AT THE THEATRES.
Direct from a record-breaking run of six months in New York City and several months in Chicago, "The Fourth Estate," the great play of newspaper life by Joseph Medill Patterson and Miss Harriet Ford, will be seen for the first time in Detroit by the Garrick theatre on Monday evening, November 28th. The engagement is for six nights only and includes the usual Wednesday and Saturday matinees.
"The Fourth Estate," is a great play of newspaper life and by a newspaper man who knows the game. Not only is the play beautifully acted, but its mechanical effects and situations are of a nature which not only thrill with their power to startle with their unexpectedness but the theme of the play is so big, its every day life and problems of every man and woman who sees it, that it makes an irresistible appeal, not only to the senses but to the mentality.
The cast of players is the same which gave the play its great vogue in both Chicago and New York. For the benefit of out of town theatregoers, the management of the Garrick, through an announcement that mail orders, when accompanied by a remittance, will be filled in the order of their receipt. No better advice to the theatregoers and non-theatregoers at work can be given than the terse editorial written by the Editor of the Chicago Tribune, who said, "Go see it!"
The price for this engagement will range from 25 cents to $1.00. Matinees on Wednesday and Saturday, 25 cents to $1.00 for the best seats.

FOOLED THE JOKERS.
When a popular young couple, was married their friends planned to play the usual prank on them, but they got safely away on their wedding trip.
The bridegroom, it happened, also had a few ideas of his own. While the festivities were at their height, some one came into the house with the information that a man was trying to break into the street car track, only a short distance from the home. Reaching the tracks the merry-makers thought a cleverly constructed dummy.
When they got back to the house the would-be jokers found that the friend who had been given the slip, leaving a little note which turned the laugh on the friends.

THE SPIDER AND THE FLY
The custodian of the quaint old tenement known as St. Mary's hospital, Chichester, which has been visited by many royalties, is an old soldier, who, among his treasurers, gives a prominent place upon the wall to a picture of Lieutenant General Sir R. S. S. Baden-Powell. The general is depicted mounted on a fiery steed, waving a huge sword over his head as he leads his men to battle.
A visitor who was recently shown over the hospital was taken afterwards into the custodian's lodge and while examining picture postcards, was struck by the warlike picture of "Who's that ugly chap with the sword?" he inquired.
The custodian explained that it was the great "B.P." and added that that celebrity would not feel flattered to hear such a description of himself. When the visitor had gone the custodian went to look at his signature in the "victors' book" he brought.

Supervision of Upper Air
Years of Preparation Necessary for Accomplishment of Great Feats of Aviation.
How few of the thousands blackening the sands at Atlantic City realized the months and years of preparation for what seemed—as all supreme achievement seems to be—so easily achieved without effort. But try it; try even to think of doing it, and you will see how hard it can be, how much one must know, how much one must be able to do. It is absolutely necessary to know the motor and its little personal idiosyncrasies, its little quirks and tricks, its little habits. One must know every bone in his machine just as a good horseman knows his horse, and he should have confidence in every part, or, if he cannot have that, he must know its weak point, and how to favor that one point so that it will get the least strain possible. From this one begins to see what is required of the flying man, and can infer some of the instant and imperceptible adjustments (mind and body). Yes, the art and science of flight has called into being a company of men, in whom certain qualities of mind and character have been so wonderfully developed that at present they almost seem a race apart, "supermen" in one sense of the word.
If man has at last made a new machine, the machine is certainly making a new man.—Columbian Magazine.

Called for Glory Divine
Among the customers in the drug store conducted by George Kpler, Twentieth and Berke streets, was a little girl with a little girl who is known by her playmates in that vicinity as "Peggy." As she stood waiting for her turn it could be seen that she was repeating something under her breath. In her effort to remember what her mother had said she had made a mistake (mind and body). Yes, the art and science of flight has called into being a company of men, in whom certain qualities of mind and character have been so wonderfully developed that at present they almost seem a race apart, "supermen" in one sense of the word.
If man has at last made a new machine, the machine is certainly making a new man.—Columbian Magazine.

YOUNG BRIDE GIVES IT UP
Found Spending Page Dope Too Deep When She Tried to Study Baseball.
She was a bride of six weeks. She had married a baseball fan, and on the morning that morning he had happened to her to look at the sports news in the paper and try to catch on to the game. She was a loving, dutiful bride. She sat down and read. "If then I rushed in and swung for Joe's body."
"Joe administered a conderidge on the ear."
"Jim fiddled for a moment and then got in a clean left and got away with out a return."
"Joe followed him, and seeing an opening, dropped his bat and swung the grip of seven."
"When Jim arose he fell into a clinic and soon recovered his wits."
"At this point, these were cheers for both."
"When the referee had separated the two and soon recovered his wits, Jim and Jim returned one on the solar plexus."
"The crowd went wild with excitement."
"Both men came together with a determination to end things. They were glaring like tigers, and as they came together the bride broke down, threw the paper aside, and ran to her mother to exclaim:
"I cannot stand a divorce for I can never understand baseball, and Fred will be mad at me!"

THE TALE OF YACHTING CRUISE
How a Hostess Arranged a Breakdown and Got Rid of Her Bored Guests.
A few seasons back a well-known hostess chartered a splendid yacht for a cruise and invited a large number of her friends for a three-week cruise. At first all went well, though the party was not specially well assorted; but after a few days they began to evince signs of being somewhat bored with each other's company.
The hostess marked these signs of fretful boredom, which became more plainly evident each day, and at last in despair she took counsel with one of her guests, an old and experienced yachtsman.
"What an earth abut if I do to amuse these people?" she asked.
"I will give you a few hints," he said, "but be calm, blue water, and serene sky."
"A storm would drive them up a bit," he said, "but the weather looks quite settled. There is only one thing to be done. You must arrange a breakdown, the engineer will manage that all right for you. He has probably often done so before. Then you must make for the nearest port for repairs, and let your guests have a run ashore. Some of them I expect will find an excuse for bidding you good-by, and those who remain with you will get along all right together."
The hostess took her guest's advice, and arrived at Toulon a day later, where high twenty of her guests bid her good-by.—M. A. P.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. THE FIRST LIGHTNING ROD
Benjamin Priest Annotated Franklin in Experiments With Conductor for Lightning.
Though Franklin will continue to receive the honor that is his due as the inventor of the first practical lightning rod, the study of his work on electricity has been at least to the time of Tullius Hostilius, who perished in an attempt to "draw fire from the sky." Clever, in one of his operations against Catiline, called attention to the destruction of the gilded statue of Romulus by lightning as an evil omen. A lightning bolt vividly described by Virgil in the eighth book of the Aeneid damaged the hind legs of the bronze Capitoline Wolf, and the people of Rome were so impressed today can still discern the marks upon the metal. A learned priest by the name of Hostilius was able to erect the first lightning conductor in Europe. He set it up at Predazzo, in the Alps, and it was 120 feet high. Through the Emperor Stephen and the Empress Maria Theresa publicly proclaimed their confidence in the inventor, a most disastrous drought afflicted the country a year later was ascribed by the superstitious populace to the new-fangled device, and Divisch was killed by lightning. It is not probable that Franklin was acquainted with Divisch's experiment.
