

BANK IS SATISFACTORY FOR FEEDING PURPOSES

Nebraska Stock Raiser Used One for Twelve Years With Excellent Results—Stands Strain of Big Steers.

With this description appear some savings of a feed bank which Mr. J. Price of Nebraska has used for 12 years with very satisfactory results. It contains the strain of big steers better than any other. This bank has only four legs and for that reason will stand the strain of big steers better than any other.

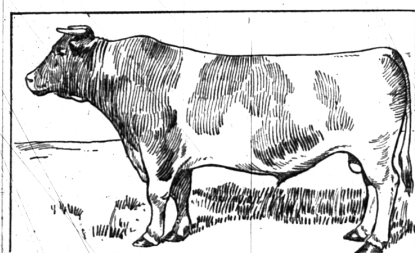

feature will set level anywhere, this reason being of especial importance in the winter when the ground is frozen. A bank made in accordance with this sketch requires less lumber than any other style, says Homestead. Make the bed proper of yellow pine 2x8 stock using good straight as for the sides, letting them come flush with the outside of the bottom and make the mortise of the sides for the ends to fit in. For ordinary cattle, a

FOR WOOL AND MUTTON

How to Develop Good Flock for Double Purpose—Blue Grass Makes Best Permanent Pasture.

(By F. G. HYCHER.)
To develop a good flock of breeding sheep for wool and mutton I would begin with the ewes that are half Cotswold, Oxford or Shropshire buck, and with a buck that is a full blooded Shropshire.

FINE SPECIMEN OF HOLSTEIN

Strange as it may seem to say so, there is a best breed of cow, and one or any thing else. It is true that some breeds are better than others, but when it comes to deciding among the few best breeds, you will find to individual preference and varying circumstances and conditions.

Corn Grain for Horses.
Corn grain when ground into meal by far the most concentrated feed alone to horses. It lacks fiber and fails to insure good digestion. Therefore, if the corn can be finely ground it is an advantage for the horse. Corn grain is not a feed for horses, but a feed for men.

THE GENTLE SHEEP AS A RAPID-FIRE MONEYMAKER.

An enormous number of sheep are coming into the Union Stock Yards, Chicago, which are being sent there by Western graziers on account of the shortage of feed in that section of the country, and which must be sold at buyers' prices.

The states of Michigan, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois are well provided with good feed and an opportunity of this kind, if offered by one of the great stock houses or departments of Chicago, would deplete three-quarters of the homes of that city of its workmen inside of half an hour after the notice appeared.

Scarcity of Timber.
Wood is becoming scarcer and dearer every year. As population increases we shall be obliged to use more acreage in its sustenance. The trees will be planted again on the waste lands, and dams will be built to hold surplus water for use in times of drought, as is done in older countries. Your rivers then will be more fertile in summer and less dangerous in the spring time.

Sheep feeding at this particular time and after the season of Western drought just experienced, will be most profitable to those who are fortunate enough to have the feed, and more so in the course of the next sixty days turn over their money in such a satisfactory way as will add to their wealth.

BABY'S SKIN TORTURE

"When our baby was seven weeks old he broke out with what we thought was heat, but which gradually grew worse. We called in a doctor, and after the usual course of treatment we doctored six months with three of the best doctors in Atchison but he only got worse. His face, head and hands were all covered with a fine, red, itching eruption.

Illustrate Immigrants.
Illinois records show that 82,727 immigrants who arrived here in July and August, 1910, are now in the State. The number of immigrants is no bar to an immigrant so long as he appears physically able to care for himself.

Pleasant Place to Prosper.
TO THE EDITOR: We wish to hear from you if you would call good securing a fruit, dairy or poultry farm in West Virginia, at half the low value. Best water right in state. Low maintenance cost. Good soil. Very healthy. We are actually in the best of the country's growing season. Ten tons alfalfa and clover included in price. We have a large acreage of land. We have a thousand other fruits, nuts, vegetables, etc. We have a fine game preserve. We have a fine school. We have a fine church. We have a fine school. We have a fine church.

Blackberries.
Blackberries require rich soil. Plant in fall or early spring in rows 4 by 7 feet cutting plants to the ground. Avoid disturbing the roots until plants are one foot high. When about three feet high pinch back some to induce stocky and lateral growth. Berries should all be held in check and only wood removed after fruiting. Cultivate annually and sow occasionally to suppress weeds. Wilson, Snyder, Erie, Hathburn and Ward are the best varieties in this section.

Blanche—Poor Grace! She out-married herself. I would not have been made—indeed! Blanche—Yes. She married a duke, you know, and didn't have enough money to pay his bills.

Points to Good Future.
Seven poor children, four girls and three boys, all about ten years old, went to a nearby seashore resort, in charge of two women, for a day's outing. The funds for the picnic were provided by two boys who sell papers and who live in one of the two houses from which the excursion party was recruited.

Good Advice, but—
A traveler entering a railway carriage at a wayside station. The sole occupant of the compartment consisted of an old lady and her son, about twelve years old. Nothing of course occurred until the train stopped at the station which tickets were collected. The woman, not having a ticket for the boy, requested him to accompany her to the ticket office.

W. L. DOUGLAS SHOES

W. L. Douglas's shoes are the most successful remedy for curing the worst forms of rheumatism, including sciatica, neuralgia, and nervous prostration. It costs but a trifle to try it and the result has been very brilliant in many suffering women.

Why He Wouldn't Hurry.
They were riding to church and were late. Several of the party were worried and one remarked: "The audience will be waiting." "Well," observed the old pastor (who was to preach that forenoon), "don't let me off if we are a little late. It reminds me of the man who was being taken to execution. His guards were greatly exercised over the fact that they could not possibly get there on time. 'Never mind,' said the poor fellow, philosophically. 'Don't fuss over it. The people can wait. There'll be nothing doing till I get there.'"—Christian Herald.

WESTMINSTER ABBEY

almost tell the date of any individual specimen by the literary style. History records, I believe, that the son of the eighteenth century were anything but above reproach in England, but if Westminster is to be taken as a type of the eighteenth century, then these quaint old hypocrites were not self-devised in suggestion by the closing sentence of one of the epitaphs of a proud following that the most stilted specimen. "Reader," it says, "if on perusing this tribute to a private individual, there should be disposed to suspect it as partial or censorious it is diffuse, know that it is not panegyric, but history."

Upon the monument of Grace Scott, wife of Colonel Scott, a member of the honorable house of commons, 1844, are engraved these words: "He that will give my Grace but one kiss, shall be my heir." Must say that dear old Scott, but virtue, worth and sweetness, wide-spread.

Punning, indeed, was highly esteemed by the ancient epigrammatists, as is evidenced in the epitaph to Sir James Pullerton: "He died fuller of faith than a fowler, fuller of consolation than of malice, fuller of hope than of days." Yet there are not wanting specimens of true and ingenious sentiment, as that in the case of Mrs. Mary Kendall, whose friendship for Lady Catherine Jones was such that "she desired that even their ashes after death might not be divided and therefore ordered herself here to be interred where she knew that the lady desired they should rest together."

Women in the Minister.
The suggestion that Florence Nightingale be accorded the highest honor in an Englishman was a matter of burial in the abbey, could not be resurrected from the scrap pile, an old guide to the building, written in a tone of Irving himself would have approved. I wanted to find what women have heretofore been granted this distinction, or that of a tablet of monument in this national place of sepulture, and the reasons therefor. I discovered that their name was legion, but that the honor given them, except in two or three cases was for no special merit of their own. Their bodies rested there or the monument was raised to them because they were the wives or daughters of this dignitary or that, one taking the room for no more valid reason than that she was the spouse of an estimable gentleman who was for a time organist of the church. Two exceptions there were, indeed—the one, Jenny Lind, the other Sarah Siddons. But their tablets are of small comparative size and value, while to this or that lady of the court has been erected an imposing and colossal monument. One all imposing to the abbey will remain because of the hideous skeleton that forms part of its composition, erected, as it happens, to the lady as well as to the lord of the same name as the heroic Santa Flomont, who has just passed away.

Was an eye of Gilted Period.
The epitaphs quoted in the guidebook have a distinctive flavor, as if they were some special brand manufactured for the abbey. The old is in the splendid old tomb, need no inscription, and have none, but as the architectural merit of the monument increases so does the verbal decoration increase, and with the monstrous sculpture of the eighteenth century would be found and overgrown regions of the epitaph writers.
