BATTERED HELPLESS IN THE FIFTEENTH ROUND BY JOHNSON HE FALLS THROUGH THE ROPES.

NEGRO SMILING AND TALKING ALL THE TIME HAS JEFFRIES IN DISTRESS ALL THROUGH THE BATTLE.

Once Great Master of the Ring is a Child in Johnson's Hands; Boilermaker Helpless in Trying to Solve Grinning Black Man's Defense.

Jack Johnson, the Negro, is still the world's heavyweight champion. He knocked out Jim Jeffries in the fifteenth round at Reno, Nev. The fight was one-sided from the start. The Negro blocked the old champion's blows at every stage of the game and punished him severely in the last five rounds of the fighting.

Jeffries was not counted out. As the timekeeper's hand moved up and down, the towel was brought into the ring from Jeffries' corner. Whether counted out or not, it probably will be recorded as a knockout.

Jeffries was counted out as he hung over the ropes, going down three times. His seconds began crowding into the ring before the timekeeper could count ten.

When the count of seven had been reached and it was evident that the white champion had been finished, at least a hundred people broke through the ropes and thronged in to see the scene from the ring by the officials. The confusion was so great that the referee was unable to see the fight.

Finally after more or less of a struggle that looked for a time as though it would grow into a riot, the ring was partially cleared.

The once great Negro master of the ring, the heretofore never defeated champion of all champions, as the spectators had called him, was still half outstretched and struggling to rise. The Negro conqueror, with his smile still intact, yet not seeming to know, was in his corner surrounded by his friends.

Johnson wants to "shake."

When Jeff was led back to his corner by Corbett, Berger and Jack O'Brien, he was still dazed. Johnson, who was the center of the ring and received the congratulations of the crowd, was breathing normally. He was not hurt in any way.

He said to the champion, "Go over and shake hands with the poor old Jack."

"No," said Johnson. "I don't owe him anything now."

Later he went to Jeffries' corner, but Jim Corbett and Jack O'Brien, who were his friends, held him back.

When he returned to his own corner the crowd was so dense the referee had to beat them back.

The first man to congratulate him in his corner was John L. Sullivan.

Jeff was attended by his physician as he sat in his corner. He sat slumped with his head on his fist and minutes and then was led to his dressing room.

Soon afterwards he was taken to his camp at Moana Springs.

As soon as the men left the ring the crowd began the destruction of the ring. The ropes were cut into bits, the canvas was torn and snipped into small pieces, and even the staples that hold the canvas were unpegged and taken as souvenirs.

The Fight By Rounds.
