Stop Smoking

Genuine Gas Coke

Is a "smokeless" fuel. Smoke is waste, and a fuel which pours smoke over the neighborhood and spreads soot and dust through your house not only causes hours of extra work, but is not giving the heat you paid for.

Purified Coal

Genuine Gas Coke is purified coal—smoke, tar, gas and soot have been driven out at the gas works, leaving the heat-giving part of the coal in an almost pure state. Consequently you get more heat with far less waste.

Genuine Gas Coke will free you from smoke, soot and coal gas, and give you clean air to breathe, clean walls, clean linen, a clean cellar and a cleaner neighborhood.

With every ton of Genuine Gas Coke you buy more heat, less waste, and a sure relief from smoke and dirt. The best thing to do is to try a ton. Furnace size, $6 per ton, Delivered.

Garrick Theatre.

The Peasant Girl

Every department in the immense theatrical machine controlled by the Messrs. Schubert has been directed for the past three months toward the production of the new opera, "The Peasant Girl," which they bring to the Garrick theatre, Detroit, next week, beginning Monday night, with Madame Emma Trentini at the helm. This is the work of Rudolph Firlm, composer of "High Links," and that other record-breaking Trentini success, "The Fire Fly." Firlm has already proved his particular aptitude in taking advantage of the wonderful range in quality of Trentini's voice. It is said that he has quite outdone himself in this latest composition. In addition to the prima donna, the Messrs. Schubert have selected a truly distinguished cast and have coupled with her another star whose popularity in his own field is equally well established, namely, Clifton Crawford. The two stars should make a particularly happy combination, for Trentini's vivacious, sparkling style contrasts well with Mr. Crawford's droll manner.

Mary Robson, of the Winter Garden forces; takes the role of the alluring dancer and Trentini, herself, is the headstrong maiden who, in the face of her lover's stratagem. There are three acts, with settings of striking beauty. From her previous recitations here, it is expected that Trentini's performance will have something of the social importance that attaches to grand opera.

Avenue Theatre.

Uncle Tom's Cabin.

"Uncle Tom's Cabin" will be reviewed by the Permanent Players of the Avenue theatre, Detroit, beginning with next Sunday's matinee.

The same version of this great American play as was used last season will be presented this year, with an additional scene, picturing the same market of the old days. The play will be mounted on an elaborate scale and with fidelity to historical accuracy.

Roy Walling, who scored such a pronounced success last season in the role of the old squire, will again play that part. Russell Brady will again interpret the part of the terrible Legree. Ruth Amos, whose Topsy was golden opinions from the reviewers, will be seen once more in this part. Corinne Cantwell will play the Eliza Harris and Harry R. Starr, George Harris.

Varying Color of the Eye.

Eye, as we know, are apt to vary considerably in shades of color in the same individual from one time to another. The fact that explains why Wordsworth's familiar description of Coleridge as a noticeable man with large gray eyes does not quite agree with Carly's impression that his eyes were of a light hazel, nor his again with the writer who has them, and who craves, though the orb itself retreated to the innermost recesses of the brain."

The Two Orphans.

"The Two Orphans" has been selected as an appropriate bill for Thanksgiving week for the Broadway theatre, Detroit, and an elaborately mounted, artistically presented and finished production, is promised by the management. There will be matinee every day except Friday, the initial production being given Monday afternoon.

"The Two Orphans," which was written by Demaree, is perhaps the first white slave play of record. The scenes are laid in Paris toward the close of the eighteenth century. Two young orphans come into the city from Normandy. One of them is blind, the other is an exceedingly beautiful girl and is sold into bondage.

The production of "The Two Orphans" will be the same as that which was presented by Kate Claxton for many years. "All the favorites of the Broadway Players will be seen in the cast."

Mitchell's Knock Out.

All his life Editor Mitchell has cared for a secret desire to know just how and what a person felt when they were struck by anything and rendered unconscious, insensible, knocked out or any other term that brings such a real and vivid Tuesday afternoon Post-Editor Mitchell passed through all that the editor has wondered about all his life and is now perfectly satisfied with the experiment, rejoices that it was no worse, and thankful to be about almost as usual. One evening on the street on Fort street Tuesday afternoon BANG! "!!" A noise sounded like a broadside from a dreadnaught, then a roaring like Niagara, followed by steam hissing, spring fuses, crickets, katydids, etc., all singing their respective songs of joy, and a voice was heard to say, "Don't think he is hurt much." The thought came to George, "Wonder who they are talking about." Then again another thought, "If good, it's me." No pain anywhere, only a groggy sort of an atmosphere. Eyes opening, Mitchell found a gentleman at each elbow steadying the wreck. A policeman was busy getting the names of the men in the auto. "O yes! An auto hit him and knocked him out for the count." Finally all decided to go to police headquarters. To Mitchell yet no pain, and really not much interested in the program. Over at the headquarters up before the lieutenant, the men were questioned, names taken, number of auto secured, and then came Mitchell's turn and, lo, there was Theodore Wilde, the lieutenant. Being acquainted with Mitchell forty-five years, he was let go along with the auto and the men; Now Mitchell narcs a game knee, a cut cheek, a black eye, a lump on his head as big as an egg and several little kinks and jolts inside and a dizziness that would wreck, but can still sit 13 two cent stamps for a cent and a quarter if the people insist.
