Very Special Announcement

You know what the season has been so far—unseasonably warm. While the very low prices we make on Ladies' High-grade Coats cleaned up our stock regardless of the weather, yet it has left the manufacturer with large stocks on hand. In righly large stocks on hand. In reply to urgent requests from a Coat manufacturer to help him out. I min went to see him, and I bought a carge quantity of the highest-grade Coats at such a cut in price company. you would hardly believe; but anyhow I will here try to convey to you the best I can the value I can now offer in the finest Coats

A lot of $13.50 Bouele Coatssplendid styles, very dressy—go at only $5.00.

A big lot, only one of a kind, samples, etc., of the handsomest

Coats, every one worth $20.00 or more, go at only $9.90.

Three lots, including Coats selling as high as $35.00, the richest and most beautiful Coats of the season—genuine Seallette Pfushes, Persian Lamb, Astrachan, etc., go at $14.85.

30 fine Ladies Serge and Silk Dresses, worth $8.00 to $12.50, go at choice for $5.00.

You know our low-selling ex-pense allows us to handle a cutprice purchase at so low a margin, that if the big city dealers bought as low they could not sell n's $3.00 Coats at only $1.67.

Merchant, Living Decade in Mental Daze, Resovers Memory; Asks for Old-Time Friends.

Tarrytown, N. Y.—A real Rip Van Winkle has come to light in the Steepy Hollow country, on which Washington Irving saddled the immortal creation of his pen. The modern instance of truth stranger than fiction is Herman Lovy; who for pears was a prosperous merchant and real estate man of Tarrytown.

Cousin of "Mary."

Canaster, Mass.—Richard R, Powers, who claims close relationship to "Mary," heroine of a nursery rhyme about a persistent little lamb, has just celebrated his one hundred and third anniversary here: "Mary," hone full name was Mary Sawyer, was a cousin of Powers, he avers, and her lamb was one of telling bars on the Sawyer farm in March, 1811.

Says Wife Fed Him on Soap.
New York.—William Mueller, seeking a separation told the court he had truck his wife only once and that as when he returned home and sked for something to eat. His wife lekked up a cake of soap and tried to cross it down his throat. The court or the state of the s
