constitutional flaws can be found in them by means of which after the best intentions on the part of the legislators, the guilty might find a means of escape.

It must not be supposed for an instant that because most of Mr. Taft's cabinet members are lawyers, they have no avocations in life to them aside frequently from their vocations. Take the ranking member of the cabinet for instance, Paulding Chase Knox. The secretary of state is a devotee of the outdoor life, and is no less particular in open air pursuits than was President Roosevelt, though it is true that Mr. Knox does not carry for the pursuit of game nor for the study of natural history.

The secretary of state, when he is not discussing matters with the president, or is not engaged in straightening out international tangles, is either playing golf or driving a pair of fast spirited horses. There are few more ardent lovers of the "mole horse" than Secretary Knox. He rides occasionally and he is not averse to taking a feverish ride if his mount is a jumper, and if the gate happens in his way. The secretary's chief delight is driving. On his Pennsylvania farm near Valley Forge, the scene of the awful winter which was passed by the continental army under George Washington, Mr. Knox has many horses of approved pedigree, and many dairy animals also of noted flocks.

Franklin MacVeagh, the secretary of the treasury, who is the second ranking officer in Mr. Taft's cabinet, is a merchant, although in early years he studied law. Mr. MacVeagh is not particularly to the strenuous life as it is viewed generally. He is much of a walker and has a love of nature which leads him on many expeditions, but for games, and for shooting, the secretary cares little.

Up near Dublin, New Hampshire, the treasury chief has a country home and there on the rocky as one of the legal lights of the United States. The account we kept it seems likely that the visits paid to the White House by George W. Wickersham, the attorney general, would be found to outnumber those paid by any other cabinet official. Mr. Wickersham is in charge of the prosecution of the law breakers which the government is carrying forward, and his attorney general knowledge, as the country knows, that the legal opinion of the president is worth while. Mr. Wickersham, when he was first mentioned for a Nature Restores Fertility.

A unique opportunity to study nature's processes in restoring the vegetation of a land swept clean by a great disaster was afforded after the tremendous eruption of the volcano on the little island of Krakatoa in 1883. A few living organisms were destroyed. In 1885 a number of plants had already established themselves on the devastated island, those in the interior being remarkably different from those on the coast, trees especially preponderating. In 1897 further progress had been made and in 1906 the forest trees had been advanced so far as to make it evident that within a short time the island will again be a little Oedenburg. The first plants to establish themselves on the blasted soil—such as ferns, algae, mosses, composite and grasses—were borne thither by winds, and that ocean currents were probably the means of the importation of seeds to fruits. Royal Woman's Weeds. Many of the famous women in history have been advanced through the children's love most of their lives. One was Queen Adelaide, whose two little ones died in infancy. She mourned her loss, and she was comforted by the children's love, and she sought solace in bringing happiness to the children of others. It became her custom to give a great Christmas tree as a gift to the boys and girls wherever the court spent the festive season. The tree was stood under Chinese dragons suspended from the ceiling. The children walked in two by two, and each one was kindled in turn by the queen. Adelaide also distributed all of the Christmas presents. It is said she always enjoyed these gatherings until the little ones had gone, when she would be overcome by a sense of loneliness in the thought of her own children's household.
