Alth' Man Knows at What He Wants
"The Woman's One Complaint has an article in which this passage occurs: "The nuisance for the man who has acquired a financial resource usually is the he doesn't know what he wants. Possessing the resources and feeling he moral resource and have recourse to them, he looks about for something to do with his money, the most profitable thing. The acquisition of the most costly thing always involves, a practice, the separation of the man from society. That which he will acquire a large estate, or several large estates, and cut himself off from the world by gates, doors, miles of it, and his neighbors, and his secretaries. Or he will acquire a 2,000-acre yacht and cross the Atlantic privately, though less quickly, less comfortably and even less privately than on a great liner. Or he will keep a private orchestra, instead of being seen at concerts. All which, though not secret, is hidden and silly, and is secretly felt to be so by the rich man when he happens to wake up in the middle of the night and can't go to sleep again."

Missed a Sale.
"It was to me," said a Main street stationer, "that everybody's writing of short letters these days. We cut customers out of ten who come in here for postage stamps. This morning a woman was here browsing around. She took it over the counter stock. I thought I had a customer. After she finished I rounds she remarked: 'Oh, I nearly forgot. Have you any post-stamps?' I was glad to see her, and how many she wanted. She handed us a wrapped newspaper and asked how much I thought it ought to have cost. I told her the price. She weighed the darned thing and told her a cent would be sufficient. 'Is that all she said.' Well, I have a cent to give her for the post-stamps, thought it would come to more. Thank you very much."—Richmond Times Dispatch.

Humorous
SENSIBLE MAN.
"Is Jibway still staying out late every night while his good wife sits up and waits for him?"
"No."
"You mean he has reformed?"
"Not at all. Jibway stays out as late as ever, but his good wife goes to bed and lets him sleep on the porch so he is unable to negotiate the key hole with his latch-key."

Cutting Down Gasps.
"How do you suppose some people spent their spare time before motion pictures were invented?"
"I don't like to appear unkind to those persons, but before they started to spending practically all of their leisure moments in photoplay houses they knew a great deal more about their neighbors' private affairs than they do now."

An Exception.
"Misfortunes often bring out the best there is in a man," remarked the philosophic observer.
"Great misfortunes sometimes have that effect," answered the cynical remarker, "but I have yet to see the man who wears an 'Oh-be-joyful' expression after trying in vain for thirty minutes to get a telephone number."

Makes Them Envious.
"The idea of a rich woman paying $1,000 for a fur coat!" exclaimed the self-satisfied observer. "That doesn't increase the sum of human happiness."
"You are right, friend," answered a hard-worked married man. "At my rate, it doesn't increase the sum of happiness among women who can't afford to buy $1,000 coats."

HUSBY'S VIEWS.

"I think a trip to Europe would be your wife good. However, I shall call in another physician to see if my diagnosis is correct."
"I guess it's correct enough, doc. Better call in a deaconman if you want to hasten the cure."

Learning.
She's teaching Farming by degrees.
She thought potatoes
Grew in trees.

An Illustration.
"Isn't it strange how the majority of people can become attached to a bad custom?"
"Yes; look at the street car strap-hangers."

Eggy Job.
"His lawyer couldn't clear the man who was accused of being a fence."
"That's queer; it ought to be easy enough for any man, let alone a lawyer to witness a fence."

Hard Pressed.
Ben Brokeleigh—During, let us get married at once. I positively can't live married day without you.
Gertie Gotrox—Why, Ben, I had no idea you were that hard up.

Up in the Air.
Boob White—Isn't Miss Meadow Lark peevish today?
Mrs. B. W.—Oh, terribly. The least noise makes him soar.

Just Now.
"Judging from the most recent reports, I should say it was a potato cellar."

Never Seen Together.
"Is Jack Giltshire still going with that dashing Miss Fechner?"
"Why no. Haven't you heard the news?"
"Tell me."
"They are married now."

The Usual Thing.
"What is it a sign of?" asked the incontinent maid "when a young man begins to tell a girl his number?"
"It's a sign," answered the wise widow, "that he will soon ask her to share them."

Strong Attraction.
"Daubson says that the last time one of his pictures was exhibited a crowd gathered in front of it."
"That's true. An old woman who was employed in the hall had a fit on the floor right under Daubson's masterpiece."

Seems So.
"What is the word that is not in the bright lexicon of youth?" asked the forgetful man.
"Work," answered the wealthy father of a large export.
