

Carnations Are Attractive Flowers in the Garden—Easy to Grow and Beautiful.

A WORD ABOUT PEONIES

Peonies should be planted in the autumn early if they are to do well the first year. October being the best time for the work.

Peonies are propagated both by seed and by division; the former plant, however, is lengthy and troublesome.

They can only be obtained true to name by division of the roots, but this should not be attempted until the plant has been in one place for two or three years.

When peonies are grown in a separate bed an edging of daffodil will be effective with the crimson shades of the peonies in April.

During a drought in summer (particularly when the plant is young) an occasional soaking with water will benefit the peony.

CARE OF ROSES

Roses and other similar plants that can be bent to the ground can be protected by laying the branches in a trench made by removing a spade of earth at one side of the plant and covering them with six inches of earth.

TRY AMARANTHUS

The amaranthus is a much neglected plant. It can be made more effective than the commoner candelabra.

By far the greatest number of flowers have no smell at all. For instance of the 4,200 species of flowers in Europe, only about 10 per cent give forth any odor.

For Her Sake

By A. P. DELANCY

(Copyright, 1915, by W. G. Chapman.)

"Mail sir," reported the office boy and placed a pile of miscellaneous letters in the desk of young Gordon Leith, manager of the importing house of Waltham & Co.

"Routine," observed Leith at length arising from his happy reverie. "All right—there will be only three weeks' delay at home."

"Order," he tallied them off, "complaint, request for low price list," and placed the letters in the trays of various departments.

"That's Me," he placed the letters in the trays of various departments. "Hello! what's this?"

Leith stared hard and looked confused and startled, as he read the words in the envelope.

"Why?" breathed Leith in sheer amazement. "What does this mean anyhow? Where is the envelope from? Here it is—the mischief! At it again—worse than ever!"

Leith allowed the letter to drop to his desk as he scanned the directions on the envelope.

The brother of Vera! It was most that Leith should be interested and natural that he should be anxious and troubled.

"Mr. Merriam was a stern, austere man and it had cost both money and patience to control the peccadillo of the younger Merriam."

More recently Harry seemed to have turned over a new leaf. In order to get him away from his old associates, only the week preceding Leith had seen him on a selling tour.

Fifteen minutes later Mr. Merriam called, according to appointment. He came, returned into the office of the manager.

"War Relics for Australia," was an interesting set of war relics being collected in Australia. The last set addition to a list that already included the Turkish ware in the Empire.

"Green as the Field," "Mistress—Did you want the rubber ball?" "New Maid—Why, no, miss; I thought was mislaid—"

"You demanded a thousand dollars from him." "Widely opened eyes." "You made a provision," went on Leith steadily.

"A strange expression came into the eyes of Gordon Leith. He drew his coat closer to him, as if he were afraid of the man attached to his watch chain.

"Only the click—swish of the bits of pasteboard, the quick breathing of the gamster as two points scored for himself and mine for his opponent.

"What's the row, governor?" chirped the gamster, appearing on the scene. "I have won again a time and another man," uttered Mr. Merriam.

"The gamster glibly, coarsely stated the facts as he understood them. Merriam guessed the vast sacrifice that Leith had made.

"Vera Merriam—within four days Mrs. Gordon Leith—never knew of it. Harry Merriam knew of it.

"The division of an hour into sixty minutes is of ancient Babylonian origin and has survived the centuries."

"The demands of the tourist and of those women who sweep past with the midwinter social aids save the milliner's workshop from utter desolation at this time."

"The whole course of the sun was a twenty-four paragon, or 360 degrees, and each paragon or hour was subdivided into sixty minutes."
