The nother knows nothing of her relatives at home except that they are "somewherein France," but she has found that Michigan people are very ready to help the Belgian babies.

ready to help the Belgian babies.

At the recent national conference of Children's Home Societies it was found that each of the thirty three states represented was already meeting the extra demands mode by the war. The case of the Belgian twins is the most striking one which has come to the Michigan Society so far, tut the increasing number of children cared for its also it et to the war conditions. Last year 532 were under the immediate care of the organization, more than half of them being aid cases who were cared for one by until the parents were able to for only until the parents were able to for oaly until the parents were able to take them again.

The mother of the Beiglan twins is hoping to help support her children, and in time be able to bring them together again, thanks to the aid which the Children's Home Society is giving her now. The best kind of charity is that which thepse unfortunate people to help themselves and thus preserve their self respect.

There will be a flyg tag day under the auspices of the Birmingham Auxiliary, October 29.
