PUT BUSINESS LESSON FIRST

Youngster Had Excellent Defense When Hauled Before the Parental Tribunal for Fighting.

"My son—"

"Yes, pop—"

"Do you remember what your Sunday school teacher told you about fighting?"

"Yes, sir."

"Then why did you strike that Heimandhaw boy with your fist?"

"He struck me first."

"But what about your Sunday school lesson?"

"I thought about your lesson first."

"What lesson?"

"Your business lesson."

"I am afraid I do not know what you mean."

"You told me always to do everything in a strictly business way."

"Yes—"

"Well, when he delivered a wallop on my nose I just had to give him a receipt."—Youngstown Telegram.

THE PROFESSOR'S STATEMENT.

Prof. Aug. F. W. Schmitz, Thomas, Okla., writes: "I was troubled with Backache for about twenty-five years. When told I had Bright's Disease in its last stages, I tried Dodd's Kidney Pills. After using two boxes I was somewhat relieved and I stopped the treatment. In the spring of the next year I had another attack. I went for Dodd's Kidney Pills and they relieved me again. I used three boxes. That is now three years ago and my Backache has not returned in its severity, and by using another two boxes a little later on, the pain left altogether and I have had no trouble since. You may use my statement. I recommend Dodd's Kidney Pills when and wherever I can." Dodd's Kidney Pills, 50c. per box at your dealer or Dodd's Medicine Co., Buffalo, N. Y.—Adv.

"Say, young feller," said Bronco Bob, "have you got a gun on you?"

"No, sir," replied the man with the brand-new cowboy uniform. "I was told that it was better to be unarmed, so as to avoid any impression that I was seeking a quarrel."

"Well, that's a big disappointment. I needed a brand new gun an' thought you'd be bringin' along at least a pair of 'em. Don't you let anything like this occur again."—Washington Star.

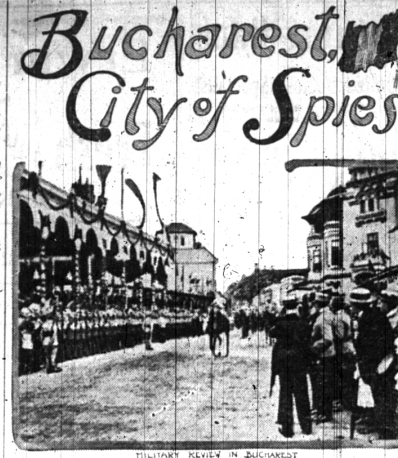
Bucharest, City of Spies



MILITARY REVIEW IN BUCHAREST

BUCHAREST is a city of unrest. Roumania lacks repose. The westerner is immediately confronted by these two factors directly he emerges from the home of Magyar or Slav. They also indicate, although not adequately explaining, the character of the Roumanian people, says a correspondent of the Philadelphia Ledger, writing before Roumania entered the war.

Bucharest is a city of spies. There is an element in the character of the Roumanian that admits of his becoming an able exponent of espionage. The Roumanian trusts nobody, and consequently is not trusted, but it is the manner in which he manages to secure his ends that it is so interesting and often wonderful in its daring and enterprise, two essentials in "intelligence."

Honeycombed as Bucharest is with nationalities, nothing escapes and the neutrality of the country has played an important part in the great war. On the Calea Victoria representatives of almost every country in the world may be found slowly promenading. There one may find the obsequious but silent Jap and the dusky negro, the bronzed German or Austrian officer in mufti, and the American from the oil fields, the Magyar of the plain and the southern Slav, the volatile Frenchman and the calm Scandinavian, the stolid Russian and the quaintly garbed Turk, all mingling and commingling with the decorative uniforms of the Roumanian army and presenting a patchwork of character, color and language.

Bucharest slumbers not nor does it sleep; it is activity incarnate. Early in the morning, long before the contents of the Minerva Universal or the Dimineatza have been digested, the principal thoroughfares are beset with youths shouting the wares of the sensational Dreptatea. Something has fallen, some catastrophe overtaken the central empires or the entente. The Dreptatea appears to insure conversation during the lunch; it is an aid to indigestion. Rest and repose are foreign to Roumania.

Good Publicity Center.

Having all this in view, it is not very wonderful that Germany, at the outbreak of war, immediately recognized the value of Bucharest as a publicity center. Publicity, what crimes have been committed in thy name!

With that clever cunning one now associates with Teutonic newspaper industry in the Balkans, Roumania has been simply inundated with prompt information concerning the failures of the triple entente.

Instead of relying upon the effect produced by mushroom newspapers bearing topical names, the Germans captured most of the established papers, and with them a public ready and receptive, instantly available. The allies have neglected the press factor in Roumania. Conjointly with their press enterprise the Germans utilized to the full the opportunities for espionage afforded by the "Latin island amid a Slav sea." The same group of "agents" who negotiated the sale or transfer of the newspapers were responsible for the establishment of the Teutonic spy system in Bucharest.

Situated in Strada Cosma, near the end of the Calea Victoria, in close proximity to the German legation, stands an unobtrusive-looking building in a quiet backwater of city respectability. Here the sleuthhounds of Intelligence deposit their news, where it is submitted to minute examination before being forwarded to Berlin; here all instructions are given, and skulking along by the shade of the high wall may be seen from time to time the disturbing figures of diplomatic life bent upon errands of international import.

This much must be said for the system in Bucharest; it carries on its work with flagrant openness and apparent unconcern.

Teutonic espionage in Bucharest has one point in its favor; it is controlled by one hand and from one center. Instead of having much tiresome overlapping the Germans assumed control, and Austrian, Turk and Bulgar were subordinated to the ubiquitous Teuton.

It has another feature that on the face of it appears to be commendable. There is a very intimate connection between the departments of state, or, rather, in "intelligence" they are but one. The right hand of diplomacy knows what the left hand is doing—and approves. It is conceivable that much time and money may be wasted by having a diplomatic "intelligence," an admiralty "intelligence" and a war office "intelligence," for there is always the possibility of friction and jealousy between the departments apart from other things. In Bucharest, at least, the central powers have centralized "intelligence."

Agents in the Cafe Royal.

The types employed are of the usual bewildering order. There is the illclad explosive official, with his heavily silvered cane and inevitable bowler hat, the scantily paid journalist, well trained in the uses of blackmail; the alert restaurant waiter, the sleek hotel proprietor and chief de reception; a horde of impecunious government officials, postmen and telegraphists, the owners of the cafe chantants and the women therein, and a host of debt-laden officers of all ranks, marshaled and manipulated by the naval and military officers detailed—in mufti—to keep their country well-informed.

At the feu hour the Cafe Royal is full of agents. This is one of the busiest cafes in Europe. All languages are spoken, all countries catered to. To those with an eye for signs and an ear for strange tongues, together with an instinct for the esoteric, no more fascinating life center exists. So continuous is the procession that passes to and from the entrance that appearance and reappearance are virtually unnoticeable. Every conceivable form of recognition is adopted.

You may find picturesquely garbed Roumanians from frontier villages interested in contraband, turning up at aperitif hour; and diplomatic underofficials with messages from a superior.

Small Check Protector.

A new check protector has just been invented by an Oakland (Cal.) man. It is so small and compact that it resembled a pocket cigar lighter and can be carried in a vest pocket as easily as a matchsafe. It consists of a metal holder, at one end of which is inserted a round steel die, containing hatched lines. This steel die revolves and its surface comes in contact with an ink pad placed inside the holder. The check to be protected is placed upon a small corrugated aluminum board, furnished for the purpose, and then the hatched wheel of the protector is brought into position on the surface of the check, over the written amount. With a slight pressure the wheel is slowly revolved across the face of the check.—Popular Science Monthly.

Some Odd Christian Names.

An appellant rejoicing in the curious name of Rezin at the last sitting of the Somerset tribunal, caused an inquiry where he got it from. He replied from the Bible, where it is only mentioned once—I Chron. 7:39. There lived for many years in the village of Twerton, Bath, one named Mahi. He was born a twin, and his parents thriftily divided the predestined name of Jeremiah between them, the other babe being christened Jere.—London Globe.

Indian Writing Found in North.

That the Spokane country once was peopled by a race of Indians whose sign writing cannot be interpreted by the tribes of the present day is shown in the disclosure of Indian hieroglyphics on rocks near the mouth of the Little Spokane river. The marks are found on rocky cliffs north of the Little Spokane on the old Binkley place. Pioneers of Spokane have known of these marks for years, but their exact location has never been made known to the public for fear they might be destroyed before steps were taken for their preservation. With the organization of a Spokane historical society, whose purpose will be to mark such historical places, the hieroglyphics will be preserved and every effort made to have them deciphered.

Twinkling Stars.

The twinkling of the stars is more apparent than real, and is an effect produced in our atmosphere on the waves of light. It is due to currents and strata of air of different densities intermingling and floating past each other through which the light passes to the eye. It is seen more in warm weather than in cold, and near the horizon more than overhead. The same thing may be seen by looking out of a window over a hot radiator or at a candle held on the other side of a hot stove—one must look through a body of highly heated air at the candle flame. The flame will be seen to waver and quiver. The various layers of air are at different densities and in motion. Rapid twinkling of the stars is a sign of a change of weather.

Four Dollars Weekly.

When Mark Twain first went to New York, where he was to spend so much of his life, he lodged at a mechanics' boarding house in Pearse street. Albert Bigelow Paine, his biographer, says that "he did not like the board." He had been accustomed to the southern mode of cooking, and wrote home complaining that "New Yorkers did not have hot bread or biscuits." His work was in a printing establishment in Cliff street, near the home of his future publishers, the Harpers. He was paid $4 a week in wildcat money.

NEW ENVOY TO U.S. BARRED SAFE TRIP

AUSTRO-HUNGARIAN AMBASSADOR REFUSED SAFE PASSAGE BY ENTENTE ALLIES.

WASHINGTON SURPRISED

The London Foreign Office Is Supported By France, Italy and Russia in Its Action.

Washington—Another controversy between the United States government and the Entente Allies is in prospect as a result of the refusal of the British government to grant safe conduct to Count Tarnowski, newly appointed Austro-Hungarian ambassador to the United States.

In the absence of official advices officials of the state department were not in a position to discuss it formally or to forecast the course of this government. It was made evident that the unfavorable action of the British foreign office came as an unpleasant surprise.

Aside from the belief that England would not desire to arouse adverse feeling in the United States by interference with the unquestioned right of a neutral government to receive an ambassador or minister, officials had counted upon Great Britain's record in the Mason and Slidell case to prevent such an action as reported by cables.

The fact is recognized that in protesting against the removal of the Confederate commissioners from the steamship Trent, the British government was mainly concerned with the violation of the protection afforded by the British flag under which the Trent sailed, and it is said that it was on that account the United States repudiated the action of its naval commander.

But it is held here that though secondary, the protest also was based on the right of diplomatic officers to make their way to their posts in neutral countries. It probably will be on that basis that the matter of Count Tarnowski's interrupted mission will be taken up with the Allies, for it is well understood that the London foreign office is supported by France, Italy and Russia in its action.

It was learned that the state department so far has not made a formal request for a safe conduct for the Austrian ambassador, but has confined itself to a transmission of the request of the Austrian government for such a courtesy.

It is probable that if the issue is to be made up it will be necessary for the United States to make such request on its own account.

The Inflow of Gold Brings Treasury Holdings of the Precious Metal to $1,803,493,933.

Washington—The great inflow of gold into the country during the last fiscal year increased treasury holdings of the precious metal to $1,803,493,933 on June 30 last, an increase of $420,532,943 over the previous year according to the United States treasurer's annual report made public. Gold imports were $494,009,201 and exports $90,249,548.

Money in circulation in the United States at the close of the fiscal year aggregated $4,024,097,762, an increase of $454,878,188 over the previous year. There was a remarkable growth in the gold coin and certificates in circulation, the increase being $388,091,123.

ITEMS OF INTEREST

New York—Officers of the White Star line have been advised by the British admiralty that the Britannic was sunk by a mine.

Youngstown, O.—A strike of 1,000 machinists, which has been in effect since May 1, has just been settled. The men will return to work at old terms on November 27.

Reginald D. Buchannan, son of Mrs. A. R. Small, of Chicago, a junior in the literary college of the University of Michigan was expelled at a meeting of the faculty. Buchanan was fined for grabbing a pretty shopgirl on the street.

An attempt to rob the Hadley Savings Bank was frustrated by the coolness and presence of mind of F. Gleason, cashier. A stranger entered the bank, stood before the cashier with a gun leveled at his head, and demanded the immediate surrender of the bank's savings deposits, together with all cash on hand. Preparing to comply with the stranger's demand, Gleason is reported to have drawn his revolver and forced the stranger to back down.

Zurich—Dispatches from Berlin say Germany has called to the colors the class of 1918. This class is formed by young men 18 years of age.

Washington—The net inward gold movement for the 12 months ending November 1 was estimated at $469,800,000 in a department of commerce statement. Total imports were $86,000,000, and $117,000,000 in gold was exported. During the previous year the gold balance was only $.26,500,00, and during the year before imports were smaller by $167,200,000 than exports.

Judge Arthur J. Tuttle, of the United States district court, delivered a lecture to James A. Medsker, alias Alexander, confessed train robber, before he sentenced him to serve a term of 25 years in Fort Leavenworth federal prison.

Gideon Kennedy, 80 years old, who resides on the east county line, is in a critical condition as the result of an attack by a vicious boar. The animal's tusks ripped open one of Kennedy's thighs. The fact that the old man was tossed oved a fence probably saved his life.

Of Course He Wouldn't Ask.

Oliver had been taught that it was naughty to ask anyone for pennies. His mother noticed he had come home several times with a penny, so one day she asked: "Oliver, where did you get your penny?"

Oliver immediately replied: "From the sweeper man" (meaning the street sweeper).

"Did you ask the sweeper man for a penny?"

"No, mamma, I just go up to the sweeper man and say, 'I am looking for a penny today,' and he gives me one."

Masculine Form.

"What is a hunch?"

"A hunch is the masculine equivalent of feminine intuition."

As soon as a man acquires a little sense, it is said that he is an old fogy, of calamity.

Thoughtful Wife.

A man condemned to be hanged was visited the day preceding his execution by his wife (an ignorant woman), who, as the sequel will show, intended to have no hitch in the carrying out of the sentence. After the anxious inquiries about his health had been made and answered he noticed that she had two parcels, and asked what was in them.

Wife—This one contains a change of linen for you.

Husband—And, the other one?

Wife—Oh, that is the clothesline. I brought it, as I did not know whether they found the rope or we had to provide one."

Every failure teaches a man something, if he will learn.—Dickens.

Pretty Often, Too.

During a Bible lesson a teacher was trying to explain the parable of the tares.

"Can anyone tell me any person who is like the evil one who sowed the tares?"

A hand instantly shot up from the foot of the class.

"Well, David, what person do you say?"

"Please, ma'am, my mother."

"Why?" asked the teacher in astonishment.

"Because," answered he, eying his patched trousers, "she sews tears."

The Secret Out.

The widower and the ex-widower chanced to meet in a downtown wet goods emporium.

"You seem to be remarkably happy since you married the second time," remarked the widower. "What's the explanation?"

"My wife is a firm believer in fairy stories. See?" rejoined the ex-widower.

And as the seeing was good, the other looked through the bottom of his glass and saw clearly.

Eccentricity.

"Charley, dear," said young Mrs. Torkins, "did you make one of those freakish election bets?"

"No. I simply bet $50 and lost it."

"That was worse than freakish, Charles. That was foolish."

Bodily Housekeeping

(By V. M. PIERCE, M. D.)

The subject of drinking water with meals has been misunderstood.

In recent years investigation by means of X-rays, the observations of scientists such as Cannon, Grutzner, Pavlov, Fowler, Hawk, prove that an abundance of water taken during digestion is necessary in good bodily housekeeping.

If your kidneys are sick, or you suffer with lumbago or rheumatism at times, pain in the back or back of the neck, take a little Anuric before meals. This can be found at any good drug store. Therefore my advice to young or old is, always drink plenty of pure water. And for long life, occasionally take tablets of Anuric three or four times a day.

Anuric acts much more quickly than lithia. Many find it dissolves uric acid as water does sugar.

NEWS OF ALBION

Albion, Mich.—Before my baby came I took Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and found it to be very good. Then about three years ago I got sort of rundown and weak so I took it again and it cured me in a very short time when other medicines had failed. I can recommend this medicine to be one of the very best, if given a fair trail."—MRS. MARY DUTTON, 206 N. Ann St.
