Keeps Your Stove "Always Ready for Company"

A bright, clean, glossy stove is the joy and pride of every housekeeper. But it is hard to keep a stove nice and shiny—unless Black Silk Stove Polish is used.

Here is the reason: Black Silk Stove Polish sticks right to the iron. It doesn't rub off or dust off. Its shine lasts four times longer than the shine of any other polish. You only need to polish one-fourth as often, yet your stove will be cleaner, brighter and better looking than it has been since you first bought it. Use on your parlor stove, kitchen stove or gas stove. Yet a can from your hardware or stove dealer. If you do not find it better than any other stove polish you have ever used, your dealer is authorized to refund your money. But we feel sure you will agree with the thousands of stove-dusting women who are now using Black Silk Stove Polish and who say it is the best stove polish ever made.

BLACK SILK STOVE POLISH

LIQUID OR PASTE
ONE QUALITY

Be sure to get the genuine. Black Silk Stove Polish is worth a dollar more than the ordinary kind.

Keep your grates, registers, andirons and stove pipes black and free from rusting by using BLACK SILK ZINCKING ENAMEL. Brush free with each can of enamel only.

Use BLACK SILK POLISH for silverware, nickel, tinware or brass. It works quickly, easily, and leaves a brilliant surface. It has no equal for use on automobiles.

Especially Notable in Beautiful Millinery

EVERYONE who notices headwear will look twice at these two models in beautiful millinery. They are American designs apparently—creditable enough to New York or San Francisco, or wherever they originated. They are out of the ordinary in shape and fabric, and also in development.

The upper hat is of a gray Lyons velvet very rich in quality. It is the work of a trained milliner and is real millinery. That is, knowledge of the art is apparent in its workmanship.

Like all the best models this season it is plain. The fancy band of feather trimming finished with two pompons at the back, is in the elusive blue-gray of the natural goura feather. The hat is simply a background for setting forth this band. The goura feather is one of the thousands in which nature shows us incomparable beauty in coloring—which art does not even aspire to copy because artists realize how impossible it is to approach the perfection of nature.

In the second picture a high turban is shown covered with a rich brocade in brown and gold velvet. The samo shape is just as effective, covered with one of the various plushes that have become so popular that they are getting scarce. If you have plush prepare to use it now—and find yourself admired and perhaps envied. Plush in coats and even in skirts, in millinery, in neckpieces and muffs, and above all in blouses, is the favorite of fashion.

The plumes which adorn this bit of rich millinery are in shades of brown. They are mounted with a big buckle of cut steel.

This turban is handsome when developed in any of the season's fashionable colorings. In blue or plum on the strange new shades of green, and especially in the lighter shades of gray and in mole it can only be described as exquisite. The plumes are to be shaded in every case and to be in shades and tints of the same color as the body of the turban.

A rhinestone buckle of fine workmanship, or (with some colors) a jet buckle may be effectively substituted for the cut steel. But in nearly every case the steel buckle will be found the best choice.

Either of these turbans will look well made up in black, but there is no very good reason for choosing a black hat for the dressiest wear. It is good policy to own an all-black hat because it affords a change and is often the best choice for some particular occasion or with some particular costume. A black hat should be rather large and of excellent materials.

The small black hat is pretty, too, but lacks the element of the picturesque in most cases. Although the small bonnet-like shapes with quaint strap under the chin reminds one of old-fashioned plates. Little garden flowers in velvet or silk made up into nosegays that nestle about on the brim give a quaint old-timey touch to these bonnets that is especially effective for young faces.

JULIA BOTTOMLEY.

FOR BUSINESS WEAR OR HOME IS THIS BLOUSE

WHETHER the business be that which calls the girl away from home, or the business of housekeeping, here is a blouse that is pretty and serviceable. If one must go to business a fresh, clean blouse is inspiring to begin the day with and it is a comfort to know that when it begins to get grimy and slimpsy it can be consigned to the wash and come out as good as new; perhaps better, as some embroidery is improved by washing and ironing.

And for the home keeper who must or should run out to market in the morning this blouse with a plain tailored skirt and jacket is just the proper wear.

A strong, firmly woven cotton voile is the fabric that it is made of. French knots and two sprays of small flowers in embroidery adorn the front. Plain crocheted insertion, home made, and about one inch wide, with enough edging to match to finish the sleeves are required for this plain and elegant waist.

Side plaits a half inch wide are stitched in at each side of the front portion and reach to the bust line. There are six in each group and they appear on the back of the waist, but not in the same position. They are midway between the fastening and the arms at the back and extend the length of the waist.

The sleeves are moderately long and roomy enough to slip up away from the wrist. They are decorated with two little groups of pin tucks (three in number) on either side the elbow.

Two rows of the lace insertion are set in near the wrist, with the lace edging whipped to the last one. The neck is not provided with the edging because (as it is so firm) it would be somewhat "scratchy" in this position. The neck is close fitting, hence a plain band of the voile provides its finish.

This waist will stand washing every week and outlast a season.

JULIA BOTTOMLEY.

Beefettes.

Cut a pound and a half of round steak about a half-inch thick. Then cut in pieces about six inches long and four wide. Place on each piece a large tablespoonful of dressing made of one cupful of chopped parsley, one tablespoonful of chopped onion browned, a half teaspoonful of salt and two generous dashes of pepper. Roll up the beefettes and fasten with wooden toothpicks. Put a tablespoonful of butter and a cupful of water in a baking pan with the beefettes and bake three-quarters of an hour in a hot oven. Baste often and when done thicken the gravy, strain and pour over the meat served on a hot platter.

Ethereal Corsage Lingers.

The corsage of the afternoon dresses are very like those of the tailor mades, for they are all chiffon, lace and fur, with wide belts or dainty cuatees which can quite well be called waistcoats. Then over these one may wear a little mantelet, draped and pulled up in a cozy way to suit oneself. The mantelet can be in vivid figured velvet, or in any material the wearer may choose, so that it harmonizes or clashes properly with the gown. Big shawl collars of fur make the little cloaks important, and their linings must be chosen with care.

Take Care of the Egg Beater.

Never allow the handle and cog wheels of the egg beater to be put in the dish water, as this causes the grease to be washed off and ultimately ruins the efficiency of the beater. Wash the whipping blades as soon as used, dry and hang away at once to keep it in the best possible condition. Laying an egg beater away in a drawer with knives and other utensils is apt to bend the blades and cause them to catch when in use. It is far better to hang it by itself.

Hint for the Bride.

In all the linen sales, especially those called "manufacturer's samples," which are found so often at this time of year, one finds ends of fine towels in both huck and damask, that appear to have been cut with too short a border to hem. These can be scalloped and make beautiful towels, at generally half the original price.
