An editorial paper in the Literary Review of the Chicago Evening Post says that libraries are not mentioned until they are consumed by fire and then everyone exclaims over the valuable books and documents destroyed. It is true, and very true of our own library too. Just stroll up some time and see the splendid books we possess. The library is open Monday, Wednesday, Friday and Saturday from 3 to 8 o'clock.

The Detroit Times was the only newspaper delivered on our streets Wednesday of last week. This was accomplished by Glenn Vorreis, the Times carrier. The Journal tried their best to get the papers into the village. Realizing they could not come on the D. U. R. they hurried them to the Grand Trunk. But they were on the train which was stalled at Parker's crossing for nearly half a day and reached the village the following noon, Thursday. Friday morning Arthur Faint sold newspapers, both Free Press and News Tribunes on the car for a nickel apiece and people were right glad to get them too.

Barnum School is good. Now, why not our Library be called "The Baldwin Library" in honor of its founder, Miss Martha Baldwin. Speaking on the subject, why not christen the old school house? The Misses Lucena and Marie Hunt, daughters of Orson Hunt, of near Clawson are deserving of great credit and praise for steadiness, faithfulness and perseverance in their work. Both are employed by the Mich. State Telephone Co., Miss Marie being the faithful night operator. When you know that these young ladies live four or five miles from their work, going to and from it daily. Think of the weather the past two months! Old thermometer being from zero to 24 below most of all this time. When night approaches and the time for Miss Marie to go to her night duties, she hitches up the faithful old family horse and drives to Birmingham, and Miss Lucena drives back again. Next morning the drive is reversed. Think of it? Some mornings and many of them the mercury stood at 20° below. And these brave young ladies never fail.

Peter Nielson, a day laborer aged 40 on the Pope farm near Pine Lake school house, was instantly killed when struck by a Pontiac car at Circle City crossing at 10:30 Saturday evening. Mr. Nielson with a companion, W. F. Tatre, a carpenter for Slater Bros. of Pontiac, was returning homeward from Pontiac. The young son of Nielson was expected to take his father home from the crossing. Nielson and his companion alighted and it is thought attempted to signal the next south bound car. Nielson was hit and instantly killed, his entire right side of head being crushed. County Coroner Farmer viewed the body which later was brought to the power house at Birmingham, where Dr. N. T. Shaw decided it was not necessary to impanel a jury. Mr. Tatre affirmed they were coming to Birmingham to "pay their taxes." Mr. Nielson leaves a widow and two small sons.
