Slow and Steady Wins

Suppose your savings account with us when started shows only a dollar to your credit. Suppose you make a practice of adding to it a dollar every week—every week. Suppose that you continue this for three or four years—See what a nice, tidy sum of money will be yours at the end of that time, counting the interest which your money earns. And the chances are that the schooling which you give yourself in order to deposit a dollar every week during that time will be worth more to you in the future than the money saved. Suppose then you begin this week with a dollar.
