Garrick Theatre.

That roaring, scintillating farce, "Overnight," will be offered by Miss Bonstelle and her associates at the Garrick Theatre, Detroit, next week. It is from the pen of Philip Bartholomae, to whom we are also indebted for "When Dreams Come True." It is doubtful if a more spontaneous, clean, wholesome farce has been given to the stage since the days of the Hoyt offerings.

Briefly the play tells the story of two married couples on their honeymoon, who meet by chance on a Hudson River steamer, and who, by the blundering of one in leaving his dress suitcase on the train and the attempt of the other to send a telegram at the last minute miss the boat. This leaves the bride of one and the groom of the other to take the trip together. That is the whole plot, but it is readily perceived that this situation can result in nothing else but farce. One act takes place on a boat and the other in an Inn. This is the play which brought forth the phrase of the "milk fed" husband which will be interpreted by Robert Adams, to whom Roxana Lansing plays the opposite as the domineering wife, or bride.

Without a doubt "Overnight" is the greatest laughing sucess of a decade with the exception of "Baby Mine" and last season's sucess, "Potash and Perlmutter."

NEW LAW IN EFFECT

It Is Much Easier to Ship Live Stock Now.

New Quarantine Regulations Made by the Department of Agriculture to Facilitate Transportation of Cattle and Hogs.

Washington, D. C.—The new regulations governing the interstate movement of live stock went into effect July 1, 1914. These changes are designed by the department of agriculture to facilitate the movement of live stock from quarantined areas or from public stock yards. The new regulations, which are known as B. A. I. (Bureau of Animal Industry) Order 210, superseding B. A. I. Order 143, deal with the shipment of cattle from tick-infested areas, with the movement of swine from public stock yards and with the dipping of cattle and sheep for scabies.

Now cattle that have been dipped once under state or federal supervision may be shipped from an area quarantined for ticks to a market center where there are proper dipping facilities and the department of agriculture maintains an inspector. After a second dipping there under his supervision the cattle may be sold for any purpose. Hitherto it has been necessary in times of drought for cattle owners in quarantined areas to slaughter their stock or sell it for slaughter for whatever it would bring. The resulting loss will, it is hoped, be done away with under the new regulation.

The provision permitting, under certain strict conditions, the transportation of hogs from public stock yards into interstate commerce has been made possible by the discovery by government scientists of a serum which renders swine immune to hog cholera. Hitherto all stock yards have been considered as infected with this disease. Now, however, it is considered safe to permit the shipment of hogs which have been treated with the serum and which show no symptoms of suffering from any form of disease. As a result of this it is expected that thousands of light weight hogs will be sent from the stock yards to the country for feeding and fattening and that the country's total production of pork will be greatly increased.

The new regulations also withdraw all permission for the use of nicotine solutions, coal-tar, creosote, and cresol preparations in the official dipping of cattle and sheep for scabies. This step has been made necessary by the difficulty experienced in keeping baths of this nature at a strength sufficient to eliminate all danger of disease without having them so strong as to be injurious to the animals themselves. The department, therefore, decided to insist upon a field test of the strength of all solutions used for dipping. A practical field test for this purpose is available in the case of the sulphid sulphur used in lime in sulphur baths for scabies, and for arsenious oxide in arsenical dips for cattle tick. Official dipping, therefore, will hereafter be confined to the lime-and-sulphur and arsenical baths.

MORE FOREST LANDS

Government Increases Its Holdings in North Carolina.

Ground Approved by National Forest Reservation Commission for Purchase by the United States Includes 13,575 Acres

Washington.—Lands just approved by the national forest reservation commission for purchase by the government include 13,575 acres in North Carolina, of which 11 tracts comprising 12,400 acres are situated in Buncombe, Yancey and McDowell counties in the Mt. Mitchell purchase area. The remaining 1,155 acres are on the Chattanooga river watershed in Macon county and the Savannah purchase area.

These lands are to be acquired in accordance with the general policy under which national forests of good size are being built up in the eastern mountains, both north and south, through successive purchases. Tracts are bought within certain designated areas, of which North Carolina has eight. The lands just approved by the commission bring the acreage of the Mt. Mitchell purchase area up to 66,000 acres and the acreage of that part of the Savannah area lying in North Carolina to 34,800 acres while the total acreage in the state approved for purchase amounts to 344,000 acres.

Most of the lands approved for purchase today are well timbered with valuable woods such as poplar, oak and chestnut, the largest tract which contains over 7,000 acres having a stand of sawtimber and other valuable products of more than 6,000 feet per acre.

The lands approved for acquisition by the government for national forest purposes in the east since the purchase policy was inaugurated in 1910 are now 1,104,000 acres, having a purchase price of, $5,560,000. About $2,000,000 of the original appropriation remains available for further purchases in the fiscal year 1915. The lands favorably acted on to date include 133,000 acres in the White mountains of New Hampshire, while 971,000 acres are in various parts of the southern Appalachians from Virginia to Georgia. Nearly 400,000 acres were approved for purchase during the past year, at an average price of $4.96 per acre.

As areas of suitable size are built up by the government through successive purchases they are placed under a system of organized administration, with local officers of the government's forest service in charge. The first object of administration is to protect the forest against fire, for the twofold purpose of steadying streamflow and increasing timber production. There is, however, provision for all forms of use of the forests not inconsistent with their permanent welfare as sources of timber and water supplies. Some of the areas are already beginning to yield revenue to the government through the sale of timber which can be removed with benefit to the remaining stand. Eventually it is expected that they will prove excellent investments, besides yielding important public benefits.

NAUEN TOWER IS FINISHED

Gigantic Wireless Edifice Designed to Communicate With New York Is Completed.

Berlin.—The gigantic new steel tower of Germany's central wireless and telegraph station at Nauen, near Berlin, from which communication with New York will eventually be established, has just been completed.

It stretches 845 feet into space, but is so lightly built that only 350 tons of steel were required in construction. From the top, which can be reached by both ladders inside the framework and a small wind-driven elevator attached to the exterior, a view extending over a radius of 75 miles is obtainable.

The German Telefunken company, which owns the Nauen station, informs The New York Times correspondent that while it has acquired options on the Goldschmid high-frequency station in Ellvese, in Hanover, which communicates with the American station in New Jersey, it has as yet not decided whether it will avail itself of the option.

Experiments from both Nauen and Ellvese have shown that transatlantic communication is undoubtedly practicable, but the messages so far transmitted have been wholly experimental, and it is impossible at the present to say when either station will be available for regular commercial traffic.

BLIND CAN NOW READ BY EAR

Peculiar Property of Selenium Transforms the Printed Page Into Intelligible Sound Waves.

London.—It is now possible for a blind man to read by the ear, owing to the improvements in an electrical instrument which was first shown by Fournier d'Albe at last year's British association meeting.

The instrument has as its basic principle the peculiar property of selenium, by which the strength of an electric current passing through it varies with the amount of light. It is connected with a telephone receiver, and, according as more or less light falls on the selenium, so does the electric current passing through the receiver vary, and consequently the sounds heard in the receiver vary.

By throwing a powerful light on ordinary printed letterpress, it is possible to differentiate between letters by different sounds in the receiver.

An ordinary newspaper can thus be read by the "type-reading octophone."

Widowed Mother Found Half Naked and Starving—Sons Are Being Sought.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa.—Half naked and weak from hunger, Mrs. Cristiana Mason, eighty-five-year-old widow of a pastor once prominent in this city, was found in the cellar of a vacant tenement at 15 West Jackson street. Two sons, Paul and Henry Mason, are sought by the police to explain how their mother came to be abandoned.

Neighbors heard Mrs. Mason's moans, and upon investigating found her lying on an old cot in the cellar.
