

Lovely Moonlight Rose of White or Silver Gauze

The last rose of summer to bloom in the millinery galaxy is the most beautiful of all. A dream of rose, a lovely ghost of all the bright colored beauties which have preceded her. This is the rose of white or silver gauze, made of the fabric folded over and wrapped about a rose center in the semblance of a full blown rose.

In the illustration a hat (which a French woman would be sure to call "ravishing") is shown trimmed with a wreath of gauze roses and delicate grasses. The hat is a fine dead-white chip faced with more in pale silver gray. Besides the wreath of roses, a very full row of white ribbon partially covers the crown, in the trimming it is an adorable line, beautiful in every detail. Nothing could be better for midsummer, or the season, providing the body of the hat is chosen of a material suited to the time of year in which it is to be worn.

Other roses branched into wreaths and bouquets, are made of lightweight ribbons in odd colors. Very high luster in the ribbons makes these ribbons unusually effective and attractive. They are used on mid-season hats of lace and embroidery and on the hat and face caps which are worn in deors and out.

They tightly folded roses continue to give in favor, worn like a bar pin at the throat, over small bows, and jabots. They are made of all the most popular of the summer colors, blue, pink, green, lavender, pale yellow and white.

SMART SLEEVE FROM WORTH

Silk Marquisee Gown Has a Long, Tight Cuff of Black Satin.

Worth has sent out a very smart sleeve in a black silk marquisee gown. It is full from a low shoulder to within an inch of the elbow, made of the marquisee, and there is a long tight cuff of black satin that extends to the hand, which is touched at the top with a thick satin cord, and is gathered at the wrist. There are two crocheted buttons and a half-inch fall of black lace.

The bodice has two gathered scarfs of the marquisee starting from the shoulders, crossing the bust, and finished at an empire waist line in the back with a flat pump which is placed by thick satin cords at the edges. A black satin gridle outlines the front of the bodice, and it runs into a narrow pointed panel for eight inches below the waist. This panel is part of the skirt.

OF MOUSSELLE DE SOIE.

Woman Ran a Street Car.

To have been a real street car conductor for three whole years, performing all the duties that the job implies in the winter and cool in the summer, is one of the first street railway companies in the country. It is the unusual and probably unparalleled exploit of Mrs. Stone, an actress, of the Lynn City railway, now a part of the Bay State Street Railway system.

Mrs. Stone, an actress, one of the popular names among the older actresses, was initiated into the service.

The first equipment of the road consisted of four cars, each of which seated seven passengers on each side. Soon another car, seating nine passengers on each side, was acquired, and for some time thereafter the entire equipment of the road.

Making Artificial Diamonds.

The minute crystals of Moissan were produced by causing the carbon of molten iron to crystallize out under great pressure. Herin in chemistry, Moissan now uses coal gas, or other gaseous carbon compound, and on decomposing it by the action of mercury vapor, obtains carbon in the form of a diamond form and as diamond dust. By introducing a diamond chip as a nucleus another crystal, it is expected, a diamond of considerable size can be brought about. In the experiment made, the mercury was supplied by a long test tube under a coating of water-glass solution and amorphous diamond dust, and the tube was kept at a constant temperature of 1000 degrees centigrade for one month. The brilliant crystals formed, too small for analysis, burned in oxygen like diamonds.

He Couldn't Talk.

At Carnegie Music hall in Pittsburgh one day an old gentleman was pointed out to a girl, with the information that he had once met the great composer, Rossini. The girl was much interested, and she became greatly excited. She sought an introduction to the old gentleman, and she was introduced to him by the girl. "Yes," said the old man, "I met him once."

"You met the great composer of 'William Tell'?"

"How grand! How very romantic! And would you please tell me what Rossini had to say?"

"Well, he didn't have very much to say. He was very shy, and at the time, and you know that doesn't facilitate conversation."

Wanted No Caged Birds.

Under the head, "A Friend's Most Kindness," the Salem (Mass.) News says that a resident of that place, known as Dr. Fanning, is a lover of birds and a student of ornithology, called at his office and left for delivery to the city a box containing a collection of twenty-five birds, mostly migratory, which had been trapped recently with a view to presenting them to a young man interested in the feathered tribe.

It was a kindness "gone wrong," according to the record of the case, for "the all true lovers of birds are not content to see the creatures in confinement, and after taking a good look at them, they would set them free, and fly away, evidently happy at regaining their liberty."

FLIGHT TO THE MOON

ASTRONOMER DOES NOT THINK THE FEAT IMPOSSIBLE.

By the Use of Electrical Force It Can Be Done, and the Time Will, According to Professor Garrett P. Serviss.

On the deck of La Provence, at the beginning of the month of June, a journey for a summer in France, Garrett P. Serviss, the well known astronomer, talked seriously of an airship service to the moon which he believes the future has in store for man.

"I begin to think seriously, not too seriously, now that we have achieved the navigation of the air by mechanical means, that there only remains the necessity of providing a way to exist upon and things to eat for man to go to the moon," he said.

"But we have got to have a new mode of force. Electrical propulsion begins to hint that what force will be when men fly from planet to planet. You understand we have got to overcome gravity and there are only two forces which overcome gravity under certain conditions—pressure of light and electricity."

But I say that the first flying machine to the moon will be based on the principle of the pith ball that flew away from other planets. In other words, steals its living. Purely reproduced by minute bodies called spores and these serve the purpose of spreading the fungus. These spores are very small, light and are wafted about by small currents of air. When a spore falls upon a leaf and is given the right conditions of moisture and temperature, it germinates, enters the leaf and causes the diseased area. After making extensive growth in the leaf, the fungus produces fruiting bodies—myce spores to blow about and causes more leaf spots.

Leaf Spot of Plums and Cherries

By H. R. BULLOCK, Research Assistant in Plant Pathology, Michigan Agricultural College.

Just about the time of the ripening of the fruit of plums and cherries, the fruit grower notices that trees have a ragged look and in many cases, the leaves are dead, yellow, and become a sticky yellow. If a leaf is examined, it is found that it is thickly peppered with small, round spots or blotches. Instead of their being a spot or dead area, there is nothing left but a circular hole in the leaf. These are the spots of plums and cherries or as it is sometimes called, the "shot-hole" fungus disease. The cause of this disease is a fungus and each spot on the leaf is a fungus colony. A parasitic fungus is a plant which gets its food from other plants. In other words, steals its living. Purely reproduced by minute bodies called spores and these serve the purpose of spreading the fungus. These spores are very small, light and are wafted about by small currents of air. When a spore falls upon a leaf and is given the right conditions of moisture and temperature, it germinates, enters the leaf and causes the diseased area. After making extensive growth in the leaf, the fungus produces fruiting bodies—myce spores to blow about and causes more leaf spots.

The loss caused by this fungus is one which is often overlooked by the farmer, although it is usually a severe one. Since this attack, for the most part, does not affect the fruit, it is not so serious as it may seem, and the modern achievement of flying is a step in that direction.

Incidentally, Dr. Serviss does not believe that there are any inhabitants on Mars. "My friend Lowell," he said, "doesn't allow for the fact that Mars is too small to contain any intelligent human beings could not remain on Mars because there probably is not enough oxygen and nitrogen on that planet. The atmosphere of Mars is too small to retain an atmosphere. The atmosphere flies away. Those lines called canals are no more than a natural phenomenon arising from the fact that they look artificial. Their existence is due to the fact that Mars is a very dry planet. There are mountains there and waters spread out in every direction and form connecting lines. The drainage system runs over every direction and the checked appearance of crisscrossing canals."

Control.

To control this disease, one merely needs to apply a fungicide to the leaves and kill the spores or their sprouts before they have a chance to enter the tissues. Bordeaux mixture has been used for a good many years, and in many sections is the control measure relied upon. Recently, self-bolted lime-sulphur has suggested in place of Bordeaux mixture in order to avoid the burning which frequently follows the use of the copper fungicide. The department of agriculture has found that the Japanese varieties of self-bolted lime-sulphur is very satisfactory and is to be preferred to either Bordeaux or self-bolted lime-sulphur. The time of application for plums as taken from the spraying calendar is as follows: Just before the buds swell; immediately after the blossoms fall; and ten days or two weeks later. For cherries, use the mixtures mentioned above just before the blossoms fall; and ten days or two weeks later. It may be necessary to make another spraying like this one for rot and leaf spot.

Full information as to the making of the Bordeaux mixture, the self-bolted lime-sulphur and dilute lime-sulphur is found in the spraying bulletin, Special Bulletin 57 by Prof. J. E. Pustace and Pettit and this will be sent free of charge to anyone who will write for it.

The department of botany, East Lansing, Mich., will identify plant diseases and give advice for control, free of charge.

*Note. Arsenate of lead must be added to control curculio.

Blame Predatory Dogs

Farmers blame the predatory dogs for the decline of the sheep industry in many sections. A single night's raid may destroy the profits of an entire season. Any dog that was in predatory dogs that they should be kept.

Cattle Shoppage.

The cattle shortage is an actual fact. As it takes at least two years to raise cattle fit for market, we may look for the shortage of beef at least 24 months, and perhaps longer.

Howing and Care of Farm Machinery

By H. R. BULLOCK, Research Assistant in Farm Machinery, Michigan Agricultural College.

It would seem superfluous to point out the need of care and protection for farm machinery. There are, however, many farmers who do not give this matter the attention it deserves. They are not given the best of care, they are fully convinced that it is a matter of dollars and cents, or, on the other hand, they are so careless and neglect.

It is difficult to produce figures showing that there is a definite saving in the proper housing and care of farm equipment of the kind mentioned, it has been demonstrated, however, and is yearly being shown that such is the case. In almost any community examples can be found where the period of usefulness of machinery, well protected and cared for, is nearly double that of machinery in farms where it is left to the ravages of the weather, with no system of keeping in order.

WHITE PIMPLES ON HEAD

Ransom, Ill.—"The trouble started on our baby when he was only about two weeks old. Started like little white pimples, but like the kind of blood and matter. His whole head was covered for a few months, then it went to his ear, shoulders, and his neck. It would scratch until he was thick and sticky on his head, while on the other parts of his body it was more like water coming out of the skin. He would scratch until the eruption would be all covered with blood and gradually spread. The least little thing would cause it to come to a head, spread and itch. Never had a full night's sleep, restless all night.

"The sores were horrid to look at. It lasted about two and a half years old. Then we saw an oculist advertisement in the paper to use Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment. We put the Cuticura Ointment on thick at bed time and put a tight hood over his head so he could not scratch the sores. We washed it clean with Cuticura Soap and warm water twice a day, and he was completely cured in three weeks. Mrs. E. F. Sulzberger, Dec. 30, 1911.

HER EVENING TO BLUNDER

Fate Evidently Was Determined to Be Unkind to Fair Diner Making Conversation.

"Can you tell me," remarked a fair lady of her partner at the supper table, "who that exceedingly ugly man is? I mean, the one sitting opposite you?"

The gentleman smiled sarcastically.

"Oh, he's my brother!" he said.

"The lady went scarlet, and her confusion was almost painful.

"I'm so sorry!" she stammered, apologizing profusely. "You see, I did not notice the resemblance between you."

The moment later she turned to her neighbor on her left, who happened to be a woman.

"Do you see that handsome fellow over there? I'm sure he must be my brother," she said.

"He's been watching me, and making eyes at me all the evening. Who is he?"

The other woman turned scornfully and angrily upon her.

"Oh, he's only my husband!" came the biting reply.
