

FRANCE'S BLACK MEN FROM AFRICA FIGHT THEIR BATTLES

AWAITING A CHARGE OF GERMAN CAVALRY

AN PROGRESSIVE LOCKED

Enhanced By Perfect Physical Health.

By PAUL SCOTT-MOWBRAY, Correspondent Chicago Tribune.

Spain, France—There are two principal categories of foreign troops fighting side by side with the French to defend this lovely land. One is the French from across the channel and the Algerians, Moors and Senegalese from across the Mediterranean in Africa. Another is the French who have followed the French expeditionary force to fight the heroism of Tophet Aftah. But though the exact figures are not yet known, the French African troops fight the battles of Africa as about as numerous as the British—namely, in the neighborhood of 200,000. They are not to be confused with the Senegalese, who some of them are about as numerous as the British—namely, in the neighborhood of 200,000. With yellow heads, his bright red sash, his black turban and his black tunic, his Moroccan campaigner, he said, were more practical jokes to the present bethery, and he told me this to defend his lovely land, from which he had just returned.

"We have a hard time making the men stay down under cover. They will jump out and under way, and about as much as the enemy, occasionally as they did to in Morocco. I have seen a Frenchman, as was bad as any. Except to sleep, he absolutely refused to descend into the trenches, and would stand for hours on the ground, a little to the rear, watching the enemy through his glasses and directing our fire. When we moved forward, he was the first to go, like any Mohammedan, that a bullet would find him when his time came—either sooner or later. But so many of our men paid for their temerity with their lives that he, too, finally consented to come down out of the hill day in the trenches. About three o'clock in the afternoon a shell burst within a few feet of him, and he was killed by the crown, and killed him instantly.

The experience of Motherhood is a trying one to most women and a distinctly an epoch in their lives. No woman in a hundred is prepared or equipped to know how to properly care for herself, or how to properly care for her child. It is a time when the physical system has received a shock from right upon this comes the nervous strain of caring for the child, and a distinct change in the mother's health.

Can't Change Nature Habits. These Africans have by no means been able to shake their old habits just because they have been forced to fight in their white man's battles. All of the other races are French. One of them, however, is the Senegalese, who some of them are about as numerous as the British—namely, in the neighborhood of 200,000.

HESITATES ON BRINK OF WAR

Turkey Apparently Not Enthusiastic to Join in the European Conflict.

French Government has looked to Italy to dominate the Balkans, and in the present crisis with Turkey's army numbering between 700,000 and 900,000 men, it is in a position which cannot go into by continuing her neutral position.

France is also likely to enter the war at once. She will, of course, oppose her ancient ally, the Turks. Rumania probably will do likewise.

Every woman at this time should rely upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a most valuable tonic and invigorator of the female organism.

Two Kinds of African Troops. Roughly speaking, there are two sorts of French African troops—a Senegalese and a Moroccan. The Senegalese are covering Morocco, Algeria and Tunisia, but properly applying only to the last, so called the Crimean war by the Russians, who mistook them for Turks.

Senegalese Worship Fetishes. The Senegalese trillulours, although they are recruited from certain of their military units, are not an altogether different order. There is but one Allah, and Mohammed is his prophet, and they worship him. They worship fetishes. The black men of Timbuctoo and the Ivory coast, where they herd their herds, are the southern end of the Sahara toward the sea.

Report Heavy Losses

Ujenna, Nov. 2. A Belgian official statement issued here today says: The Russian line of retreat toward Posen, the enemy is falling back toward the south and the left wing of his rear guard is now at a single point on the Yser. Much material and an aviation park have been captured.

How the Minister is Treated. Once upon a time a manager asked George Ade if he had ever been taken for a ride.

It was Written He Should Die. It is curious how the oriental fatalism of the men soon spreads their accidental leaders. Last night in quiet case of this town I was convinced with a surfeit of the Moroccan fanaticism. He was a young man of Lyons who had served four years in Algeria and two in Morocco. He was a handsome fellow, well dressed, in his baggy light blue tunic and his jacket of the same color decked Italy to Enter War.

Italy's entry was expected soon to be given second consideration. The minister of war is reported as saying that the Dominion will send 150,000 men if they are needed. Parliament has voted $5,000,000 for the West India. The island of Jamaica, New South Africa has released all regular British troops on duty there, and will endeavor to perform their duty during the war. The Italian has doubled its contingent in the royal fleet reserve, and has sent a body of 20,000 men to the front. India has
