this?" "A scene in Jamaica." said the artist.
"Jamaica?" repeated the visitor.
"That's strange. I don't venember ever seeing anything the that in Jamaica."
"Tou have been there thee?" asked the thist that.
"Tou have been there thee?" asked the thist that.
"Then surely you must be acquainted with this place. It is a street scene in the principal town of the island."
The man from Jamaica looked at the artist for a moment as if he thought by must be daft. Then he said:
"I live in Jamaica, and there isn't a street in the town that bears the slightfst resemblance to that piccloared away the mist.

"I see," said the artist, "you live in famaia, L. I."
"Sure," said the other. "Is there another Jamaica anywhere?"
