

Brothers in Misfortune.

The first bassman had been carried to the hospital with a sprained wrist and a dislocated shoulder.

On the way to the hospital the ambulance stopped to pick up a janitor who had fallen downstairs.

"We must quit by accident," said the tall player. "I am a first baseman."

"And I," said the janitor, "am a first baseman man."

THE PROFESSOR'S STATEMENT.

Prof. Aug. F. W. Schmitz, Thomas, Okla., writes: "I have used your Backache for about twenty-five years. When told I had Bright's Disease in its last stages, I tried Dodd's Kidney Pills.

After using two boxes I was somewhat relieved, and I stopped the treatment. In the spring of the next year I had another attack. I went for Dodd's Kidney Pills and they relieved me again. I used three boxes. That is now three years ago and my backache has not returned in its severity, and by using another two boxes a little later on, the pain left altogether and I have had no trouble since. You may use my statement. I recommend Dodd's Kidney Pills when and wherever I can." Dodd's Kidney Pills, Gifford box at your dealer or Dodd's Medicine Co., Buffalo, N. Y.—Adv.

A Difference. "Hello, old man. I haven't seen you since we went to school together. I hope Fortune has smiled on you." "You might call it that. She's given me the horse laugh many a time."

REAL SKIN COMFORT Follows Use of Cuticura Soap and Ointment. Trial Free.

By bathing and anointing these fragrant, superefficient emollients impart to tender, sensitive or irritated, itching skin a feeling of intense skin comfort difficult for one to realize who has never used them for like purposes. Cultivate an acquaintance with them. Sample each free by mail with Cuticura Address: post office, Dept. XX, Boston. Sold everywhere.—Adv.

His Mistake. "Jones is a self-made man." "I know. He surely made a mistake in not consulting an expert."

Millions of particular women now use and recommend Red Cross Hair Oil. All grocers.—Adv.

A second arrow from Cupid's bow quickly heals the wound made by the first.

Prevent your children from ever having corns, bunions, ingrowing nails, callouses, falling arch, etc.—the result of bending the foot-heel in narrow, pointed shoes.

Do this day—by putting them on Educator's shoes. They are made for the whole family, $1.35 to $5.50. But be sure Educator is branded on sole—without that you have not the orthopedically correct Educator, made only by RICE & HUTCHINS, Inc., 45 High St., Boston, Mass.

EDUCATOR SHOE

YOU CAN SAVE $25 A DAY MAKEPROMPT wonderful fire extinguisher—price $30— that was ever put on the market. Everyone is a prospect. Sell on sight. Big profits. Easy to sell. Many covering one or more counties in your area. You can qualify. Address: Department C. R., Industrial Exchanges, Inc., 1000 Broadway, New York, N. Y.

DAISY FLY-KILLER. The most wonderful fly-killer ever made. Kills all house flies, mosquitoes, and other annoying insects. Made of purest ingredients. No harm to man or animal. Sold everywhere. Price 25c per box. Address: Department C. R., Industrial Exchanges, Inc., 1000 Broadway, New York, N. Y.

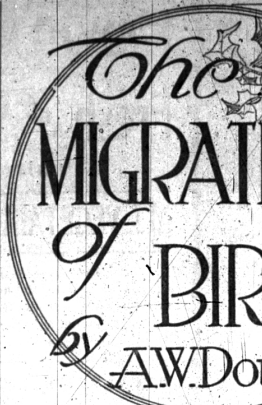

Remember It is wise to get rid quickly of ailments of the organs of digestion of headache, languor, depression of spirits—the troubles for which the best corrective is

Remember It is wise to get rid quickly of ailments of the organs of digestion of headache, languor, depression of spirits—the troubles for which the best corrective is

Remember It is wise to get rid quickly of ailments of the organs of digestion of headache, languor, depression of spirits—the troubles for which the best corrective is

Remember It is wise to get rid quickly of ailments of the organs of digestion of headache, languor, depression of spirits—the troubles for which the best corrective is

Remember It is wise to get rid quickly of ailments of the organs of digestion of headache, languor, depression of spirits—the troubles for which the best corrective is

The Bird or the Cat?

"The Bird or the Cat?" has become a scratching subject which is making the feathers fly in many a heretofore peaceful neighborhood. Bird lovers who have attempted to establish sanctuaries for their birds, and cat owners who have been compelled to revise their visiting lists according to their her royal highness, Tabbykins, hold—away! The bird man who has fought to his sorrow that an wild and cat combination means catastrophe, even while he is taking the mangled body of the little feathered tenant, that he has worked for months to attract, from the clutches of the unaccountable, fluffy, four-footed murderer, will be assailed by the cat-owner, who indignantly declares that while other low-bred creatures may carry a bear on the game preserve, the dandified darling Fluffkins is too well bred and too well fed to do such a deed!

Naturalists statistically rank the feline domestic as third in the bird-destroying agents, holding every morning cat responsible for the lives of at least fifty birds a year. A game warden who reports 200 quail killed by a mother cat in less than a year on the game preserve advocates the wholesale extermination of cats under the supervision of a game warden.

The value of the cat to catch mice or rats is disputed by a bird enthusiast, who maintains that this Nero of the animal world will hush forever the joyous song of any little feathered chorister simply for the sake of a mouse or rat, and will catch mice or rats only as a last resort to keep from straying.

The most serious arrangement against both the domestic and stray cat is made by the boards of health, who have found these animals to be carriers of scarlet fever, diphtheria and other diseases most fatal to their human associates.

A successful business man says that if a cat kills a little chicken in the yard of the average farmer, the cat is made away with. If the four-footed hunter comes home with a quail, he is petted; yet the quail is of greater economic value to the farmer than is either the cat or the chicken. In fact, the small game is more valuable than strays or strays left on abandoned farms should be put out of the way.

A cat-owner, whose feline provokers may be laid permanently to rest, is advised to get an adjunct to every bird sanctuary by a bird conservationist, who has tried, without success, various methods to prevent cats from killing helpless song and insectivorous birds so valuable to man. Another long sufferer from cat depredations considers a near-by deeper bath, in which to immerse the cat, a valuable means of maintaining order in which a bird bath may be maintained.

Some friends of the birds think to license the cat and hold the owner responsible for his pet's destructiveness who are not only the breeding cat, but also the kitten, question. They conclude that if a person pays for a license he will not be so er has brought a tin bucket aboard with him, and into this bucket he places his "black" of the mixture after giving the bucket a liberal quantity of butter. Then the cover is placed over the whole.

On duty he has his bucket with him, placing it under the shade of his dress. By the time he watches is thoroughly cooked and is carried on by the stoker.

The Bird Or the Cat?

"The Bird or the Cat?" has become a scratching subject which is making the feathers fly in many a heretofore peaceful neighborhood. Bird lovers who have attempted to establish sanctuaries for their birds, and cat owners who have been compelled to revise their visiting lists according to their her royal highness, Tabbykins, hold—away! The bird man who has fought to his sorrow that an wild and cat combination means catastrophe, even while he is taking the mangled body of the little feathered tenant, that he has worked for months to attract, from the clutches of the unaccountable, fluffy, four-footed murderer, will be assailed by the cat-owner, who indignantly declares that while other low-bred creatures may carry a bear on the game preserve, the dandified darling Fluffkins is too well bred and too well fed to do such a deed!

Naturalists statistically rank the feline domestic as third in the bird-destroying agents, holding every morning cat responsible for the lives of at least fifty birds a year. A game warden who reports 200 quail killed by a mother cat in less than a year on the game preserve advocates the wholesale extermination of cats under the supervision of a game warden.

The value of the cat to catch mice or rats is disputed by a bird enthusiast, who maintains that this Nero of the animal world will hush forever the joyous song of any little feathered chorister simply for the sake of a mouse or rat, and will catch mice or rats only as a last resort to keep from straying.

The most serious arrangement against both the domestic and stray cat is made by the boards of health, who have found these animals to be carriers of scarlet fever, diphtheria and other diseases most fatal to their human associates.

A successful business man says that if a cat kills a little chicken in the yard of the average farmer, the cat is made away with. If the four-footed hunter comes home with a quail, he is petted; yet the quail is of greater economic value to the farmer than is either the cat or the chicken. In fact, the small game is more valuable than strays or strays left on abandoned farms should be put out of the way.

A cat-owner, whose feline provokers may be laid permanently to rest, is advised to get an adjunct to every bird sanctuary by a bird conservationist, who has tried, without success, various methods to prevent cats from killing helpless song and insectivorous birds so valuable to man. Another long sufferer from cat depredations considers a near-by deeper bath, in which to immerse the cat, a valuable means of maintaining order in which a bird bath may be maintained.

Some friends of the birds think to license the cat and hold the owner responsible for his pet's destructiveness who are not only the breeding cat, but also the kitten, question. They conclude that if a person pays for a license he will not be so er has brought a tin bucket aboard with him, and into this bucket he places his "black" of the mixture after giving the bucket a liberal quantity of butter. Then the cover is placed over the whole.

On duty he has his bucket with him, placing it under the shade of his dress. By the time he watches is thoroughly cooked and is carried on by the stoker.

The Bird Or the Cat?

"The Bird or the Cat?" has become a scratching subject which is making the feathers fly in many a heretofore peaceful neighborhood. Bird lovers who have attempted to establish sanctuaries for their birds, and cat owners who have been compelled to revise their visiting lists according to their her royal highness, Tabbykins, hold—away! The bird man who has fought to his sorrow that an wild and cat combination means catastrophe, even while he is taking the mangled body of the little feathered tenant, that he has worked for months to attract, from the clutches of the unaccountable, fluffy, four-footed murderer, will be assailed by the cat-owner, who indignantly declares that while other low-bred creatures may carry a bear on the game preserve, the dandified darling Fluffkins is too well bred and too well fed to do such a deed!

Naturalists statistically rank the feline domestic as third in the bird-destroying agents, holding every morning cat responsible for the lives of at least fifty birds a year. A game warden who reports 200 quail killed by a mother cat in less than a year on the game preserve advocates the wholesale extermination of cats under the supervision of a game warden.

The value of the cat to catch mice or rats is disputed by a bird enthusiast, who maintains that this Nero of the animal world will hush forever the joyous song of any little feathered chorister simply for the sake of a mouse or rat, and will catch mice or rats only as a last resort to keep from straying.

The most serious arrangement against both the domestic and stray cat is made by the boards of health, who have found these animals to be carriers of scarlet fever, diphtheria and other diseases most fatal to their human associates.

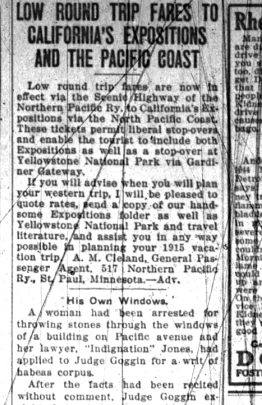

A successful business man says that if a cat kills a little chicken in the yard of the average farmer, the cat is made away with. If the four-footed hunter comes home with a quail, he is petted; yet the quail is of greater economic value to the farmer than is either the cat or the chicken. In fact, the small game is more valuable than strays or strays left on abandoned farms should be put out of the way.

A cat-owner, whose feline provokers may be laid permanently to rest, is advised to get an adjunct to every bird sanctuary by a bird conservationist, who has tried, without success, various methods to prevent cats from killing helpless song and insectivorous birds so valuable to man. Another long sufferer from cat depredations considers a near-by deeper bath, in which to immerse the cat, a valuable means of maintaining order in which a bird bath may be maintained.

Some friends of the birds think to license the cat and hold the owner responsible for his pet's destructiveness who are not only the breeding cat, but also the kitten, question. They conclude that if a person pays for a license he will not be so er has brought a tin bucket aboard with him, and into this bucket he places his "black" of the mixture after giving the bucket a liberal quantity of butter. Then the cover is placed over the whole.

On duty he has his bucket with him, placing it under the shade of his dress. By the time he watches is thoroughly cooked and is carried on by the stoker.

The Bird Or the Cat?

"The Bird or the Cat?" has become a scratching subject which is making the feathers fly in many a heretofore peaceful neighborhood. Bird lovers who have attempted to establish sanctuaries for their birds, and cat owners who have been compelled to revise their visiting lists according to their her royal highness, Tabbykins, hold—away! The bird man who has fought to his sorrow that an wild and cat combination means catastrophe, even while he is taking the mangled body of the little feathered tenant, that he has worked for months to attract, from the clutches of the unaccountable, fluffy, four-footed murderer, will be assailed by the cat-owner, who indignantly declares that while other low-bred creatures may carry a bear on the game preserve, the dandified darling Fluffkins is too well bred and too well fed to do such a deed!

Naturalists statistically rank the feline domestic as third in the bird-destroying agents, holding every morning cat responsible for the lives of at least fifty birds a year. A game warden who reports 200 quail killed by a mother cat in less than a year on the game preserve advocates the wholesale extermination of cats under the supervision of a game warden.

The value of the cat to catch mice or rats is disputed by a bird enthusiast, who maintains that this Nero of the animal world will hush forever the joyous song of any little feathered chorister simply for the sake of a mouse or rat, and will catch mice or rats only as a last resort to keep from straying.

The most serious arrangement against both the domestic and stray cat is made by the boards of health, who have found these animals to be carriers of scarlet fever, diphtheria and other diseases most fatal to their human associates.

A successful business man says that if a cat kills a little chicken in the yard of the average farmer, the cat is made away with. If the four-footed hunter comes home with a quail, he is petted; yet the quail is of greater economic value to the farmer than is either the cat or the chicken. In fact, the small game is more valuable than strays or strays left on abandoned farms should be put out of the way.

A cat-owner, whose feline provokers may be laid permanently to rest, is advised to get an adjunct to every bird sanctuary by a bird conservationist, who has tried, without success, various methods to prevent cats from killing helpless song and insectivorous birds so valuable to man. Another long sufferer from cat depredations considers a near-by deeper bath, in which to immerse the cat, a valuable means of maintaining order in which a bird bath may be maintained.

Some friends of the birds think to license the cat and hold the owner responsible for his pet's destructiveness who are not only the breeding cat, but also the kitten, question. They conclude that if a person pays for a license he will not be so er has brought a tin bucket aboard with him, and into this bucket he places his "black" of the mixture after giving the bucket a liberal quantity of butter. Then the cover is placed over the whole.

On duty he has his bucket with him, placing it under the shade of his dress. By the time he watches is thoroughly cooked and is carried on by the stoker.

LOW ROUND TRIP FARES TO CALIFORNIA'S EXPOSITIONS AND THE PACIFIC COAST. Low round trip fares are now in effect via the Seattle/Highway of the Northern Pacific Ry. to California's Expositions and the Pacific Coast. These tickets permit local stop-overs, and enable the tourist to include both Expositions and the Pacific Coast at Yellowstone National Park via Gardiner Gateway.

Rheumatism is Torture. Many folks that groan in pain from rheumatism are due to the failure of the kidneys to filter out the waste matter. When you suffer with backache, headache, dizziness, or any other rheumatic ailment, it is a sign that your kidneys are not doing their duty. Doan's Backache Kidney Pills will cure you. They are the only pills that will cure you. They are the only pills that will cure you.

Doan's Backache Kidney Pills. Doan's Backache Kidney Pills will cure you. They are the only pills that will cure you. They are the only pills that will cure you.

The Wretchedness of Constipation. Can quickly be overcome by CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS. Purely vegetable—surely and safely. They do their duty. SMALL PILL, SMALL DOSE, SMALL PRICE. Genuine must bear Signature.

DR. J. D. KELLOGG'S ASTHMA Remedy for the prompt relief of asthma and Hay Fever. Ask Your Grocer for It. Wholesale Price $1.00. Retail Price 50c. NORTHUP & LYMAN CO., L.L. BUFFALO, N.Y.

CANCER. The most wonderful cancer cure ever made. It is the only cancer cure that will cure you. It is the only cancer cure that will cure you.

Sick Women Made Well. Reliable evidence is abundant that women are constantly being restored to health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Read this one from Mrs. Waters: "I was sick for two years with nervous spells, and my kidneys were affected. I had a doctor all the time and used a galvanic battery, but nothing did me any good. I was not able to go out in a sleeping chair, and soon became almost a skeleton. Finally my doctor went away for his health, and my husband heard of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and got me some. In twenty months I got better and now I am like a new woman and am at my usual work. I recommend your medicine to every one and so does my husband."—Mrs. TILLI WATERS, 630 Michigan Street, Camden, N.J.

For 30 Years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the standard remedy for female ills. No one sick with any of the above ailments does justice to herself if she does not try this famous medicine made from roots and herbs. It has cured thousands of suffering women. Write to LYDIA E. PINKHAM MEDICINE CO. (CONFIDENTIAL) LYNN, MASS., for advice. Our literature is free. It is the only medicine prepared by a woman and held in strict confidence.