Yep; it's up to you, tell us what you'll do, will you be a booster or a knocker? Will you be a slouch, sit round with a grouch, occupy the easiest cushioned rocker? Or will you tell the folks to set aside all jokes, and help along our home town like a man; root for our home nine, say they're playin' fine, buy a lot and build soon as you can? Miles Theatre.

An attraction that is sure to appeal to the old soldiers who gather in Detroit next week for the annual encampment has been booked by the management of the Miles theater in "The Days of '61," a comedy playlet with just a touch of pathos. The central figure is an aged veteran who is spending his last days in the national Soldiers' Home at Washington. There is an interesting dialogue between him and his nurse before he recounts, in dramatic fashion, some of the stirring incidents through which he passed, and at the end he sinks exhausted on his cot. The act will be presented by the Jack Gorman players.

The big favorites, Brady and Mahoney, presenting a new collection of nonsense and parodies as the "Hebrew fireman and the chief," are certain of a welcome after an absence of several months.

The Three Lorettas, just booked for 40 weeks over the Miles and affiliated circuits, will offer a comedy musical act, introducing a number of instruments.

Bessie's cockatoos, feathered wonders that show remarkable Intelligence, it is said, will also be a feature.

Other acts will be: Vernon and De Lisle, girls who sing and dance, and Edwards brothers, billed as Herculean athletes. The photo comedies will close.

Garrick Theatre.

Broadway Jones. The Piper.

For the ninth and last week of her summer engagement at the Garrick Theatre, Detroit, Miss Bonstelle has decided to present two plays, offering on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday George M. Cohan's clever comedy conceit, "Broadway Jones," and for the balance of the week a dramatization of Josephine Preston Peabody's poetic and fanciful creation, "The Piper."

Both these plays have been previously presented in Detroit. "Broadway Jones" is written in Mr. Cohan's most forceful and humorous style, dealing with a young man left sudden heir to considerable money. He proceeds to "burn" Broadway but finds the life tires and when his funds run low, he visits a little factory in which he is interested and here the woman in charge instills in him the germ of manhood and combativeness. Another concern is trying to force him to the wall. With the aid of his assistant and a clever newspaper man Broadway Jones puts up a fight and not only wins fortune but the heart and fancy of a girl really worth while.

"The Piper" was played at the Garrick by Edith Wynne Matthison. This fantasy is based on Browning's poem, "The Pied Piper of Hamelin." It is a wonderful love story. There frolics throughout the spirit of play, the endeavor of the Piper to open the hearts of the people to the needs and wants of the children that play, laughter and smiles are not sacreligious, that we are all children of God.

Miss Bonstelle will be seen as the "Piper." Both plays call for the concerted efforts of the company.

ST. JAMES' CHURCH.

The Rev. Mr. Kraft has met with such a cordial reception and with such a generous response to his appeals among the parishioners of late that he feels his declining the call recently offered him by the vestry of St. Thomas church of Rawlins, Wyoming, was not a mistake, and this response coupled with the appreciative attendance at the church services goes a long way to encourage the rector.

The Bishop comes for Confirmation, the last Sunday in September when Mr. Kraft expects to present a number of candidates for this rite, among whom are several grownups.

Services are as follows: The Twelfth Sunday after Trinity—Holy Communion at 6:30 a. m.; 9:45, Sunday school; 10:45, Morning service and sermon.

All who care to come are always welcome.
