The New Fable of How a Family Jumped Out of Class B into the King Room.

Once there was a side street Quartet consisting of Papa and Mamma and Gordon and Ethel.

The ostensible Stroke was a Graduate of one of those Towns in which the Occidental Hotel faces the Depot and all Trains are met by a Popular Drummer wearing a Black Sweater.

When he allowed his Way into the City, years before, his Assets consisted of a Paper Yacht, a few home-laundered Garments and a small Volume telling how to win at Cards.

In the refined Home where he obtained his Living and Mamma was pained with Cheese, he met the Daughter of the Household. When there was a Ruah she would some times put on all of her Rings and help wait on the Table, although her Star Spangled was to get the Stool at the right Elevation and then tear the Vital Organs out of "Pansy Blossom" and "White Wings."

The young Shipping Clerk used to fly by his Kennel and get himself all Gussied up and then edge into the Parlor and turn the Music for Miss Livingston, who looked to him like Mary Anderson and sounded like Adeline Patti.

When the Blue Envelope hit the Twenty Mark he saw that it would be Clear Sailing, so they began to Hold Heads and he bought the Star Diamond which could be seen half at a certain Angle.

They went to Housekeeping in a stony flat with a Bed that could stand on End during the Daytime and made to resemble a Hook-Cake, and a Plaster-of-Paris Lion on the Mantel.

About the time Gordon was first tethered on the Fire-Escape, the Provider got a Taste of Soft Collateral and began to wear Gold Bracelets on his Clasp.

When Ethel was large enough to take into the Park the Graft had developed until the whole outfit moved to an apartment where all Goods had to be delivered in the Rear. Mother began to ride in Hacks which were not numbered.

So they went along for Years, riding on L Trains, calling up the Janitor to ask for more Heat, trying to find a good Maid and experimenting with new Cereals, all of those Romantic Adventures combining to make what is known as City Life.

They were simply four scrambling Units in the Great Ant-Hill; four tiny Tadpoles in the Great Scodas that dangles up and down the main Throughfares. It seemed that their only Chance to make an impression on the huge and callous City was to stand on the top of the main Cars while the Hearses and the five Carriages moved slowly in the direction of Calvary.

They had had them spotted.

Father was very busy trying to run a Shoe String up to a National Bank. He would rush into his Office and send the boys and girls to the Bank to get their Hairy-Up Wigs and dictate Letters to trembling Myrtle with the Small Waist and keep People waiting outside, just like the Whales who control the Sugar Trust.

He had a Front like the new Pennsylvania Station and the soft personal attention of a Numidian King.

When he was sued in the Courts by a Victim who reported a final look at his Money, the Reporters came around and he was so stiff-necked and so defiant that all of them referred to him as the Millionaire Promoter.

It was easier to be this kind of a Millionaire than to stand for a Second Every Office Building is coagulated with Millionaires who never will be caught until the Tin Box is opened in the Probate Court. Then the Widow will get ready to take Boarders.

As soon as Father was bowled as a Millionaire he was up to Mother to join a new kind of Club and have a Handicup on her Eye-Glasses. She would practice in her Room for Hours at the piano, strapping the Rocking Chair with both Hands and trying to get the real Bostonian sound of "A" as in Lord.

Her Efforts were not in Vain, for one Day when the Club was broken up with the Lady President thumping her Fists and a Copper weighing the Ballot Box, the principal Inauguration was attended in the Public Parks by a Popular Society Matron and Leader in the New Movement among Women. They had to call her that or the Story of her hooking the Ink-Stand at the Recording Secretary would not have been sent to the printer.

When the Blue Envelope hit the Twenty Mark he saw that it would be Clear Sailing, so they began to Hold Heads and he bought the Star Diamond which could be seen half at a certain Angle.

THE VITALS OF NORWAY

"Midnight Sun" at North Cape Attracts Travelers.

For Short Time During Summer There is No Darkness and Scarcely Any Twilight—Harbor of Molde Marvellously Beautiful.

London.—Chief among the marvels that bring travelers from other lands to the country of the Vikings are the "Midnight Sun" at the North Cape and the marvellously beautiful harbor of Molde towards the south. For a short time during the summer in the far North there is no darkness and scarcely any twilight. The wonder and odd magnificence of the midnight sun at North Cape have been described very frequently.

The harbor at Molde, surrounded by snow-capped hills, can challenge comparison with Sydney (Australia), known as the finest in the world. There is a great beauty in the town of Norway, which are today singularly lacking in ancient and picturesque buildings and have a very modern appearance.

The country boasts only one cathedral, that of Trondheim, built by the pious King Olaf (1015-30). This superb Gothic pile was intended to fall into ruins. Northern men never took kindly to the centralization of national churches at Rome and Norway suffered somewhat from keeping aloof from that movement.

The first impression received by the traveler as the ship steams up the silvery waters of the fjords, or deep, far extending sea inlets, in summer time, is one of extraordinary peacefulness and calm. They have reflected the wonderworking power of creative energy, in art, commonly unappreciated, since the world began. The prevailing color of the mountains from the water is a grayish green, with here and there a patch of vivid verdure, protected by a light fence.

"Near such a patch a wooden hut will be seen, called a 'saeter.' These are built for the accommodation of
