Economists from the upper peninsula have brought forward a new method of attacking the high cost of living. They would meet the deer meet situation with deer meat. The movement has made considerable headway in Minnesota. It is said, where under the direction of W. T. Cox, the state forester, farmers are raising deer to combat the beef trust. Deer are self-sustaining grass on the poorest lands. Each doe bears two fawns a year and these mature in half the time, steers do.

While cutting down a tree said to be 115 years old, Edward Smith, a Sandusky, found a whetstone and as an embedded in the tree. Evidently the tree had been hollow near the ground and the articles were placed in it for safe-keeping. The whetstone was thought to be 300 years old.

Dr. William De Kleen, director of the state veterinary office against vermin, says the survey of county jails shows that these institutions are breeding places for phthisis.

THE LEAVE THE FARM

OPPORTUNITY FOR THE BOYS WHO WANT TO LEAVE THEIR FARM TO THEM

BEGINNING GREAT WORK NOW

The Michigan Agricultural College Broadens its Field of Work to Reach the Greatest Number.

East Lansing—One hundred farm boys of Michigan will leave their farms in July. The above fact does not alarm the "Stay-on-the-Farm" advocates, however, because the hundred boys are going to the second annual Farm Boys Camp at the Michigan Agricultural College. While city boys are pitching their tents in the country, these lads will pitch their tents on the campus of Michigan's greatest center of agricultural education at East Lansing.

The experiment was first made last summer when 29 boys from 23 counties came for the first Farm Boys' Camp. The Camp was so successful, that provision will be made to accommodate one hundred boys this year.

The Farm Boys' Camp is more than a mere camp; it is a combination of school and camp. It is a movement to give farm boys a taste of agricultural while they are still in their teens—at the age when they usually have strong tendencies to make their vocational choices. Each morning is spent at real hard study of farm problems. No books are used. The College farm and the College livestock constitute the laboratory where these boys will do their studying.

The afternoon is devoted to games, lessons in swimming and various other recreational activities. In the evening the boys gather around the campfire to listen to the leader's talks, tell stories and sing songs. There will be a leader for each group of ten boys. These leaders are teachers of agriculture in the High Schools of Michigan.

This is but another of the many innovations to be instituted in M. A. C.'s growing summer school which is under the supervision of Dean E. H. Ryder.

The Camp begins on July 10th and lasts ten days. Boys who are members of the Agricultural Clubs, superintended by the College are eligible and the age limits are from 12 to 15 years.

Creating a New Profession.

The new movement in rural life is creating a new profession, or, perhaps it should be said that it is regenerating an old profession, for since the beginning of the Boys and Girls Club movement, rural teachers and other rural leaders have been compelled to acquire a new training. They can no longer continue to merely "Keep School"; their communities are demanding some practical results in the nature of home projects connected with school work.

Last year there were 5000 boys and girls in Michigan organized into various kinds of clubs for the purpose of carrying on home projects. The number is increasing at a rapid rate. The demand right now is for teachers and other leaders who are equipped to direct these clubs.

The summer session of Michigan Agricultural College will attempt to meet these demands for new training. A special school of instruction for club leaders is being conducted at East Lansing from July 17th to July 22nd. Those who attend this special school will be taught how to demonstrate the new club methods of teaching. Instruction will be given in the methods of conducting club clubs, potato clubs, bean clubs, gardening clubs, poultry clubs, game making clubs, etc. The demonstrations and classes will be under the supervision of those who have charge of the club work in Michigan, assisted by someone from the department at Washington.

Dean E. H. Ryder of the Summer School announces that this special school of instruction for club leaders is to be conducted without cost to those who attend. The only expense will be for board. Ten dollars will be sufficient to permit anyone to take advantage of this special school for community builders.

MICHIGAN NEWS ITEMS

William Hammond, a farmer living just south of here, thinks that he may have found a gold mine on his farm. Twice recently his cream separator has blown up, and he is beginning to believe that one of his cows is giving gasoline instead of milk, in which case he figures he will soon be rich.

Five hundred thousand dollars was the damage done by fire in public buildings in Michigan during the March. Ten persons lost their lives and 17 were seriously burned or injured by the use of gasoline, kerosene, and other explosives during the same period. Of the deaths six were children. Of the public buildings destroyed, six were schools, two were hotels and one a church. During the quarter ending March 31, the records show 23 deaths and $5 injuries from the above causes in the state.

Ten insurance companies and two Detroit insurance agencies were found guilty of violations of the anti-trust act in Michigan during the March. A commission appointed to administer the act was passed. Each agency and company was fined $100. The agencies are to be dissolved by automobile this year, the old-fashioned cart and sawney ponies having been cast into the discard. This film has, until the present time, been shown almost exclusively in New York and at that the people of Michigan are to be given the opportunity to see that about which so much has been written.

The play is one that gets its life into each scene almost automatically. It is all so real and so expressive that we are glad to see the opportunity to make the play complete in every detail. It will be shown at the Opera House the week of May 1st and the arrangements early as seats will be a premium.

A Dollar a Minute!

It takes just about ten minutes for the average man to decide on a suit or topcoat at Bond's. He saves ten dollars in that ten minutes. A dollar a minute is interesting enough, even in these prosperous times, isn't it? What hundreds of other men are doing every day, you can do.

It would hardly be worth the money it costs to advertise them, if Bond's Clothes could not sell them. However, we know how satisfied you will be in wearing a Bond garment—suit because of their low price alone—but because of their high quality. Men who have bought tell their friends to buy—and this endless chain of "Bond boosters" is evidence enough of the satisfaction Bond's $15 Clothes must give.
