Best Bird of the Evergreen Farm Tuesday of this week met with quite a serious accident. While driving a mail truck and struck him full in the eye ball. He came at once to Dr. Shaw and both went to Detroit for an examination. Dr. Shaw says the right eye is hope. The sight is not injured but that is what the danger is.

Wonder what kind of liquor refreshments our old friend, Mr. S. H. Rogers is now taking. We have heard of that showed to its users long green and yellow snakes, pink elephants, pineapples, etc., but it takes the Par-O-Old R. R. carrier to see, one day recent ten meadow-larks, all in a bunch, and old thermometer flirring dangerously near the zero mark.

Complying with the State board of health our City fathers have had compiled a complete record of our water system. Our record shows that since the installation of the present water and system there has been nearly 7 miles of water mains laid, 72 fire hydrants placed and we now have 15-6 inch mains varying in depth from 40 to 75 ft. and plenty of water and one of the best pumps on the market.

The Evening News of a recent date had this to say about one of our Bloomfield Hill neighbors:—A banquet was given at the Cafe, Rome in honor of Scott Jones, circuit court stenographer, who resigned after 27 years of service. Judges Brewster, Donovan and Van Zile spoke in appreciation of the work of the retiring stenographer. Mr. Jones was presented with a check for $100 by the county court stenographers. He will retire to his farm at Birmingham.

Speaking about the tight times and a terrible outlook for the future you cannot make the families of the Lambert see it. Last week Fred Lambert saw a hay buyer out to his barn and said: "What will you pay for this hay?" Fred said in his head had decided to take $225 for all the hay there. On asking Fred the price wanted Mr. Fred declined and asked, yankee-like: "What will you give?" The answer came like a bolt: $300. After hanging off for a little while for $25 more Mr. Fred reluctantly took the $300. Mrs. Phil Lambert comes in for mention on a car cactus she has been carrying for over 24 years. The cactus is now in returning thanks, now has 400 blossoms in full bloom and it sure is a beauty, and its only rival is a pink pecanum five feet high and in full bloom.

It takes all kinds of people to buying postage stamps. One day this week a swell lady, a regular Junoesque, a perfect Hebe, we use home in on Bellamy Street, called at the Postoffice window. Miss Golden on duty. Sweetly said this well and beautiful young lady in dulcet tones: "Have you 2c. postage stamps for sale?" "Certainly," replied the accommodating clerk. "I would be pleased to see some," was the next remark. "Just step down this side and I will be pleased to show you my entire line." "Pshaw!" petulantly exclaimed the Miss, "These are old winter styles, haven't you the new Spring styles yet?" "Not yet, and I'm very sorry, but these are all that are present." After looking over several sheets of them very critically she ended the purchase in this manner: "Well, you may let me have this one" pointing with a steeple to the one of the center one of about 100." "The patient lone suffering oblique cleft with a pair of scissors snipped out the one designated, and away tripped the happy buyer.

DESERT CITY OF DESERT

Acoma, in New Mexico, is Many Centuries Old.

Was in Full Bloom in 1542—Has Three Story Houses, Outside Stairways and 100 Feet Wide Streets.

Chicago—Acoma, the Pueblo Indian city down in New Mexico, is claimed to be the oldest city in the western hemisphere. It was in full bloom when Coronado first discovered it in 1542. He found the Pueblo Indians doing then what they are doing today, and doing it in the same fashion, and the houses on the rocky islands that rise several hundred feet out of the plains are the same houses that Coronado's eyes first saw as he came on the Indian city.

St. Augustine, which is often referred to as the oldest city in the United States, was not discovered until 1565, when Menendez came on Florida while chasing a French ship under Rebut. Years before Coronado found it Acoma was a recognized abode of the Pueblo Indians. The Pueblos told Coronado that their first city was on Katzimo, the rocky island three miles away, which is also called the "Enchanted Mesa." Many years ago, they told the Spanish explorer, the original Acoma rested on the top of Katzimo, a great cliff, and all but three women were in the plains below the tableland, a great cliff fell, destroying the trail from the plains to the ancient city. The Indians took this as an indication of the Great Spirit's displeasure over something they had done and to punish them had cut off the path to their city. Instead of clearing the path and returning to their old home on top of Katzimo the Pueblos went to the adjoining tableland and there set up the present city of Acoma, the same city that Coronado visited in 1542.

The Pueblos look at the old city on its rocky site nearly 400 feet in the air as a sacred place, and would to the person caught trying to penetrate its precincts.

The present city of Acoma is on a plateau that rises 350 feet out of the arid plains of New Mexico. The sides of the plateau, a mass of brown sandstone, are almost straight. To get to the top one must climb a crude stairway cut in the stone. On top one will find three or four rows of primitive apartment houses. These houses are three stories high and are built on each side of streets 1,000 feet long. The houses follow the line that seems even straight to the eye. In some of the big cities, since the houses are all of the same type of architecture and are built up close to the line. The First Mausoleum in Asia.

The first mausoleum was made in Asia Minor. Artemisia married her brother, Mausolus, king of Caria, in Asia Minor, about 377 B. C. After his death his body was burned and placed in a tomb of his ashes, and erected to his memory at Halicarnassus a monument, one of the seven wonders of the world, which was termed Mausoleum. The statue of Mausolus was among the antiquities brought from Halicarnassus by C. T. Newton in 167 and placed in the British museum.
