

DEEDS OF THE WORLD'S IMPORTANT NEWS

EPITOME OF THE BIG HAPPENINGS OF THE WEEK.

TO BE READ AT A GLANCE

Home, Both Foreign and Domestic. That Have Interest for Busy Readers, Arranged and Classified for Their Convenience.

Washington

Federal district reserve banks at eight cities were organized by the signing of the certificates of incorporation forwarded from the organization board at Washington. There are five districts, Chicago being the center. Representatives of five banks in the Chicago districts met at the Chicago clearing house and affixed their signatures to the certificates.

President Wilson nominated B. O. Sweeney of Seattle, Wash., to be assistant secretary of the interior at Washington.

Mrs. Wilson, accompanied by Miss Margaret Wilson, will go to Genoa, N. H., for the summer shortly before July 1. It is expected that both the White House and the president will join their mother. The president will make flying week-end visits to Cornish during July and August.

Efforts to reinstate eight West Point cadets dismissed for hazing several years ago failed in the United States senate when Chairman Chamberlain of the military affairs committee reported adversely on a resolution for their reinstatement.

Personal

John H. Early, the leper, has escaped from the federal quarantine at Diamond Head, near Port Townsend, Wash. Early was last seen in Victoria, B. C.

John Lewis Griffiths, the American consul general at London, died suddenly of heart disease.

A. G. Buckley, a prominent business man and former mayor at Harborside, N. J., was strangled by a woman in his throat and stabbed himself 13 times. Physicians say he probably will recover.

Three persons were killed at Kaufmann, Ill., when a Clover Leaf passenger train struck an automobile. The dead are J. P. Stuckwisch and wife and Oscar Neier, all of Marine, Ill.

John Graham, Jr., of the Royal Liverpool Golf club, won the St. George cup at Sandwich, England, defeating the stars of both England and America. Graham's score for the two days made play over the 18 holes was 146.

Final tribute to the late Charles W. Post, manufacturer, was paid when his funeral was held at Little Rock, Mich. Stores, factories, banks and theaters closed, street cars stopped running and business in general was suspended.

An apparent shortage of about ten thousand dollars has been uncovered in the books of Harry W. Lathrop, chief of the University of California for the last eight years and a trustee emeritus in the completed office for five years. Unhappy real estate speculation is said to be the cause.

Domestic

Three members of one family were killed, three others seriously injured and one was severely hurt at Port Benjamin Harrison, near Indianapolis, when an Indiana Union Traction car struck an automobile. The dead are O. Stout, his son, Claude, and his son-in-law, J. C. Shaffer, were killed. Mrs. Claude Stout, her son, Kenneth, four years old, and her daughter, four years of age, were probably fatally injured.

Get what you want when you want it and use the devil to turn the trick if you think it necessary. This admission was made by Charles S. Melton, former president of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad, in beginning a remarkable line of testimony at the Interstate commerce commission inquiry into New Haven affairs held at Washington.

Capt. Edward P. Carson, Troop F, Colorado National Guard, arraigned on the witness stand before the court martial at the Golden rifle range told that the soldiers killed in the recent colony on the night that the colony was burned.

The request of Miss Julia Lathrop of Chicago, chief of the children's bureau of the department of labor at Washington, for more money to carry out the work of the bureau, has been approved by the senate committee on appropriations.

Richard Bond, forty-five, of Mishawaka, Ind., was killed and Samuel Quick, seventeen, and Frederick Bontel, sixteen, were seriously hurt when their automobile was struck by a Grand Trunk Western passenger train at Granger, Ind.

Ten men were killed, another man is dying and three more were thought to be fatally injured as the result of a terrific explosion which wrecked the plant of the Mexican Cane Rubber company in Detroit, Mich.

Aeroplane passenger service across San Francisco bay to Oakland was begun with a regular schedule of flights. Mayor James Rolph, Jr., of San Francisco, was the first passenger carried making the round trip.

Frank M. Ryan, president of the International Association of Bridges and Structural Iron Workers, and 19 other members of the organization must report June 6 to resume the serving of their sentences in Leavenworth penitentiary for conspiracy to transport dynamite on passenger trains, according to a decision handed down by the United States district court at Chicago. The explosive was used to wreck bridges and buildings erected by non-union labor.

Senator Robinson's resolution calling upon Governor Ammons to retire from office was introduced by Senator Adams at Denver, Colo. Senator Adams moved for an immediate consideration, but under the rules the resolution will not be taken up until the request of Senator Robinson.

Two robbers held up five passengers on the California Limited train of the Atchafalaya, Topeka & Santa Fe railroad a few minutes after it left the Dearborn station in Chicago.

Nation, state and city joined at the bier of Sammy Melsenberg of Chicago to honor the memory of the young Jew who died with the first shots fired at Verdun, France, in the battle of the Marne. He was the son of Daniel A. Haggerty, Walter L. Watson and Rufus E. Pearce, in New England; Francis P. Delaney, in Pittsburgh; and John J. Mullen, in New York; and his mother, Mrs. Mullen, in Chicago. He was a member of the Chicago Clearing House and was a member of the Chicago Clearing House and was a member of the Chicago Clearing House.

The United Miners of Ohio issued a call at Columbus, Ohio, for a general strike throughout the state. Strike benefits will be received by 45,000 miners in Ohio.

Mexican War

Hosted and jeered by a small mob of Mexicans and called an assassin by one who alleged that his brother had been killed by order of the ex-minister of the interior, Don Aureliano Uruiza, who held that office and was Carranza's most trusted counselor, was arrested for the second time at Vera Cruz. Don Uruiza was arrested from Mexico City to escape the wrath of Carranza.

Huerta has authorized his delegates to the Niagara Falls conference to promise his resignation, Huerta insists upon important conditions. These conditions are summarized briefly as a reservation to the delegates in the naming of his successor, in which Carranza is to be barred; an American loan to Mexico of $400,000,000; and a 25-year lease of the canal to the United States for naval target practice, at an annual rental of $1,000,000.

President Wilson told the American commissioners, who left Washington for the mediation conference at Niagara Falls, Ont., that the United States government regards the settlement of the Mexican problem in a definite form as a prerequisite to the withdrawal of the American forces from Vera Cruz.

President Huerta's elimination from power in Mexico through his own hands was held at Little Rock, Mich. Stores, factories, banks and theaters closed, street cars stopped running and business in general was suspended.

Activity of Mexican forces beyond the American lines at Vera Cruz has increased during the day. Refugees appeared within the American lines and declared that Mexican cavalry was approaching from the northeast. The refugees expressed the opinion that the Mexicans were preparing to attack the city.

Refugees arriving at Vera Cruz from Mexico City are reported there that six Maderista deputies were shot in the military division of Santiago. The refugees said that many members of the congress were killed in the attack on Huerta's arrest of a majority of the deputies have again been thrown into prison.

Brig. Eduardo Carranza, with the Mexican federal forces of his command, has evacuated Tuxpam, and the richest petroleum fields of the state of Veracruz and the state of Tamaulipas are in the hands of the rebels.

Foreign

The imperial theater at Moscow, Russia, was partially destroyed by fire with $500,000 loss.

Mount Vesuvius again is active. At night a high column of vapor and tongues of flame were coming out of the crater.

Atrocities inflicted on defenseless men, women and children by Turks, Bulgarians, Greeks and Serbians during and after the Balkan wars of 1912 and 1913 are reported in a report made at New York by the Balkan commission of inquiry of the Carnegie endowment for international peace.

The Poule collection of rare books, ornaments and articles of purchase, owned by the late J. Pierpont Morgan in 1909, is to be sold at auction in Paris early in June.

Lieutenant Rohde was flying as a passenger with Lieutenant Kolbe, and both were killed when their monoplane was captured by gunfire. They were taking part in the Prince Henry competition at Darmstadt.

A brief wireless message received at Halifax, N. S., reports the finding by the U. S. revenue cutter, Sebaca, of the missing "bird" of the U. S. navy, which was destroyed by fire in mid-Atlantic just two weeks ago Sunday. Four men were found alive.

FRANCISCO VILLA, MASTER OF CRIME

Bloody Career of Carranza's Chief General.

MURDERER AND PLUNDERER

Starting as a Cattle Thief, He Has Run the Criminal Gamut—Massacres of Prisoners and Non-Combatants.

Gen. Francisco Villa, leader of the constitutional forces in northern Mexico, is more frequently in the public eye than the Spaniard, Carranza, whom he is presumed to serve. His press bureau is far more active and his dash as a commander gives to him the reputation of a news maker, overshadowing for the time being the trail of murder, plunder and outrage which marks his field of operation.

Murder, plunder and outrage which marks his field of operation.

A village's Villa, leader of the constitutional forces in northern Mexico, is more frequently in the public eye than the Spaniard, Carranza, whom he is presumed to serve. His press bureau is far more active and his dash as a commander gives to him the reputation of a news maker, overshadowing for the time being the trail of murder, plunder and outrage which marks his field of operation.

Francisco Villa, leader of the constitutional forces in northern Mexico, is more frequently in the public eye than the Spaniard, Carranza, whom he is presumed to serve. His press bureau is far more active and his dash as a commander gives to him the reputation of a news maker, overshadowing for the time being the trail of murder, plunder and outrage which marks his field of operation.

Francisco Villa, leader of the constitutional forces in northern Mexico, is more frequently in the public eye than the Spaniard, Carranza, whom he is presumed to serve. His press bureau is far more active and his dash as a commander gives to him the reputation of a news maker, overshadowing for the time being the trail of murder, plunder and outrage which marks his field of operation.

Francisco Villa, leader of the constitutional forces in northern Mexico, is more frequently in the public eye than the Spaniard, Carranza, whom he is presumed to serve. His press bureau is far more active and his dash as a commander gives to him the reputation of a news maker, overshadowing for the time being the trail of murder, plunder and outrage which marks his field of operation.

Francisco Villa, leader of the constitutional forces in northern Mexico, is more frequently in the public eye than the Spaniard, Carranza, whom he is presumed to serve. His press bureau is far more active and his dash as a commander gives to him the reputation of a news maker, overshadowing for the time being the trail of murder, plunder and outrage which marks his field of operation.

Francisco Villa, leader of the constitutional forces in northern Mexico, is more frequently in the public eye than the Spaniard, Carranza, whom he is presumed to serve. His press bureau is far more active and his dash as a commander gives to him the reputation of a news maker, overshadowing for the time being the trail of murder, plunder and outrage which marks his field of operation.

Francisco Villa, leader of the constitutional forces in northern Mexico, is more frequently in the public eye than the Spaniard, Carranza, whom he is presumed to serve. His press bureau is far more active and his dash as a commander gives to him the reputation of a news maker, overshadowing for the time being the trail of murder, plunder and outrage which marks his field of operation.

Francisco Villa, leader of the constitutional forces in northern Mexico, is more frequently in the public eye than the Spaniard, Carranza, whom he is presumed to serve. His press bureau is far more active and his dash as a commander gives to him the reputation of a news maker, overshadowing for the time being the trail of murder, plunder and outrage which marks his field of operation.

Francisco Villa, leader of the constitutional forces in northern Mexico, is more frequently in the public eye than the Spaniard, Carranza, whom he is presumed to serve. His press bureau is far more active and his dash as a commander gives to him the reputation of a news maker, overshadowing for the time being the trail of murder, plunder and outrage which marks his field of operation.

Francisco Villa, leader of the constitutional forces in northern Mexico, is more frequently in the public eye than the Spaniard, Carranza, whom he is presumed to serve. His press bureau is far more active and his dash as a commander gives to him the reputation of a news maker, overshadowing for the time being the trail of murder, plunder and outrage which marks his field of operation.

Francisco Villa, leader of the constitutional forces in northern Mexico, is more frequently in the public eye than the Spaniard, Carranza, whom he is presumed to serve. His press bureau is far more active and his dash as a commander gives to him the reputation of a news maker, overshadowing for the time being the trail of murder, plunder and outrage which marks his field of operation.

Francisco Villa, leader of the constitutional forces in northern Mexico, is more frequently in the public eye than the Spaniard, Carranza, whom he is presumed to serve. His press bureau is far more active and his dash as a commander gives to him the reputation of a news maker, overshadowing for the time being the trail of murder, plunder and outrage which marks his field of operation.

Francisco Villa, leader of the constitutional forces in northern Mexico, is more frequently in the public eye than the Spaniard, Carranza, whom he is presumed to serve. His press bureau is far more active and his dash as a commander gives to him the reputation of a news maker, overshadowing for the time being the trail of murder, plunder and outrage which marks his field of operation.

Francisco Villa, leader of the constitutional forces in northern Mexico, is more frequently in the public eye than the Spaniard, Carranza, whom he is presumed to serve. His press bureau is far more active and his dash as a commander gives to him the reputation of a news maker, overshadowing for the time being the trail of murder, plunder and outrage which marks his field of operation.

FRANCISCO VILLA, MASTER OF CRIME

Bloody Career of Carranza's Chief General.

MURDERER AND PLUNDERER

Starting as a Cattle Thief, He Has Run the Criminal Gamut—Massacres of Prisoners and Non-Combatants.

Gen. Francisco Villa, leader of the constitutional forces in northern Mexico, is more frequently in the public eye than the Spaniard, Carranza, whom he is presumed to serve. His press bureau is far more active and his dash as a commander gives to him the reputation of a news maker, overshadowing for the time being the trail of murder, plunder and outrage which marks his field of operation.

Murder, plunder and outrage which marks his field of operation.

A village's Villa, leader of the constitutional forces in northern Mexico, is more frequently in the public eye than the Spaniard, Carranza, whom he is presumed to serve. His press bureau is far more active and his dash as a commander gives to him the reputation of a news maker, overshadowing for the time being the trail of murder, plunder and outrage which marks his field of operation.

Francisco Villa, leader of the constitutional forces in northern Mexico, is more frequently in the public eye than the Spaniard, Carranza, whom he is presumed to serve. His press bureau is far more active and his dash as a commander gives to him the reputation of a news maker, overshadowing for the time being the trail of murder, plunder and outrage which marks his field of operation.

Francisco Villa, leader of the constitutional forces in northern Mexico, is more frequently in the public eye than the Spaniard, Carranza, whom he is presumed to serve. His press bureau is far more active and his dash as a commander gives to him the reputation of a news maker, overshadowing for the time being the trail of murder, plunder and outrage which marks his field of operation.

Francisco Villa, leader of the constitutional forces in northern Mexico, is more frequently in the public eye than the Spaniard, Carranza, whom he is presumed to serve. His press bureau is far more active and his dash as a commander gives to him the reputation of a news maker, overshadowing for the time being the trail of murder, plunder and outrage which marks his field of operation.

Francisco Villa, leader of the constitutional forces in northern Mexico, is more frequently in the public eye than the Spaniard, Carranza, whom he is presumed to serve. His press bureau is far more active and his dash as a commander gives to him the reputation of a news maker, overshadowing for the time being the trail of murder, plunder and outrage which marks his field of operation.

Francisco Villa, leader of the constitutional forces in northern Mexico, is more frequently in the public eye than the Spaniard, Carranza, whom he is presumed to serve. His press bureau is far more active and his dash as a commander gives to him the reputation of a news maker, overshadowing for the time being the trail of murder, plunder and outrage which marks his field of operation.

Francisco Villa, leader of the constitutional forces in northern Mexico, is more frequently in the public eye than the Spaniard, Carranza, whom he is presumed to serve. His press bureau is far more active and his dash as a commander gives to him the reputation of a news maker, overshadowing for the time being the trail of murder, plunder and outrage which marks his field of operation.

Francisco Villa, leader of the constitutional forces in northern Mexico, is more frequently in the public eye than the Spaniard, Carranza, whom he is presumed to serve. His press bureau is far more active and his dash as a commander gives to him the reputation of a news maker, overshadowing for the time being the trail of murder, plunder and outrage which marks his field of operation.

Francisco Villa, leader of the constitutional forces in northern Mexico, is more frequently in the public eye than the Spaniard, Carranza, whom he is presumed to serve. His press bureau is far more active and his dash as a commander gives to him the reputation of a news maker, overshadowing for the time being the trail of murder, plunder and outrage which marks his field of operation.

Francisco Villa, leader of the constitutional forces in northern Mexico, is more frequently in the public eye than the Spaniard, Carranza, whom he is presumed to serve. His press bureau is far more active and his dash as a commander gives to him the reputation of a news maker, overshadowing for the time being the trail of murder, plunder and outrage which marks his field of operation.

Francisco Villa, leader of the constitutional forces in northern Mexico, is more frequently in the public eye than the Spaniard, Carranza, whom he is presumed to serve. His press bureau is far more active and his dash as a commander gives to him the reputation of a news maker, overshadowing for the time being the trail of murder, plunder and outrage which marks his field of operation.

Francisco Villa, leader of the constitutional forces in northern Mexico, is more frequently in the public eye than the Spaniard, Carranza, whom he is presumed to serve. His press bureau is far more active and his dash as a commander gives to him the reputation of a news maker, overshadowing for the time being the trail of murder, plunder and outrage which marks his field of operation.

Francisco Villa, leader of the constitutional forces in northern Mexico, is more frequently in the public eye than the Spaniard, Carranza, whom he is presumed to serve. His press bureau is far more active and his dash as a commander gives to him the reputation of a news maker, overshadowing for the time being the trail of murder, plunder and outrage which marks his field of operation.

Francisco Villa, leader of the constitutional forces in northern Mexico, is more frequently in the public eye than the Spaniard, Carranza, whom he is presumed to serve. His press bureau is far more active and his dash as a commander gives to him the reputation of a news maker, overshadowing for the time being the trail of murder, plunder and outrage which marks his field of operation.

FRANCISCO VILLA, MASTER OF CRIME

Bloody Career of Carranza's Chief General.

MURDERER AND PLUNDERER

Starting as a Cattle Thief, He Has Run the Criminal Gamut—Massacres of Prisoners and Non-Combatants.

Gen. Francisco Villa, leader of the constitutional forces in northern Mexico, is more frequently in the public eye than the Spaniard, Carranza, whom he is presumed to serve. His press bureau is far more active and his dash as a commander gives to him the reputation of a news maker, overshadowing for the time being the trail of murder, plunder and outrage which marks his field of operation.

Murder, plunder and outrage which marks his field of operation.

A village's Villa, leader of the constitutional forces in northern Mexico, is more frequently in the public eye than the Spaniard, Carranza, whom he is presumed to serve. His press bureau is far more active and his dash as a commander gives to him the reputation of a news maker, overshadowing for the time being the trail of murder, plunder and outrage which marks his field of operation.

Francisco Villa, leader of the constitutional forces in northern Mexico, is more frequently in the public eye than the Spaniard, Carranza, whom he is presumed to serve. His press bureau is far more active and his dash as a commander gives to him the reputation of a news maker, overshadowing for the time being the trail of murder, plunder and outrage which marks his field of operation.

Francisco Villa, leader of the constitutional forces in northern Mexico, is more frequently in the public eye than the Spaniard, Carranza, whom he is presumed to serve. His press bureau is far more active and his dash as a commander gives to him the reputation of a news maker, overshadowing for the time being the trail of murder, plunder and outrage which marks his field of operation.

Francisco Villa, leader of the constitutional forces in northern Mexico, is more frequently in the public eye than the Spaniard, Carranza, whom he is presumed to serve. His press bureau is far more active and his dash as a commander gives to him the reputation of a news maker, overshadowing for the time being the trail of murder, plunder and outrage which marks his field of operation.

Francisco Villa, leader of the constitutional forces in northern Mexico, is more frequently in the public eye than the Spaniard, Carranza, whom he is presumed to serve. His press bureau is far more active and his dash as a commander gives to him the reputation of a news maker, overshadowing for the time being the trail of murder, plunder and outrage which marks his field of operation.

Francisco Villa, leader of the constitutional forces in northern Mexico, is more frequently in the public eye than the Spaniard, Carranza, whom he is presumed to serve. His press bureau is far more active and his dash as a commander gives to him the reputation of a news maker, overshadowing for the time being the trail of murder, plunder and outrage which marks his field of operation.

Francisco Villa, leader of the constitutional forces in northern Mexico, is more frequently in the public eye than the Spaniard, Carranza, whom he is presumed to serve. His press bureau is far more active and his dash as a commander gives to him the reputation of a news maker, overshadowing for the time being the trail of murder, plunder and outrage which marks his field of operation.

Francisco Villa, leader of the constitutional forces in northern Mexico, is more frequently in the public eye than the Spaniard, Carranza, whom he is presumed to serve. His press bureau is far more active and his dash as a commander gives to him the reputation of a news maker, overshadowing for the time being the trail of murder, plunder and outrage which marks his field of operation.

Francisco Villa, leader of the constitutional forces in northern Mexico, is more frequently in the public eye than the Spaniard, Carranza, whom he is presumed to serve. His press bureau is far more active and his dash as a commander gives to him the reputation of a news maker, overshadowing for the time being the trail of murder, plunder and outrage which marks his field of operation.

Francisco Villa, leader of the constitutional forces in northern Mexico, is more frequently in the public eye than the Spaniard, Carranza, whom he is presumed to serve. His press bureau is far more active and his dash as a commander gives to him the reputation of a news maker, overshadowing for the time being the trail of murder, plunder and outrage which marks his field of operation.

Francisco Villa, leader of the constitutional forces in northern Mexico, is more frequently in the public eye than the Spaniard, Carranza, whom he is presumed to serve. His press bureau is far more active and his dash as a commander gives to him the reputation of a news maker, overshadowing for the time being the trail of murder, plunder and outrage which marks his field of operation.

Francisco Villa, leader of the constitutional forces in northern Mexico, is more frequently in the public eye than the Spaniard, Carranza, whom he is presumed to serve. His press bureau is far more active and his dash as a commander gives to him the reputation of a news maker, overshadowing for the time being the trail of murder, plunder and outrage which marks his field of operation.

Francisco Villa, leader of the constitutional forces in northern Mexico, is more frequently in the public eye than the Spaniard, Carranza, whom he is presumed to serve. His press bureau is far more active and his dash as a commander gives to him the reputation of a news maker, overshadowing for the time being the trail of murder, plunder and outrage which marks his field of operation.

Francisco Villa, leader of the constitutional forces in northern Mexico, is more frequently in the public eye than the Spaniard, Carranza, whom he is presumed to serve. His press bureau is far more active and his dash as a commander gives to him the reputation of a news maker, overshadowing for the time being the trail of murder, plunder and outrage which marks his field of operation.

FRANCISCO VILLA, MASTER OF CRIME

Bloody Career of Carranza's Chief General.

MURDERER AND PLUNDERER

Starting as a Cattle Thief, He Has Run the Criminal Gamut—Massacres of Prisoners and Non-Combatants.

Gen. Francisco Villa, leader of the constitutional forces in northern Mexico, is more frequently in the public eye than the Spaniard, Carranza, whom he is presumed to serve. His press bureau is far more active and his dash as a commander gives to him the reputation of a news maker, overshadowing for the time being the trail of murder, plunder and outrage which marks his field of operation.

Murder, plunder and outrage which marks his field of operation.

A village's Villa, leader of the constitutional forces in northern Mexico, is more frequently in the public eye than the Spaniard, Carranza, whom he is presumed to serve. His press bureau is far more active and his dash as a commander gives to him the reputation of a news maker, overshadowing for the time being the trail of murder, plunder and outrage which marks his field of operation.

Francisco Villa, leader of the constitutional forces in northern Mexico, is more frequently in the public eye than the Spaniard, Carranza, whom he is presumed to serve. His press bureau is far more active and his dash as a commander gives to him the reputation of a news maker, overshadowing for the time being the trail of murder, plunder and outrage which marks his field of operation.

Francisco Villa, leader of the constitutional forces in northern Mexico, is more frequently in the public eye than the Spaniard, Carranza, whom he is presumed to serve. His press bureau is far more active and his dash as a commander gives to him the reputation of a news maker, overshadowing for the time being the trail of murder, plunder and outrage which marks his field of operation.

Francisco Villa, leader of the constitutional forces in northern Mexico, is more frequently in the public eye than the Spaniard, Carranza, whom he is presumed to serve. His press bureau is far more active and his dash as a commander gives to him the reputation of a news maker, overshadowing for the time being the trail of murder, plunder and outrage which marks his field of operation.

Francisco Villa, leader of the constitutional forces in northern Mexico, is more frequently in the public eye than the Spaniard, Carranza, whom he is presumed to serve. His press bureau is far more active and his dash as a commander gives to him the reputation of a news maker, overshadowing for the time being the trail of murder, plunder and outrage which marks his field of operation.

Francisco Villa, leader of the constitutional forces in northern Mexico, is more frequently in the public eye than the Spaniard, Carranza, whom he is presumed to serve. His press bureau is far more active and his dash as a commander gives to him the reputation of a news maker, overshadowing for the time being the trail of murder, plunder and outrage which marks his field of operation.

Francisco Villa, leader of the constitutional forces in northern Mexico, is more frequently in the public eye than the Spaniard, Carranza, whom he is presumed to serve. His press bureau is far more active and his dash as a commander gives to him the reputation of a news maker, overshadowing for the time being the trail of murder, plunder and outrage which marks his field of operation.

Francisco Villa, leader of the constitutional forces in northern Mexico, is more frequently in the public eye than the Spaniard, Carranza, whom he is presumed to serve. His press bureau is far more active and his dash as a commander gives to him the reputation of a news maker, overshadowing for the time being the trail of murder, plunder and outrage which marks his field of operation.

Francisco Villa, leader of the constitutional forces in northern Mexico, is more frequently in the public eye than the Spaniard, Carranza, whom he is presumed to serve. His press bureau is far more active and his dash as a commander gives to him the reputation of a news maker, overshadowing for the time being the trail of murder, plunder and outrage which marks his field of operation.

Francisco Villa, leader of the constitutional forces in northern Mexico, is more frequently in the public eye than the Spaniard, Carranza, whom he is presumed to serve. His press bureau is far more active and his dash as a commander gives to him the reputation of a news maker, overshadowing for the time being the trail of murder, plunder and outrage which marks his field of operation.

Francisco Villa, leader of the constitutional forces in northern Mexico, is more frequently in the public eye than the Spaniard, Carranza, whom he is presumed to serve. His press bureau is far more active and his dash as a commander gives to him the reputation of a news maker, overshadowing for the time being the trail of murder, plunder and outrage which marks his field of operation.

Francisco Villa, leader of the constitutional forces in northern Mexico, is more frequently in the public eye than the Spaniard, Carranza, whom he is presumed to serve. His press bureau is far more active and his dash as a commander gives to him the reputation of a news maker, overshadowing for the time being the trail of murder, plunder and outrage which marks his field of operation.

Francisco Villa, leader of the constitutional forces in northern Mexico, is more frequently in the public eye than the Spaniard, Carranza, whom he is presumed to serve. His press bureau is far more active and his dash as a commander gives to him the reputation of a news maker, overshadowing for the time being the trail of murder, plunder and outrage which marks his field of operation.

Francisco Villa, leader of the constitutional forces in northern Mexico, is more frequently in the public eye than the Spaniard, Carranza, whom he is presumed to serve. His press bureau is far more active and his dash as a commander gives to him the reputation of a news maker, overshadowing for the time being the trail of murder, plunder and outrage which marks his field of operation.

FRANCISCO VILLA, MASTER OF CRIME

Bloody Career of Carranza's Chief General.

MURDERER AND PLUNDERER

Starting as a Cattle Thief, He Has Run the Criminal Gamut—Massacres of Prisoners and Non-Combatants.

Gen. Francisco Villa, leader of the constitutional forces in northern Mexico, is more frequently in the public eye than the Spaniard, Carranza, whom he is presumed to serve. His press bureau is far more active and his dash as a commander gives to him the reputation of a news maker, overshadowing for the time being the trail of murder, plunder and outrage which marks his field of operation.

Murder, plunder and outrage which marks his field of operation.

A village's Villa, leader of the constitutional forces in northern Mexico, is more frequently in the public eye than the Spaniard, Carranza, whom he is presumed to serve. His press bureau is far more active and his dash as a commander gives to him the reputation of a news maker, overshadowing for the time being the trail of murder, plunder and outrage which marks his field of operation.

Francisco Villa, leader of the constitutional forces in northern Mexico, is more frequently in the public eye than the Spaniard, Carranza, whom he is presumed to serve. His press bureau is far more active and his dash as a commander gives to him the reputation of a news maker, overshadowing for the time being the trail of murder, plunder and outrage which marks his field of operation.

Francisco Villa, leader of the constitutional forces in northern Mexico, is more frequently in the public eye than the Spaniard, Carranza, whom he is presumed to serve. His press bureau is far more active and his dash as a commander gives to him the reputation of a news maker, overshadowing for the time being the trail of murder, plunder and outrage which marks his field of operation.

Francisco Villa, leader of the constitutional forces in northern Mexico, is more frequently in the public eye than the Spaniard, Carranza, whom he is presumed to serve. His press bureau is far more active and his dash as a commander gives to him the reputation of a news maker, overshadowing for the time being the trail of murder, plunder and outrage which marks his field of operation.

Francisco Villa, leader of the constitutional forces in northern Mexico, is more frequently in the public eye than the Spaniard, Carranza, whom he is presumed to serve. His press bureau is far more active and his dash as a commander gives to him the reputation of a news maker, overshadowing for the time being the trail of murder, plunder and outrage which marks his field of operation.

Francisco Villa, leader of the constitutional forces in northern Mexico, is more frequently in the public eye than the Spaniard, Carranza, whom he is presumed to serve. His press bureau is far more active and his dash as a commander gives to him the reputation of a news maker, overshadowing for the time being the trail of murder, plunder and outrage which marks his field of operation.

Francisco Villa, leader of the constitutional forces in northern Mexico, is more frequently in the public eye than the Spaniard, Carranza, whom he is presumed to serve. His press bureau is far more active and his dash as a commander gives to him the reputation of a news maker, overshadowing for the time being the trail of murder, plunder and outrage which marks his field of operation.

Francisco Villa, leader of the constitutional forces in northern Mexico, is more frequently in the public eye than the Spaniard, Carranza, whom he is presumed to serve. His press bureau is far more active and his dash as a commander gives to him the reputation of a news maker, overshadowing for the time being the trail of murder, plunder and outrage which marks his field of operation.

Francisco Villa, leader of the constitutional forces in northern Mexico, is more frequently in the public eye than the Spaniard, Carranza, whom he is presumed to serve. His press bureau is far more active and his dash as a commander gives to him the reputation of a news maker, overshadowing for the time being the trail of murder, plunder and outrage which marks his field of operation.

Francisco Villa, leader of the constitutional forces in northern Mexico, is more frequently in the public eye than the Spaniard, Carranza, whom he is presumed