BYRONOPSIS: Kenneth Griswold, an unassuming writer, because of his peculiar tendencies...

CHAPTER XII—Continued. "He ain't the man to go to his mother's..."

"That's where you are mistaken," she objected, coolly. "It isn't your own I can give you a business tip..."

STANDARD NEVER TOO HIGH Well for a Man to Report to Himself Occasionally, If He Is Headed Right.

He is Wahaska's best-loved 'Doober Burtie,' otherwise Doctor Herbert C. Farham...

"Yes, Charlotte's father was the calm reply. Then 'Where did you meet Miss Farham?'"

"I haven't met her," he protested insistently. "She doesn't know me from Adam..."

CHAPTER XIII. The Convolescent. "After a few days during which he was well contented when Margery was with him..."

He turned upon her squarely. "Where did you ever learn how to say such things as that?"

"It was an opening for hockey and good-natured rally, but he did not take the use of it..."

"What is to come that you have in mind for the future, see?"

"I am not an author, I am sorry to say," he objected. "I have written but the one book..."

"That may be true, without making me a false prophet..."

"I'm still after the one you took on in the name of John Gavit..."

"You didn't hear what was said?" "I didn't pay any attention..."

"You Have Many Missions, Miss Margery." suggested the smoking-room and a cigar, and Griswold went willingly...
