

SYNOPSIS.

Larson, Blakeley, lawyer, goes to Bronson case to get the book of notes. He is attracted by a picture of a woman in the book. He is attracted by a picture of a woman in the book. He is attracted by a picture of a woman in the book.

CHAPTER XXI.

I confess I was staggered. The people at the surrounding tables, after glancing curiously in my direction, looked away again.

"It's the worst horn I ever ran across," he groaned, without looking as I came in. "The blackie-blank thing won't blow."

"What's wrong?" asked the man languidly. "Police watching her, too?"

"Not exactly. The fact is, Rich, there's the mischief to pay."

"You must remember, I said, that I had seen the woman before the morning of the wreck. She was buying her Pullman ticket when I did."

"I thought you were going home to go to bed," he said.

"I really seem a terrible object," she said, looking at her reflection in the mirror.

"You're really a very nice girl," he said, looking at her.

"I had been thinking of you ever since the morning of the wreck," he said.

"I had been thinking of you ever since the morning of the wreck," he said.

"I had been thinking of you ever since the morning of the wreck," he said.

"I had been thinking of you ever since the morning of the wreck," he said.

"I had been thinking of you ever since the morning of the wreck," he said.

"I had been thinking of you ever since the morning of the wreck," he said.

"I had been thinking of you ever since the morning of the wreck," he said.

"I had been thinking of you ever since the morning of the wreck," he said.

"I had been thinking of you ever since the morning of the wreck," he said.

"I had been thinking of you ever since the morning of the wreck," he said.

"I had been thinking of you ever since the morning of the wreck," he said.

"I had been thinking of you ever since the morning of the wreck," he said.

"I had been thinking of you ever since the morning of the wreck," he said.

"I had been thinking of you ever since the morning of the wreck," he said.

"I had been thinking of you ever since the morning of the wreck," he said.

"I had been thinking of you ever since the morning of the wreck," he said.

"I had been thinking of you ever since the morning of the wreck," he said.

"I had been thinking of you ever since the morning of the wreck," he said.

"I had been thinking of you ever since the morning of the wreck," he said.

"I had been thinking of you ever since the morning of the wreck," he said.

"I had been thinking of you ever since the morning of the wreck," he said.

"I had been thinking of you ever since the morning of the wreck," he said.

"I had been thinking of you ever since the morning of the wreck," he said.

"I had been thinking of you ever since the morning of the wreck," he said.

"I had been thinking of you ever since the morning of the wreck," he said.

"I had been thinking of you ever since the morning of the wreck," he said.

"I had been thinking of you ever since the morning of the wreck," he said.

"I had been thinking of you ever since the morning of the wreck," he said.

"I had been thinking of you ever since the morning of the wreck," he said.

"I had been thinking of you ever since the morning of the wreck," he said.

"I had been thinking of you ever since the morning of the wreck," he said.

"I had been thinking of you ever since the morning of the wreck," he said.

"I had been thinking of you ever since the morning of the wreck," he said.

"I had been thinking of you ever since the morning of the wreck," he said.

"I had been thinking of you ever since the morning of the wreck," he said.

"I had been thinking of you ever since the morning of the wreck," he said.

"I had been thinking of you ever since the morning of the wreck," he said.

"I had been thinking of you ever since the morning of the wreck," he said.

"I had been thinking of you ever since the morning of the wreck," he said.

"I had been thinking of you ever since the morning of the wreck," he said.

"I had been thinking of you ever since the morning of the wreck," he said.

"I had been thinking of you ever since the morning of the wreck," he said.

"I had been thinking of you ever since the morning of the wreck," he said.

"I had been thinking of you ever since the morning of the wreck," he said.

"I had been thinking of you ever since the morning of the wreck," he said.

"I had been thinking of you ever since the morning of the wreck," he said.

"I had been thinking of you ever since the morning of the wreck," he said.

"I had been thinking of you ever since the morning of the wreck," he said.

"I had been thinking of you ever since the morning of the wreck," he said.

"I had been thinking of you ever since the morning of the wreck," he said.

"I had been thinking of you ever since the morning of the wreck," he said.

"Suddenly the Man Awakes and Glitches at the Nearest Object."

PROSPECT FOR QUIET NIGHT

Hotel Guest Was to Have Lively Company During the Hours of Slumber.

There is something fearful in too much attention and overdone hospitalities. It is one of its worst forms. One can fancy the contemplation of the great and the good, which happens in the back of the mind of a tourist who stops over the state on horseback stopped for the night at a certain place.

The hotel was a log and slab affair of three rooms and the same number of beds. The proprietor was a proud parent of nine wild and woolly looking sons of under 12 months of age.

"You're a very nice fellow," he said, looking at the man.

"I had been thinking of you ever since the morning of the wreck," he said.

"I had been thinking of you ever since the morning of the wreck," he said.

"I had been thinking of you ever since the morning of the wreck," he said.

"I had been thinking of you ever since the morning of the wreck," he said.

"I had been thinking of you ever since the morning of the wreck," he said.

"I had been thinking of you ever since the morning of the wreck," he said.

"I had been thinking of you ever since the morning of the wreck," he said.

"I had been thinking of you ever since the morning of the wreck," he said.

"I had been thinking of you ever since the morning of the wreck," he said.

"I had been thinking of you ever since the morning of the wreck," he said.

"I had been thinking of you ever since the morning of the wreck," he said.

"I had been thinking of you ever since the morning of the wreck," he said.

"I had been thinking of you ever since the morning of the wreck," he said.

"I had been thinking of you ever since the morning of the wreck," he said.

"I had been thinking of you ever since the morning of the wreck," he said.

"I had been thinking of you ever since the morning of the wreck," he said.

"I had been thinking of you ever since the morning of the wreck," he said.

"I had been thinking of you ever since the morning of the wreck," he said.

"I had been thinking of you ever since the morning of the wreck," he said.

"I had been thinking of you ever since the morning of the wreck," he said.

"I had been thinking of you ever since the morning of the wreck," he said.

"I had been thinking of you ever since the morning of the wreck," he said.

"I had been thinking of you ever since the morning of the wreck," he said.

"I had been thinking of you ever since the morning of the wreck," he said.

"I had been thinking of you ever since the morning of the wreck," he said.

"I had been thinking of you ever since the morning of the wreck," he said.

"I had been thinking of you ever since the morning of the wreck," he said.

"I had been thinking of you ever since the morning of the wreck," he said.

"I had been thinking of you ever since the morning of the wreck," he said.

"I had been thinking of you ever since the morning of the wreck," he said.