Save Food

America must send to the armies and the allies this year 50 per cent more food than last year; three times the normal exports.

America must be ready when the war ends to rush supplies for 18,000,000 people victims of Germany and the war, who are facing starvation unless help comes quickly.

America must build up reserves to carry us over the harvest period and to protect against the lean year that may come.

The food conservation program is first military, that the movement of commodities be as ordered, that nothing be put forth until full strength on the battle line and making victory sure.

It is the most compelling because of the waste of four years of war. We could not be dealt to the entreaty of those who would save it in part economic. We must meet the demand if we wish to build up American trade and strengthen our resources in the economic struggle after the war.

It savors finally of the soul of democracy. If we truly believe in the brotherhood of all mankind we can not choose but share our abundance with all in adversity.

The conservation program reduces to this: Every ounce of food of every sort we manage to save will set free its proportion of essential food for the relief of those whose needs are greater than ours.

The success of this program rests not alone on the honor and co-operation but also upon the intelligence of the American people. Its success will be the highest proof of the faith and works of democracy in America.

PRESCOTT DISCUSSES A TRIBUTE TO AMERICA NEW FOOD PROGRAM

CONSUMPTION MUST BE CUT DOWN TO INCREASE OUR EXPORTS FIFTY PER CENT.

"Every Type of Waste Must Be Eliminated to Fulfill America's Pledge" Says Prescott.

Lansing, Nov. 6.—A steady pressure in all directions; saving food, along the lines. This, in brief, is the food conservation program of the second year of this country's participation in the war.

"The most careful and thrifty conservation, the elimination of every type of waste are the principles which the Food Administration is asking to be observed," declared Gen. A. Prescott, Food Administrator for Michigan.

A year ago the American people were asked to reduce all unnecessary consumption and waste. The Food Administration preached the gospel of the clean plate. That is the gospel we want to get into every household this year; and a better total effect than any plan of substitutions to fill a specific program.

General Program.

"Mr. Hoover believes the American housewife has got to the point of education on food questions that will help her to use her own judgment and get along with as little as she has to. He believes she will show more pride and more national service in it if she is given a general job than if everything were laid out to her step by step.

LET THE YOUNG TURKEYS GROW

Bug and Seed Hunting Season is Most Beneficial to Birds.

Although Thanksgiving is several weeks off, the Michigan Division of the Food Administration urges that turkey raising be developed and grow fat. The turkey is still a wild bird. It is pointed out that all the efforts of the farmer and breeder have failed to domesticate this wanderer into a barnyard dependent that puts on fat at the normal job than a chicken will put feed into fat at almost any age and at any time the crop is kept filled with the right kind of feed.

The young turkey, however, is a long-legged, bug hunter until the winter batch of feathers is put on and Nature suggests that it is time to store up a reserve for rigorous weather. Turkeys will put on weight rapidly and economically at that season and raisers should take advantage of it.

This, too, is the season when feds provide plenty of feed that would otherwise go to waste and, in the case of wood seeds, would do damage to future crops.

Now when we have need for every ounce of food that can be put into form for human consumption, whether ground by mills or grinders, it is the soundest economy to let the young turkeys live until the fall bug-and-seed-hunting season.

A young gobbler that weighs ten pounds in October will weigh twelve or thirteen sixty days later if given a little extra feed along toward the end of that period. A loss in the summer time will fill out from seven pounds to nine or ten. Such satisfactory gains can be made at the other time in the bird's life. It is the season when Nature is preparing for winter the turkey's fat and muscle depend on the farmer's grain bins.

The Food Administration suggests that in order to take advantage of this favorable season for putting on grains that no young turkey hen weighing less than six weeks old should be marketed. Young gobblers should be of sufficient size to dress at least eight pounds before the cold. Let the turkeys develop and grow fat.

CONSERVATION IS IMPERATIVE

For the Allies the danger of privation is passing; the need of rigid economy is still present.

For the people of the United States, the need of voluntary sacrifice, of willing devotion is as great as ever.

That same spirit by which Europe was saved from its grayest peril during the season of food shortage is still required of us. If easier measures now, by sternness or measures if we can come again, proving our endurance as we have proved our energy, the American people are to keep the trust committed to them.

Our Duty to the Allies

UNTIL the war ends the food program is a part of the military program. It is the most important part of it. It is the most important part of it.

No Mystery in Meat

Some things are so simple that they have to be explained again and again. When things are obvious, people keep looking for mysteries behind them.

So it is with the packing business. The mere size of Swift & Company confuses many. Because their imaginations are not geared up to scale, they believe there must be magic in it somewhere—some weird power.

Swift & Company is just like any other manufacturing business run by human beings like yourself; it takes in raw material on the one hand and turns out a finished product on the other.

Swift & Company keeps down the "spread," or the expense absorbed between raw and finished material, to as low a figure as possible. (If it didn't it would be put out of business by others who do.)

How much Swift & Company pays for the raw material, and how much it gets for the finished product, depends upon conditions which Swift & Company does not control.

It depends entirely upon how much people want the finished product, and how much raw material there is available to make it from.

The profits of Swift & Company amount to less than one cent per pound on all meats and by-products—less than one-fourth of a cent on beef.
