AT THE THEATRES.

LYCEUM.
Next week, a record breaker of all dramas "In Old Kentucky," the success of which has been the wonder of the world for years, will again be seen at the Lyceum all next week.

Seventeen years ago, T. C. Dazzy, the author, prevailed upon Bob Litt, to "try it out!" in a stock company playing a summer engagement at St. Paul. It scored a hit at once. Everybody has had good things to say of "In Old Kentucky," and everybody goes to see it whenever it is presented here.

The engagement opens with a Sunday matinee, in addition to which the regular Wednesday and Saturday matinee will be given.

SOFT PROCLAIM THE MAN

Neatness in Attire to Be Commended, Rather Than Desired—Shabbiness Not Desirable.

A clergyman, discoursing in Philadelphia upon the important topic of "Choosing a Husband," advised his hearers that they should look ahead in their choice of a husband, and not be misled by the outward refinement and elegance in their attire. He dwelt upon the relative greatness of moral excellence over sartorial appearance. That advice may be accepted by the student of his flock so far as it goes, but the teacher of youth may fall into error in emphasizing too much the superiority of inward virtues to outward appearance. Assuredly, there is nothing essentially praiseworthy in slovenly attire, nor does viciousness enjoy a monopoly of purple and fine linen. Those who desire to have souls above the tailor, and who look upon those who desire a meed of attention as prone to worldliness, may profit by a little self-examination. It may be that indolence is one cause of their disregard of affairs sartorial. Nothing can be more certain than that shabbiness is no an external evidence of inward superiority in estate, intellect or soul. The unkept exterior is as a sign of inward grace or stalwart mind. Cleanliness may be not a godliness, but it falls to bear its testimony if hidden beneath rags.

THE COMING WAR

All De News Dats Fit to Print From For Prosecuting Attorney In The De Hub ob de World. Hally's Coming Primaries, Looks to Us Like A. L. Moore, of Pontiac. Comick Creating Trouble.

Andrew L. Moore, of Pontiac, has announced that he will be a candidate for the republican nomination for prosecuting attorney at the primaries in September.

Mr. Moore is a native of Oakland County, having been born in the township of West Bloomfield, and has lived in the county all his life. He has been engaged in the practice of law for 15 years, and is recognized as one of the leaders of the bar of Oakland County. He was a member of the recent constitutional convention and in this body made an excellent record, serving on several important committees.

The office of prosecuting attorney in a county as large as Oakland is an important one, and a lawyer of experience can save the taxpayers a large amount of money. For this reason it is fortunate that a man of Mr. Moore's fitness and ability presents himself as a candidate for that position. Another thing that will give strength to his candidacy is the fact that he has a wide acquaintance all over the county. (The Holy Mich.) Advertiser, Feb. 3rd, 1910.

ROYAL OAK SCHOOL NOTES.
The children of the sixth and seventh grades began the study of history at the beginning of the second semester.

Ruth Curry, of Detroit, has been very interested in the grades, and has prepared some little booklets which they are making. They contain little stories of George Washington's life, and the covers are decorated with small bunches of cherries which the pupils colored very nicely.

Several members of the second grade have been absent the past week on account of measles.

Bessie Wilson, of the third grade, has been absent the past week on account of sickness.

The Valentine books were enjoyed by the pupils in the grades.

Judging from the large number of books drawn from the library weekly, the high school pupils are much interested in our standard authors.

Dr. and Mrs. St. John visited the high school Tuesday morning.

Miss Meinke spent Sunday at Albion.

The seniors would greatly appreciate some laboratory tables for their work in physics.

There seems to be a supposition that other studies, as for example mathematics or science, are something more practical than Latin and German. The fact is that they are all equally forgotten after school days are over except by the specialists and only their disciplinary effects remain. In education however, the usefulness of a study is not to be measured by its availability for practical purposes of the day, but by its permanent value in education. Cardinal Newman says "to remove the original dimness of the mind's eye, to strengthen and perfect the vision, to enable it to look out into the world right forward steadily and truly. The majority of men remain boys in their life." The disciplinary power of a subject, therefore, is measured by its ability to develop the powers of the mind. There are four essential educational processes involved in the development: observation, recording things observed, inference from things observed and recorded, and expression. The educated man observes carefully, records accurately, infers rightly, and expresses clearly.

NOTHING MORE THAN A SISTER
Two Good Reasons Why Beautiful Chorus Girl Turned Down Ardent Admirer.

"I cannot marry you!"
The brilliant young chorus girl, her face naturally flushed with the indignation, gazed fondly but determinedly into the eyes of the young man whose wealth was numbered by millions.

"Cannot marry me?" he repeated. "Surely there is some mistake. I offer you equality, and all the financial privileges of a millionaire. You will own your own home, and be able to step from the fountain of eternal gasoline. Why do you refuse me?"

She smiled lightly if sadly as she replied: "I do it for my art. Surrounded by the temptations of great wealth, I fear that I would lapse into an idle creature. No! No! Archibald, it cannot be. My heart is not for sale. I thank you for your kind offer. Believe me I shall always be your true friend. But ask if anything more. Art, always, and for all time! Besides, I am going to marry your father."

And putting her pink slip into his hand she envelope system she passed out into the night—LIFE.

It isn't Fair.
Have you ever heard a child say when he has been punished that "if you had only been kinder to me, I would not have done it at the time, but the child does not forget, and sometimes, even years after, the thought of the injustice may still rankle in his mind."
