

Braid, Ribbon and Small Flowers
Mark Hats for Children's Wear

TWO excellent samples of the spring styles for misses are pictured here. Braids of the lacy kind, ribbon and small flowers are the materials used. Shapes, both for misses and children, are much like those shown for grown people, but the composition of these hats so far as trimming and making is concerned are entirely different.

HAS NUMEROUS GOOD POINTS WORK WONDERS WITH TUNIC

Walking Costume That Will Make Up Well in Many Kinds of Materials.

There are many materials well suited to this simple costume. It has the skirt made with a narrow panel down the left side of front, three pieces of satin are inserted from the foot upwards, buttons and loops are also used for trimming.

Closest together. The satin is used for the collar, pocket flaps and cuffs. Hat of straw, of course, with some brilliant details. There are some cordlike weaves, however, and the cotton corduroys will doubtless prove as good for hard service as any of the other members of the corduroy family.

To Mend Holes in Sweater. To mend a hole in a sweater, one year ago for darning, start at the top and chain stitch down the length of the hole with a darning needle, catching each loop securely. You will have a neat piece of work and no one will notice where the hole has been.

Shaded Feathers. Shaded feathers are to be much worn this season. A color combination apparently in high favor is red and dark, bright colors.

Cotton Corduroys. Corduroys this summer will be very much in evidence. So many women like the velvet finished corduroys that they will doubtless be glad to see the same weave introduced into the cotton fabric.

New Handbags. Among the newest handbags are those of suede in dull blue, violet or taupe. These are mounted with silver and bordered with fringe to match the leather.

Cotton Draperies. In selecting draperies for windows and gates, the most fascinating fabric is cotton goods in the dress department. The mercerized fabrics are about the values lend themselves admirably to this purpose.

Historic Blackguards

By ALBERT PAYSON TERHUNE

Guy Fawkes: And the "Gunpowder Plot"

A BIG, bearded man, known as "John Bull," aroused some interest by bidding in at auction the lease of a vault or coal cellar underneath the House of Lords, in London.

Some of the very simple means of destroying the whole lot at one blow. Their plan was to fill the cellars of the House of Lords with gunpowder. Then, on the day when the king and his family should come to open Parliament, to set a match to the powder and blow up every one in the building.

Robert Catesby, Thomas Piercy and six other persons were in the conspiracy. They chose as the principal assassin a brave, heartless soldier of fortune whose real name is said to have been Guido. One of the names in history as "Guy Fawkes." No one knows whether Fawkes was to receive money for his deed or whether he consented to do it through hatred.

Parliament was to meet on November 5, 1605, and most of the royal family were to be present. A signal Fawkes was to light by a ship to London. The conspirators were to kill or capture any members of the royal family who did not change to Parliament's opening.

So, for more than three hundred years after his death, Guy Fawkes has had the honor of an annual "Day of the Gunpowder" which is celebrated and accorded prizes by the other blackguard.

Capt. Kidd—"Sheep or Wolf?"

ASK the average person to name a famous pirate, and the name of Captain Kidd will come to his mind. The chances are two to one that he will name "Captain Kidd."

As a matter of fact, Kidd was a very different man from the pirate, not to be compared in villainy, exploits and noted to forests of captains.

Next, Bellomont and Livingston looked about for the right sort of man to captain the warship. Livingston suggested a "right worthy and honest mariner," William Kidd by name.

Kidd was made a shareholder in Bellomont's company, the thirty-gun galley Adventure and set forth on his pirate-chasing task. He bore with him a commission from the king, naming him as "our beloved and trusty William Kidd."

Idyl of the Wintry Night

Little Wolf's Kindness to Homeless Dog Rouses the Humanity of the Human Night Hawks.

It was a pity the urchin should have been put in the terrifying windstorm. But he tattered clothes, and the few newspapers under his arm, made the weather seem more to him.

His day's toil was over, and presumably he was waiting for a car to convey him to his tenement home. He was whistling, maybe to maintain his courage, when something brushed against his leg.

STILL SEEK TREASURE

PEOPLE OF SCOTCH HIGHLANDS FIRM IN FAITH

Tradition of Buried Wealth Lingering and is Occasionally Made Stronger by Finds—Some Heavy Gold Ornaments Unearthed.

For centuries the search for ancient treasure has been pursued in the glens and wild places of the highlands of Scotland, and sometimes unexpected "finds" have been made.

One pretty piece of gold land under a cliff was pointed out as a good place to dig. The excavation above a great rock had fallen in long past ages. This had to be removed.

It put a bag of powder under the rock to blow it up. The explosion fractured the partly splintered rock and heaved it to one side.

Such heavy ornaments as the bracelet and the brooch, the two of which had been buried, were found. The bracelet was filled with its pendant tears. There is just room for the nose, like the wrist to slip in between the rings and the ends.

One of them—a bird, not a bird—appeared at the residence of Colonel Mackenzie. It was Sunday and the colonel himself answered the knock.

When the job apparently had been finished, the leather merchant inspected it and found the whistling suspiciously looking.

Roary of Gold Nuggets. Sixty-four nuggets of virgin gold made up a roary which Patrick Burke, a Wallace High school boy, has given his wife.

Nature Not to Blame for That. "I don't see anything to laugh at," she said.

Getting Americanized. It does not take long for America's future citizens to adopt American ways. A boy just landed at the Battery, and was telling up Broadway with his big canvas-covered trunk up on his back.

Was Sure He Knew It. The physiology class in a country school was studying about the backbone. Teacher—What are the pieces of cartilage between the vertebrae? A little boy raised his hand.

BABY'S TERRIBLE SUFFERING. "When my baby was six months old, his body was completely covered with large sores that seemed to itch and burn, and caused terrible suffering."

"We tried a great many remedies, but nothing would help him, till a friend told me to use the Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I used the Cuticura Soap and Ointment but a short time before I could see that he was cured."
