

The Eccentric

BIRMINGHAM
WHOLE PER YEAR IN ADVANCE
WHITEHEAD & MITCHELL Publishers

To Our Friends

WHEN TRAINING WITH ANY OF OUR ADVERTISERS, EITHER IN BIRMINGHAM, PONTIAC OR DE-TROIT, IT WILL BE A GREAT PLEAS-URE TO SEE YOU KNOWING
THE FACT THAT YOU NOTICED THIS ADVERTISEMENT IN OUR PAGES. A WORD FROM YOU AT
THE TIME OF TRAINING WOULD HELP AND BENEFIT US
IMMENSELY. WILL YOU BE GOOD AND DO SO?

THE PUBLISHERS.

Entered as second-class matter in the postoffice at Birmingham, Michigan.

Sane Fourth was enjoyed by Birmingham.

Mrs. W. H. Jamieson and daughter, Miss Ruby, left Monday for an extended visit in Canada.

Miss Dot Daniels, of Frederick, Md., arrived Saturday last to spend her vacation at her home here.

Mr. and Mrs. Alex. McCall of Milford spent the 4th. with their brother, John VanEver and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. J. Hupp, are at Montever, Salem, Va. for the summer, where they are enjoying life to their fullest capacity.

Found one flock of ducks in my garden on Southfield avenue. Owner wishing same will kindly pay for this advt and damage done by them. W. H.
Wood.

John Nye is slowly recovering, and left the Detroit hospital Sunday last, and is at home with his mother. Dr.
Shaw is his medical attendant, and we hope soon to report John as o. k.

Notice! The W. H. M. S., will meet with Mrs. G. Simpson, on Daines St., on Thursday the 14th inst. at 2:30 p. m.
All are very cordially invited. A full attendance is earnestly requested. By order of Secretary.

The regular business meeting and supper of the Ladies' Aid society of the Baptist church, will be held Thursday July 14th, at the home of Mrs. S. H.
Rogers. A cordial invitation is extended to all. Supper 10 cents.

Secretary J. E. Hannon, of the Michigan State Agricultural society, has issued the 1910 premium list, which is larger than usual and very complete.
Copies of this publication can be had by writing to Secretary J. E. Hannon, 501 Bowles Bldg., Detroit.

The fact that the demand for kindergarten teachers is great shows that the progressive schools in our country are alive to the needs of the children.
Keep the child off the street! The half day under the eye of the kindergarten teacher is much better than the half day on the street.

Miss Jennie Keyes is a very sick lady at this writing, from an aggravated attack of appendicitis. It is for her decision as to whether or not an operation is to be performed. Her cousin, Mrs.
Jennie Armstrong, of Ludington, is with her. Mrs. William West is her nurse, and Dr. C. M. Raynal is the physician in charge.

Hear Ye! Hear Ye!! Hear Ye!!!
All voters, male or female, are notified and ordered to come to the annual School meeting held at the school house next Monday evening, July 11, and voice your sentiment, and vote for your own monetary interests.
If you are a voter and do not attend you will be sorry for 10 years and then some.

At the meeting of the Oakland Co.
Federal of Women's Club last fall, it was voted that each member of each Club be asked to donate a glass of jelly to the Oakland Co. hospital. The hospital is now open for business, and the Birmingham Woman's Club hopes to send their donations on or before Saturday, July 10. Please leave the can with your name on it, at Parks square before that date.

True merit has its own reward. Over two years Fred Crossman has been inspector and trouble shooter for the Birmingham Telephone Exchange and has did his work thoroughly and well in such a pleasant manner that he has won the good will and esteem of all the Birmingham patrons of the M. S.
T. Co. Such good work is always recognized and when a change at Oxford came, a new manager must be had, as a natural sequence Mr. Crossman was chosen and is now at his post of duty. We sure hated to lose Fred.

The state fair grounds never looked in better condition than at the present time. All the shrubbery and grass is in good condition and the roadways are also in good shape. Secretary J. E.
Hannon anticipates that every available foot of space for concessions will have been sold by Aug. 1. Judging from the way the concessions have been going lately. On all sides are heard exclamations of delight at the coming appearance of the Wright brothers' aeroplanes at the fair. People everywhere have expressed their determination to see these marvels of the aerial world.

School meeting next Monday evening July 11.

Save your money for the Masonic picnic, August 18. Big do!

Miss Mollie Smith, who holds a state position at Adrian, has a month's vacation and is calling on old friends in town.

The ladies of the First Presbyterian church will hold a food sale on Saturday, July 9, at 3 p. m. at Mr. E. E.
Cowan's store.

Messrs. Earl Mudge and Clarence Riffenburg, Sunday at Buffalo and Niagara Falls and took in all the sights and wonders.

Hey There! Pay your Village Tax at Nixon's store, Tuesdays and Thursdays of this month, (July) V. Nixon, Village Treasurer.

The glorious Fourth is a thing of the past. Birmingham's small boy shot of firecrackers, put torpedoes on car track, and everything passed off in our usual safe manner.

FOR SALE—A folding bed (3-foot), single, with best mattress, cost $20; will sell for $10. Can be seen at THE ECCENTRIC office. Call or query or you will lose it.

Mrs. Charles Johnson from Salt Lake, Utah; and Mrs. Carner, of Cleveland, Ohio, are the welcome guests of Mrs.
John Davidson, of Troy. Are the ladies happy? Certainly.

Dr. Daniel Campbell, wife and two little Campbells, all the way from Alpena, are enjoying a delightful visit with their parents, A. W. Campbell and wife and Mrs. Will Castle and family.

Mr. John Davidson of Troy, is at Mt.
Clemens taking baths for a severe attack of sciatica rheumatism. He will take a three weeks treatment and we hope to see him entirely cured when he returns home.

I. C. Terry has a fine position as manager of H. C. Hartway's drug store at New Haven. Everything is booming over there and I. C. is happy and getting to be as fat as a pet cown.
His sister, Miss Rebecca will keep house for both of them.

Oyez! Oyez! Oyez!! It won't be our fault if you don't attend the annual school meeting next Monday evening, July 11th, at the school house. Say, do you want a new school house, a much needed institution? Then be present. If you oppose it! You, too, will be present.

THE HENT. Ten room houses, three blocks from electric, in Birmingham, fine location, plenty of fruit, beautiful shade trees; about one-half acre of good garden, and a good barn. Twelve dollars per month will rent it, or $2.30 will buy it. Ask Whitehead & Mitchell July 29.

A readily signed petition is being circulated up and down Woodward ave., praying the Village Board to reconsider their act ordering a cement seat for bench at the corner of Brown and Woodward. It is not desired to be attended by the residents who live nearest the proposed nuisance.

There is a mandatory state law that requires and orders that every school district to have published a financial exhibit of cash-hand at the beginning of the school year, show cash received, from whom and when, and also an itemized list of cash paid out and for what. This if never done and for punishment in case of neglect to do this a fine of ten dollars can be imposed.

COINSPIRE TO CAUSE NOISE Trespassing of Inanimate Objects When One is Seeking to Avoid Awakening Nearby Sleeper.

Who is it that tells inanimate objects when they are trying to avoid trying to avoid waking one in the next room?
They always know and their shoulders are really horrid to see. Chairs
fall over on no pretense whatever. The mere brush of one's skirt and down they go with an awful crash. One's own innocence is so clear to one, but
the chairs know how difficult it will
be for you to fasten the blame on
them, and with silent chuckles they implicate you a dozen times. Doors bang that at other times cluck by an
unfavorable mousiness. Things at the opposite end of the room creak loudly
quite innocently in the openness with which they dispense with all cause
but their own wicked intentions. After a while one abandons caution and
gives up getting on tiptoe. If excitement is determined to make such a
feared rumple you might as well accept calmly the reputation for thought-
lessness which will be laid at your door with entire justice. Humans are not unkind to inanimate objects.

Who is it that tells inanimate ob-
jects when they are trying to avoid try-
ing to avoid waking one in the next room?
They always know and their shoul-
ders are really horrid to see. Chairs
fall over on no pretense whatever. The
mere brush of one's skirt and down
they go with an awful crash. One's
own innocence is so clear to one, but
the chairs know how difficult it will
be for you to fasten the blame on
them, and with silent chuckles they
implicate you a dozen times. Doors
bang that at other times cluck by an
unfavorable mousiness. Things at the
opposite end of the room creak loudly
quite innocently in the openness with
which they dispense with all cause
but their own wicked intentions. After
a while one abandons caution and
gives up getting on tiptoe. If ex-
citement is determined to make such a
feared rumple you might as well ac-
cept calmly the reputation for thought-
lessness which will be laid at your
door with entire justice. Humans are
not unkind to inanimate objects.

Who is it that tells inanimate ob-
jects when they are trying to avoid try-
ing to avoid waking one in the next room?
They always know and their shoul-
ders are really horrid to see. Chairs
fall over on no pretense whatever. The
mere brush of one's skirt and down
they go with an awful crash. One's
own innocence is so clear to one, but
the chairs know how difficult it will
be for you to fasten the blame on
them, and with silent chuckles they
implicate you a dozen times. Doors
bang that at other times cluck by an
unfavorable mousiness. Things at the
opposite end of the room creak loudly
quite innocently in the openness with
which they dispense with all cause
but their own wicked intentions. After
a while one abandons caution and
gives up getting on tiptoe. If ex-
citement is determined to make such a
feared rumple you might as well ac-
cept calmly the reputation for thought-
lessness which will be laid at your
door with entire justice. Humans are
not unkind to inanimate objects.

Who is it that tells inanimate ob-
jects when they are trying to avoid try-
ing to avoid waking one in the next room?
They always know and their shoul-
ders are really horrid to see. Chairs
fall over on no pretense whatever. The
mere brush of one's skirt and down
they go with an awful crash. One's
own innocence is so clear to one, but
the chairs know how difficult it will
be for you to fasten the blame on
them, and with silent chuckles they
implicate you a dozen times. Doors
bang that at other times cluck by an
unfavorable mousiness. Things at the
opposite end of the room creak loudly
quite innocently in the openness with
which they dispense with all cause
but their own wicked intentions. After
a while one abandons caution and
gives up getting on tiptoe. If ex-
citement is determined to make such a
feared rumple you might as well ac-
cept calmly the reputation for thought-
lessness which will be laid at your
door with entire justice. Humans are
not unkind to inanimate objects.

Who is it that tells inanimate ob-
jects when they are trying to avoid try-
ing to avoid waking one in the next room?
They always know and their shoul-
ders are really horrid to see. Chairs
fall over on no pretense whatever. The
mere brush of one's skirt and down
they go with an awful crash. One's
own innocence is so clear to one, but
the chairs know how difficult it will
be for you to fasten the blame on
them, and with silent chuckles they
implicate you a dozen times. Doors
bang that at other times cluck by an
unfavorable mousiness. Things at the
opposite end of the room creak loudly
quite innocently in the openness with
which they dispense with all cause
but their own wicked intentions. After
a while one abandons caution and
gives up getting on tiptoe. If ex-
citement is determined to make such a
feared rumple you might as well ac-
cept calmly the reputation for thought-
lessness which will be laid at your
door with entire justice. Humans are
not unkind to inanimate objects.

Who is it that tells inanimate ob-
jects when they are trying to avoid try-
ing to avoid waking one in the next room?
They always know and their shoul-
ders are really horrid to see. Chairs
fall over on no pretense whatever. The
mere brush of one's skirt and down
they go with an awful crash. One's
own innocence is so clear to one, but
the chairs know how difficult it will
be for you to fasten the blame on
them, and with silent chuckles they
implicate you a dozen times. Doors
bang that at other times cluck by an
unfavorable mousiness. Things at the
opposite end of the room creak loudly
quite innocently in the openness with
which they dispense with all cause
but their own wicked intentions. After
a while one abandons caution and
gives up getting on tiptoe. If ex-
citement is determined to make such a
feared rumple you might as well ac-
cept calmly the reputation for thought-
lessness which will be laid at your
door with entire justice. Humans are
not unkind to inanimate objects.

Who is it that tells inanimate ob-
jects when they are trying to avoid try-
ing to avoid waking one in the next room?
They always know and their shoul-
ders are really horrid to see. Chairs
fall over on no pretense whatever. The
mere brush of one's skirt and down
they go with an awful crash. One's
own innocence is so clear to one, but
the chairs know how difficult it will
be for you to fasten the blame on
them, and with silent chuckles they
implicate you a dozen times. Doors
bang that at other times cluck by an
unfavorable mousiness. Things at the
opposite end of the room creak loudly
quite innocently in the openness with
which they dispense with all cause
but their own wicked intentions. After
a while one abandons caution and
gives up getting on tiptoe. If ex-
citement is determined to make such a
feared rumple you might as well ac-
cept calmly the reputation for thought-
lessness which will be laid at your
door with entire justice. Humans are
not unkind to inanimate objects.

Who is it that tells inanimate ob-
jects when they are trying to avoid try-
ing to avoid waking one in the next room?
They always know and their shoul-
ders are really horrid to see. Chairs
fall over on no pretense whatever. The
mere brush of one's skirt and down
they go with an awful crash. One's
own innocence is so clear to one, but
the chairs know how difficult it will
be for you to fasten the blame on
them, and with silent chuckles they
implicate you a dozen times. Doors
bang that at other times cluck by an
unfavorable mousiness. Things at the
opposite end of the room creak loudly
quite innocently in the openness with
which they dispense with all cause
but their own wicked intentions. After
a while one abandons caution and
gives up getting on tiptoe. If ex-
citement is determined to make such a
feared rumple you might as well ac-
cept calmly the reputation for thought-
lessness which will be laid at your
door with entire justice. Humans are
not unkind to inanimate objects.

Who is it that tells inanimate ob-
jects when they are trying to avoid try-
ing to avoid waking one in the next room?
They always know and their shoul-
ders are really horrid to see. Chairs
fall over on no pretense whatever. The
mere brush of one's skirt and down
they go with an awful crash. One's
own innocence is so clear to one, but
the chairs know how difficult it will
be for you to fasten the blame on
them, and with silent chuckles they
implicate you a dozen times. Doors
bang that at other times cluck by an
unfavorable mousiness. Things at the
opposite end of the room creak loudly
quite innocently in the openness with
which they dispense with all cause
but their own wicked intentions. After
a while one abandons caution and
gives up getting on tiptoe. If ex-
citement is determined to make such a
feared rumple you might as well ac-
cept calmly the reputation for thought-
lessness which will be laid at your
door with entire justice. Humans are
not unkind to inanimate objects.

Who is it that tells inanimate ob-
jects when they are trying to avoid try-
ing to avoid waking one in the next room?
They always know and their shoul-
ders are really horrid to see. Chairs
fall over on no pretense whatever. The
mere brush of one's skirt and down
they go with an awful crash. One's
own innocence is so clear to one, but
the chairs know how difficult it will
be for you to fasten the blame on
them, and with silent chuckles they
implicate you a dozen times. Doors
bang that at other times cluck by an
unfavorable mousiness. Things at the
opposite end of the room creak loudly
quite innocently in the openness with
which they dispense with all cause
but their own wicked intentions. After
a while one abandons caution and
gives up getting on tiptoe. If ex-
citement is determined to make such a
feared rumple you might as well ac-
cept calmly the reputation for thought-
lessness which will be laid at your
door with entire justice. Humans are
not unkind to inanimate objects.

Who is it that tells inanimate ob-
jects when they are trying to avoid try-
ing to avoid waking one in the next room?
They always know and their shoul-
ders are really horrid to see. Chairs
fall over on no pretense whatever. The
mere brush of one's skirt and down
they go with an awful crash. One's
own innocence is so clear to one, but
the chairs know how difficult it will
be for you to fasten the blame on
them, and with silent chuckles they
implicate you a dozen times. Doors
bang that at other times cluck by an
unfavorable mousiness. Things at the
opposite end of the room creak loudly
quite innocently in the openness with
which they dispense with all cause
but their own wicked intentions. After
a while one abandons caution and
gives up getting on tiptoe. If ex-
citement is determined to make such a
feared rumple you might as well ac-
cept calmly the reputation for thought-
lessness which will be laid at your
door with entire justice. Humans are
not unkind to inanimate objects.

Who is it that tells inanimate ob-
jects when they are trying to avoid try-
ing to avoid waking one in the next room?
They always know and their shoul-
ders are really horrid to see. Chairs
fall over on no pretense whatever. The
mere brush of one's skirt and down
they go with an awful crash. One's
own innocence is so clear to one, but
the chairs know how difficult it will
be for you to fasten the blame on
them, and with silent chuckles they
implicate you a dozen times. Doors
bang that at other times cluck by an
unfavorable mousiness. Things at the
opposite end of the room creak loudly
quite innocently in the openness with
which they dispense with all cause
but their own wicked intentions. After
a while one abandons caution and
gives up getting on tiptoe. If ex-
citement is determined to make such a
feared rumple you might as well ac-
cept calmly the reputation for thought-
lessness which will be laid at your
door with entire justice. Humans are
not unkind to inanimate objects.

Who is it that tells inanimate ob-
jects when they are trying to avoid try-
ing to avoid waking one in the next room?
They always know and their shoul-
ders are really horrid to see. Chairs
fall over on no pretense whatever. The
mere brush of one's skirt and down
they go with an awful crash. One's
own innocence is so clear to one, but
the chairs know how difficult it will
be for you to fasten the blame on
them, and with silent chuckles they
implicate you a dozen times. Doors
bang that at other times cluck by an
unfavorable mousiness. Things at the
opposite end of the room creak loudly
quite innocently in the openness with
which they dispense with all cause
but their own wicked intentions. After
a while one abandons caution and
gives up getting on tiptoe. If ex-
citement is determined to make such a
feared rumple you might as well ac-
cept calmly the reputation for thought-
lessness which will be laid at your
door with entire justice. Humans are
not unkind to inanimate objects.

Who is it that tells inanimate ob-
jects when they are trying to avoid try-
ing to avoid waking one in the next room?
They always know and their shoul-
ders are really horrid to see. Chairs
fall over on no pretense whatever. The
mere brush of one's skirt and down
they go with an awful crash. One's
own innocence is so clear to one, but
the chairs know how difficult it will
be for you to fasten the blame on
them, and with silent chuckles they
implicate you a dozen times. Doors
bang that at other times cluck by an
unfavorable mousiness. Things at the
opposite end of the room creak loudly
quite innocently in the openness with
which they dispense with all cause
but their own wicked intentions. After
a while one abandons caution and
gives up getting on tiptoe. If ex-
citement is determined to make such a
feared rumple you might as well ac-
cept calmly the reputation for thought-
lessness which will be laid at your
door with entire justice. Humans are
not unkind to inanimate objects.

Who is it that tells inanimate ob-
jects when they are trying to avoid try-
ing to avoid waking one in the next room?
They always know and their shoul-
ders are really horrid to see. Chairs
fall over on no pretense whatever. The
mere brush of one's skirt and down
they go with an awful crash. One's
own innocence is so clear to one, but
the chairs know how difficult it will
be for you to fasten the blame on
them, and with silent chuckles they
implicate you a dozen times. Doors
bang that at other times cluck by an
unfavorable mousiness. Things at the
opposite end of the room creak loudly
quite innocently in the openness with
which they dispense with all cause
but their own wicked intentions. After
a while one abandons caution and
gives up getting on tiptoe. If ex-
citement is determined to make such a
feared rumple you might as well ac-
cept calmly the reputation for thought-
lessness which will be laid at your
door with entire justice. Humans are
not unkind to inanimate objects.

Who is it that tells inanimate ob-
jects when they are trying to avoid try-
ing to avoid waking one in the next room?
They always know and their shoul-
ders are really horrid to see. Chairs
fall over on no pretense whatever. The
mere brush of one's skirt and down
they go with an awful crash. One's
own innocence is so clear to one, but
the chairs know how difficult it will
be for you to fasten the blame on
them, and with silent chuckles they
implicate you a dozen times. Doors
bang that at other times cluck by an
unfavorable mousiness. Things at the
opposite end of the room creak loudly
quite innocently in the openness with
which they dispense with all cause
but their own wicked intentions. After
a while one abandons caution and
gives up getting on tiptoe. If ex-
citement is determined to make such a
feared rumple you might as well ac-
cept calmly the reputation for thought-
lessness which will be laid at your
door with entire justice. Humans are
not unkind to inanimate objects.

Who is it that tells inanimate ob-
jects when they are trying to avoid try-
ing to avoid waking one in the next room?
They always know and their shoul-
ders are really horrid to see. Chairs
fall over on no pretense whatever. The
mere brush of one's skirt and down
they go with an awful crash. One's
own innocence is so clear to one, but
the chairs know how difficult it will
be for you to fasten the blame on
them, and with silent chuckles they
implicate you a dozen times. Doors
bang that at other times cluck by an
unfavorable mousiness. Things at the
opposite end of the room creak loudly
quite innocently in the openness with
which they dispense with all cause
but their own wicked intentions. After
a while one abandons caution and
gives up getting on tiptoe. If ex-
citement is determined to make such a
feared rumple you might as well ac-
cept calmly the reputation for thought-
lessness which will be laid at your
door with entire justice. Humans are
not unkind to inanimate objects.

Who is it that tells inanimate ob-
jects when they are trying to avoid try-
ing to avoid waking one in the next room?
They always know and their shoul-
ders are really horrid to see. Chairs
fall over on no pretense whatever. The
mere brush of one's skirt and down
they go with an awful crash. One's
own innocence is so clear to one, but
the chairs know how difficult it will
be for you to fasten the blame on
them, and with silent chuckles they
implicate you a dozen times. Doors
bang that at other times cluck by an
unfavorable mousiness. Things at the
opposite end of the room creak loudly
quite innocently in the openness with
which they dispense with all cause
but their own wicked intentions. After
a while one abandons caution and
gives up getting on tiptoe. If ex-
citement is determined to make such a
feared rumple you might as well ac-
cept calmly the reputation for thought-
lessness which will be laid at your
door with entire justice. Humans are
not unkind to inanimate objects.

Who is it that tells inanimate ob-
jects when they are trying to avoid try-
ing to avoid waking one in the next room?
They always know and their shoul-
ders are really horrid to see. Chairs
fall over on no pretense whatever. The
mere brush of one's skirt and down
they go with an awful crash. One's
own innocence is so clear to one, but
the chairs know how difficult it will
be for you to fasten the blame on
them, and with silent chuckles they
implicate you a dozen times. Doors
bang that at other times cluck by an
unfavorable mousiness. Things at the
opposite end of the room creak loudly
quite innocently in the openness with
which they dispense with all cause
but their own wicked intentions. After
a while one abandons caution and
gives up getting on tiptoe. If ex-
citement is determined to make such a
feared rumple you might as well ac-
cept calmly the reputation for thought-
lessness which will be laid at your
door with entire justice. Humans are
not unkind to inanimate objects.

Who is it that tells inanimate ob-
jects when they are trying to avoid try-
ing to avoid waking one in the next room?
They always know and their shoul-
ders are really horrid to see. Chairs
fall over on no pretense whatever. The
mere brush of one's skirt and down
they go with an awful crash. One's
own innocence is so clear to one, but
the chairs know how difficult it will
be for you to fasten the blame on
them, and with silent chuckles they
implicate you a dozen times. Doors
bang that at other times cluck by an
unfavorable mousiness. Things at the
opposite end of the room creak loudly
quite innocently in the openness with
which they dispense with all cause
but their own wicked intentions. After
a while one abandons caution and
gives up getting on tiptoe. If ex-
citement is determined to make such a
feared rumple you might as well ac-
cept calmly the reputation for thought-
lessness which will be laid at your
door with entire justice. Humans are
not unkind to inanimate objects.

Who is it that tells inanimate ob-
jects when they are trying to avoid try-
ing to avoid waking one in the next room?
They always know and their shoul-
ders are really horrid to see. Chairs
fall over on no pretense whatever. The
mere brush of one's skirt and down
they go with an awful crash. One's
own innocence is so clear to one, but
the chairs know how difficult it will
be for you to fasten the blame on
them, and with silent chuckles they
implicate you a dozen times. Doors
bang that at other times cluck by an
unfavorable mousiness. Things at the
opposite end of the room creak loudly
quite innocently in the openness with
which they dispense with all cause
but their own wicked intentions. After
a while one abandons caution and
gives up getting on tiptoe. If ex-
citement is determined to make such a
feared rumple you might as well ac-
cept calmly the reputation for thought-
lessness which will be laid at your
door with entire justice. Humans are
not unkind to inanimate objects.

Who is it that tells inanimate ob-
jects when they are trying to avoid try-
ing to avoid waking one in the next room?
They always know and their shoul-
ders are really horrid to see. Chairs
fall over on no pretense whatever. The
mere brush of one's skirt and down
they go with an awful crash. One's
own innocence is so clear to one, but
the chairs know how difficult it will
be for you to fasten the blame on
them, and with silent chuckles they
implicate you a dozen times. Doors
bang that at other times cluck by an
unfavorable mousiness. Things at the
opposite end of the room creak loudly
quite innocently in the openness with
which they dispense with all cause
but their own wicked intentions. After
a while one abandons caution and
gives up getting on tiptoe. If ex-
citement is determined to make such a
feared rumple you might as well ac-
cept calmly the reputation for thought-
lessness which will be laid at your
door with entire justice. Humans are
not unkind to inanimate objects.

Who is it that tells inanimate ob-
jects when they are trying to avoid try-
ing to avoid waking one in the next room?
They always know and their shoul-
ders are really horrid to see. Chairs
fall over on no pretense whatever. The
mere brush of one's skirt and down
they go with an awful crash. One's
own innocence is so clear to one, but
the chairs know how difficult it will
be for you to fasten the blame on
them, and with silent chuckles they
implicate you a dozen times. Doors
bang that at other times cluck by an
unfavorable mousiness. Things at the
opposite end of the room creak loudly
quite innocently in the openness with
which they dispense with all cause
but their own wicked intentions. After
a while one abandons caution and
gives up getting on tiptoe. If ex-
citement is determined to make such a
feared rumple you might as well ac-
cept calmly the reputation for thought-
lessness which will be laid at your
door with entire justice. Humans are
not unkind to inanimate objects.

Who is it that tells inanimate ob-
jects when they are trying to avoid try-
ing to avoid waking one in the next room?
They always know and their shoul-
ders are really horrid to see. Chairs
fall over on no pretense whatever. The
mere brush of one's skirt and down
they go with an awful crash. One's
own innocence is so clear to one, but
the chairs know how difficult it will
be for you to fasten the blame on
them, and with silent chuckles they
implicate you a dozen times. Doors
bang that at other times cluck by an
unfavorable mousiness. Things at the
opposite end of the room creak loudly
quite innocently in the openness with
which they dispense with all cause
but their own wicked intentions. After
a while one abandons caution and
gives up getting on tiptoe. If ex-
citement is determined to make such a
feared rumple you might as well ac-
cept calmly the reputation for thought-
lessness which will be laid at your
door with entire justice. Humans are
not unkind to inanimate objects.

Who is it that tells inanimate ob-
jects when they are trying to avoid try-
ing to avoid waking one in the next room?
They always know and their shoul-
ders are really horrid to see. Chairs
fall over on no pretense whatever. The
mere brush of one's skirt and down
they go with an awful crash. One's
own innocence is so clear to one, but
the chairs know how difficult it will
be for you to fasten the blame on
them, and with silent chuckles they
implicate you a dozen times. Doors
bang that at other times cluck by an
unfavorable mousiness. Things at the
opposite end of the room creak loudly
quite innocently in the openness with
which they dispense with all cause
but their own wicked intentions. After
a while one abandons caution and
gives up getting on tiptoe. If ex-
citement is determined to make such a
feared rumple you might as well ac-
cept calmly the reputation for thought-
lessness which will be laid at your
door with entire justice. Humans are
not unkind to inanimate objects.

Who is it that tells inanimate ob-
jects when they are trying to avoid try-
ing to avoid waking one in the next room?
They always know and their shoul-
ders are really horrid to see. Chairs
fall over on no pretense whatever. The
mere brush of one's skirt and down
they go with an awful crash. One's
own innocence is so clear to one, but
the chairs know how difficult it will
be for you to fasten the blame on
them, and with silent chuckles they
implicate you a dozen times. Doors
bang that at other times cluck by an
unfavorable mousiness. Things at the
opposite end of the room creak loudly
quite innocently in the openness with
which they dispense with all cause
but their own wicked intentions. After
a while one abandons caution and
gives up getting on tiptoe. If ex-
citement is determined to make such a
feared rumple you might as well ac-
cept calmly the reputation for thought-
lessness which will be laid at your
door with entire justice. Humans are
not unkind to inanimate objects.

Who is it that tells inanimate ob-
jects when they are trying to avoid try-
ing to avoid waking one in the next room?
They always know and their shoul-
ders are really horrid to see. Chairs
fall over on no pretense whatever. The
mere brush of one's skirt and down
they go with an awful crash. One's
own innocence is so clear to one, but
the chairs know how difficult it will
be for you to fasten the blame on
them, and with silent chuckles they
implicate you a dozen times. Doors
bang that at other times cluck by an
unfavorable mousiness. Things at the
opposite end of the room creak loudly
quite innocently in the openness with
which they dispense with all cause
but their own wicked intentions. After
a while one abandons caution and
gives up getting on tiptoe. If ex-
citement is determined to make such a
feared rumple you might as well ac-
cept calmly the reputation for thought-
lessness which will be laid at your
door with entire justice. Humans are
not unkind to inanimate objects.

Who is it that tells inanimate ob-
jects when they are trying to avoid try-
ing to avoid waking one in the next room?
They always know and their shoul-
ders are really horrid to see. Chairs
fall over on no pretense whatever. The
mere brush of one's skirt and down
they go with an awful crash. One's
own innocence is so clear to one, but
the chairs know how difficult it will
be for you to fasten the blame on
them, and with silent chuckles they
implicate you a dozen times. Doors
bang that at other times cluck by an
unfavorable mousiness. Things at the
opposite end of the room creak loudly
quite innocently in the openness with
which they dispense with all cause
but their own wicked intentions. After
a while one abandons caution and
gives up getting on tiptoe. If ex-
citement is determined to make such a
feared rumple you might as well ac-
cept calmly the reputation for thought-
lessness which will be laid at your
door with entire justice. Humans are
not unkind to inanimate objects.