Sweater Coats in Infinite Variety Have Been Provided for the Lovers of Outdoors—Cotton Corduroy One of the Most Practical Materials—Straw Hats With Vivid Stripes a Feature of the Millinery Modes.

There are so many kinds of sweater coats and sports coats to choose from that it is difficult to make a beginning in their choice. But, for style and often daintiness none will give more satisfaction than one of those made of cotton corduroy or ratine. These materials are manufactured in all the fashionable colors and in white, and make as smart coats as much more costly and less durable stuffs. The coat pictured is a good example of cotton corduroy in a practical and stylish garment. There is nothing in the way of decoration on it except machine stitching, which outlines the big patch pockets and the collar, cuffs and hem at the bottom. It is provided with a high collar which she may or may not wear buttoned close up under the chin, now that the dainty girl gives in for protecting her complexion against the sun. The coat fastens with bone buttons and buttonholes.

A pretty coat made in the same way except at the neck has an adjustable collar. This model is in deep blue corduroy and its collar is in the form of a broad scarf of the material, which can be fastened to the neck at the front. It is worn like a fur scarf, crumple around the throat, with ends crossing at the back and brought to the front again. Here they are knotted or allowed to hang straight to the waistline.

White buttons look well on all the colors shown in cotton corduroy, but there are white buttons, in several odd, unusual shapes, barred with narrow stripes in the same colors as are shown in cotton fabrics.

All the feminine world is running after stripes, and those who wear themselves accordingly. Wide-brimmed sun hats and midsummer suiters are offered in stripes ranging from quiet black and white to the most vivid of orange, green, red and blue contrasts. For street and sports wear these hats with women's stripes offer more in the way of distinction than fabric hats, and as a rule they are more expensive.

but they were worn from affection and were not ostentations.

To Better the Skin.

A combination of lemon juice and glycerine should be used constantly to better the skin. This lotion is made in quantities, the proportions being two-thirds lemon juice and one-third glycerine. Add to these ingredients two tablespoons of carbonic acid to every cup of water. Use this mixture daily and rub well into the flesh.

NOT A FRIEND TO BE SOUGHT

Man Who Continually "Blows His Own Horn" is as a General Principle to Be Avoided.

Beware of the person who is continually telling you of the good he is doing. Something about that man is not right. He has some reason for desiring to make you think him better than he is. He either wants to show off his talents, or he wants to reach someone else through you. The man who does "brags of kindness, prompted by a heart which is right, seldom tells of them. He might mention one to an intimate friend, perhaps, but then only incidentally. The man who gives, not because he really wants to do so, but because of some selfish desire, will never get credit any higher than his own roof. His desire for effect and his vanity will make him a man to be avoided—never trusted.

Look out for the man who wants you to turn his grinside.

Conservative.

There was once a lady from Duxbury, Mass., who spent five solid hours roving to one spot on the rim of the Grand canyon, during which time the strong light of the desert sun melted into pools of turquoise and purple haze; the mile-long shadows swung themselves into the depths of warring ridges across the plateau. She was picking the pockets of my own soul in a minute. But, anyway, I am trying to tell you that this lady from Iowa, witnessed a sunset in the Grand canyon; and when night came she found her tongue.

"It is highly gratifying," she sighed, "Yes—highly gratifying."

If you will not take my word for it take the word of the Iowa lady. She was cautious, even conservative; she did not overstate the case.—C. E. Van Loan, in the Saturday Evening Post.

Experimenting on Wheat.

The slender angular head of the wheat stalk with its needlelike hairs—the characteristic of the American-grown crop—is doomed, if Professor William F. Friedman, graduate of Cornell university, is successful in experiments in wheat production. Professor Friedman has at his disposal wheat specimens gathered from all quarters of the globe. Among these is the "beardless" and "forked-head" product of Russia. His experiments aim primarily to reproduce an acclimated American wheat that possesses the "beardless" and "forked-head" or tripedic properties of the Russian stalk.

Their Part in the War.

Several young clubmen have recently and the question of the war became the chief topic of conversation. They felt awfully sorry for the poor soldiers in the trenches. "We ought to do something for them," said one. "So we should," advised another. A third member, in speaking of this a few days later, remarked, "So we drank their health all evening."—London Mail.

Miscellany has received a letter from the front for his readers. It gives one or two little stories of actual incidents which have occurred in the writer's regiment somewhere in France. All ranks, as soon as they land in France, are urgently warned against answering questions asked by people who they do not know—even though the question is apparently a British officer, for enemy agents have been found in the uniform of all ranks. A certain conscientious young sub was in the front line the other day when a number of the divisional staff came along and began questioning the boy, with a view to testing his alertness and efficiency.

"What trench is this?"

"I don't know, sir."

"What regiment is in your right?"

"I don't know, sir."

"How do your rifles come up?"

"I don't know, sir."

"Well, you don't seem to know much, young fellow, do you?"

"Excuse me, sir, but I don't know who you are."—Manchester Guardian.

Typewriter Service in Rural Communities

The typewriter is coming into more extended use in rural communities because of the assistance it renders to all classes of people. Here are a few examples of the possibilities of service:

The Farmer: Think of the possibilities of selling produce by the means of typewritten letters sent out to customers? Typewritten letters give the sender a business standing with the people who receive them and also enable the keeping of carbon copies of the correspondence, which many times does away with misunderstandings and lawsuits.

The General Store Merchant: More prompt and courteous treatment is likely to be accorded his orders and correspondence with the City jobber and manufacturer if his letters are typewritten.

In The Home: The boy or girl who is intending to follow a business career can secure no better start than a knowledge of Children who learn to use the typewriter learn spelling at the same time. The housewife finds it a great convenience in writing recipes and for general correspondence.

The Minister: No Clergyman should be without a typewriter. It is of great assistance in preparing sermons and writing the many letters that a pastor has to write.
