The Schatchen

By GEORGE MURRAY

(Copyright, 1915, by V. G. Chapman.)

"No, I don't need anything today, Abraham," said Miss Lisa Quintin. The peddler sighed and began wringing up his pack again. "It's a long time since you bought anything from me, lady," he said sadly. "Them's lovely rugs. All grass and only two fifty apiece. They'd brighten up your parlor so as you wouldn't know it, Miss."

"Not today, Abraham," said Miss Lisa, casting a glance at her foot. Nevertheless, as the peddler was quick to observe.

"Now, if you was only married, lady, what a good trade I'd do with you," said the peddler.

"Go along with you, Abraham," said the pleasant, comely looking woman. "Want to get me married so as to sell me your goods?"

"But that's my business, too, lady," protested the peddler. "Listen, lady, when my people wants to get married, they come to me to get the goods. So they call in a marriage broker, a 'schatchen,' as they call it, and find out if they're suited, and if everything's all right, I bring the ing about her. She resolved firmly not to marry Frank Jones. When the peddler approved the following week she was furious.

"How dared you mention my name to Mr. Jones?" she demanded.

"That's all right, lady, but if a woman says that," answered the peddler, "it's going just the right way."

"Do you dare to suppose that I am going to let you marry my son to Mr. Jones, just to give you a commission on the furniture? Why, I-hate him."

"All the women say that, too, lady," answered Abraham, raising before Miss Lisa's broom.

It was a week later when Frank had his second visit. Perhaps he had seen the peddler in the interval; certainly he had done a lot of thinking, and the upshot of it was that he had decided to go to the country, that life without Miss Lisa would be a sorry substitute for perpetual bliss. Yet when he called, he only sat in stence the absence of which in other Phonographs causes that thin, strident, unpleasant talking-machine noise. No needles, to change on the Edison. Easy terms of payment.

Edison's New Diamond-Disc Phonograph

Would Edison have declared himself satisfied after four-years labor if it was not a vast improvement and something altogether different from all other Phonographs? Call at our Royal Oak Store or our Ford Motor Co. Play Room, Highland Park, and hear this wonderful instrument. It's different. It reproduces those soft, sweet sound waves, the absence of which in other Phonographs causes that thin, strident, unpleasant talking-machine noise. No needles, to change on the Edison. Easy terms of payment.

We're Opposed to Mail Order Concerns

Because - They have never counted a cent in favor of the interest of our town.

Every cent received by them from the community is a direct loss to our merchants.

In almost every case their prices are not just right, without delay in receiving goods, and the possibility of mistakes in filling orders.

But - The natural human habit is to buy where goods are cheap. Local trade is usually secondary in the game of life as played today.

Therefore Mr. Merchant and Business Men, meet your competitors with their own weapons - advertising.

KEEP COOL

A "Primaquine" Fan

Had One Redeeming Trait

But Writer's Opinion of Humorist Was Not Altogether Flattering to That Contentment.

A young man was sitting in a barber shop looking at a magazine when an old farmer, with little knowledge or appreciation of literary matters, stepped up behind his chair and looked over his shoulder.

"Who's them?" he inquired, pointing to a list of authors on the cover.

"Well-known authors and play writers," was the reply.

"Humph!" ejaculated the farmer, contemptuously. "I'd write 'em, too." Then he caught sight of an author with a long, solemn face, and his eyes sparkled. "That's the one I like," he said with decision, putting his finger on the writer's mournful countenance.

"Oh, yes; nearly everyone likes him," asserted the young man. "His humorous writings are."

"Don't know nothing 'bout his writings, but I like his face."

"Why say?"

"Cause he's the only fellow that looks like he was sorry for what he's done." - Chicago Herald.

Lucasta as Delicacies

While the locust is essentially a plant devourer and famine bringer, there are many well-documented instances in history showing that populations, reduced to the last extremity, have utilized the destructive insects as food. The Christian Herald reports that Diodorus Siculus related that an Ethiopian tribe was known as Acertiphi (eaters of locusts), while Aristotle writes of a certain part of Greece where the people regarded them as delicious. Laysard, the explorer, found the engraved monogram pictures of dried and preserved locusts on rods, presumably indicating their use as food.

It is not believed that any race today eats them. They are regarded everywhere in the East as an abhorrent calamity, and the presence of them swarms in Palestine is held to be a forerunner of complete crop failure, both of fruits and cereals.

Star's Velocity.

The velocity of a star seems to be a factor of its effective age. Unlike ordinary human experience, the speed of a star increases with its advancing years, and in the whirl of space above us it is the young who cannot keep the pace. The average velocity of stars ranges from about ten kilometers, or between three and four miles, per second for "young" stars to about thirty kilometers per second for "old" ones. In 1914, 173, 233, 246 and 250 kilometers per second, the highest speed yet known.

Vocational.

The family terror was entertaining the caller until his mother was suitably arrayed.

"Sweetie, the young man is going to be a painter," he remarked.

"A painter?" the caller asked.

"Up-huh, I guess so," he replied.

"How can he be in the army and a painter at the same time, and I heard he told him he'd need more of the blues, and he said it cost too much to draw." - Judge.

Many Newspapers in China.

A few years ago China was without a native newspaper. Today several hundred newspapers are published.
