All the way from Palatka, Florida, Mattie Baldwin writes the Eccentric, as follows: "Have just returned from that wonderful trip up the Ocklawaha river to Silver Springs. This river in a distance of 110 miles makes 1,003 turns. For miles and miles and then some, one sees, along the shores no living thing except snakes and alligators. No cold March winds here but we have frequent and heavy rains. The janitor in the court house here, an old man, says 'he bought the first threshing machine made by the makers of our toons'. We go to St. Augustine soon, and from there to Jacksonville. Yours with Florida flowers and sunshine."
