Flowers and Shrubs Their Care and Cultivation

BULBS FOR NEXT SPRING

If you would have rich beds of tulip or give the beds or corners of your lawns a beautiful spring-like yellow or white glow of narcissus, daffodil and jonquil, you must begin to think of the early spring appearance of your garden in the fall, for the bulbs of these two flowers must be planted in the fall before the ground is frozen. In fact, this work should be undertaken as soon as or before an early frost has begun to make the annual flowers in the beds look weakened. In dealing with narcissus, which is the family to which the daffodil and jonquil belong, it might be well to think of trying to naturalize the narcissus to grow and blossom on the lawn much as do the wild flowers. How to plant and handle the bulbs, as well as the best method of getting them to become spring residents of grassy corners, are described in the following articles issued by the bulb specialists of the United States department of agriculture.

These bulbs should be planted in light, rich soil one or two inches in depth of at least 10 inches. The tulip bulbs should be set 5 inches apart and 4 inches deep and the narcissus bulbs about 10 inches apart and 6 inches deep.

If they are to be grown in pots or window boxes, light, rich soil should be used. The bulbs are placed in the bottom of the pots or boxes to insure good drainage. After planting, place the pots or boxes out of doors and cover them with about four inches of earth or sand; or they may be placed in a dark, cool room or cellar for a few weeks until the bulbs have formed a quantity of roots. They may then be brought into the light and heat for flowering. Keep the soil well moistened from time of planting, but avoid overwatering, for if kept too wet the bulbs will decay.

Among the Flowers

Among summer blossoms none are greater favorites than the spring or mock orange, the flowers being as fragrant as beautiful. While the shrub itself is perfectly hardy, late frosts sometimes kill the buds; and an observing grower gives the rule that there will be orange blossoms when there are peaches.

Calyceanthus is a curious shrub, the brownish blossom being odorous of strawberries; yet with so many beautiful as well as fragrant blossoms it could scarcely head the list.

Purple fringe is an odd plant, the name speaks true perhaps more accurately describing it than any other after midsummer, when the pedicels lengthen, branch and bear long, plummy hairs, either greenish or tinged with red.

The apogonia is handsome when in bloom, the tubular blossoms of white, rose or purple being produced in profusion, variety with leaves variegated with gold is especially pleasing.

Instead of planting in rows, the fancy is now to group the shrubs and the flowers for cutting. Place the tall or ones in the rear with the shorter ones in front.

Arrange that the blooming season shall be prolonged throughout the summer, and see that no two specimens with blossoms which do not harmonize in color shall be in bloom side by side at the same time.

Plants can wait upon themselves if food, properly prepared, is placed with in their reach.

See that plunged pots are not allowed to dry out. Even in wet seasons, the soil inside the pot may become too dry.

Keep the beds of tea roses mulched well. Do not let the soil dry out. They are not at their best in the hot months, but receive new life in cool weather.

Larkspur, poppies, calliopsis, pansies, collinsias, may all be sown in August and the seedlings treated as perennials.

To much water is bad for the heliotrope during hot weather. Aim to give it just enough. It just glories in hot weather.

We often starve our flowers—giving them neither plant food nor enough water—and then wonder why they do not bloom.

Do not fertilize to free growth; let the growth begin, and then give the food.

Keep the soil in the pots stirred to let in air to the roots. Use a tabor fork for the work.

The Boston fern is as easy to raise as a palm, and if properly cared for is beautiful.

The lazy woman never makes a very successful flower grower.
