SYNOPSIS.

Janita Holland, a Philadelphia young woman of wealth, is on a visit to her uncle, John McNaught, who is the owner of the mountain child's farm...

CHAPTER XII—Continued.

Dawn turned away and went strolling along the woodland path toward a backward glade...

"How do you feel?" she asked. "I don't feel quite all right. I don't feel quite like a friend at all. I think it would help a little."

"I don't know," she said. "I don't know how to help you. I don't know how to help you."

CHAPTER XIII.

In other days had Anne Haven remembered the days in that house when the voices of children and children had been raised in song and laughter...

"I don't know how to help you," she said. "I don't know how to help you."

"I don't know how to help you," she said. "I don't know how to help you."

"I don't know how to help you," she said. "I don't know how to help you."
