MICHIGAN STATE FAIR

Announcement has been made by G. W. Dickinson, secretary-manager of the Michigan State Fair, that August 29th to September 7th inclusive have been selected as the dates for the 1919 exposition.

At a recent meeting of the board of directors, Mr. Dickinson was unanimously re-elected as head of the Fair for the seventh consecutive year. Plans to increase the premiums are also adopted.

Indications point toward the coming exposition as being the greatest in the history of the Michigan State Fair. The 1918 Fair leaped into the lead of state fairs throughout the country with the largest single day's attendance, the largest gross attendance of any ten days exhibition and an outstanding payment of premiums.

During the past two years the state of Michigan has assumed a leadership among the states of the Union in agricultural, industrial and livestock activities. As the state has progressed, the State Fair has increased its exhibits and attractions in both number and quality, until it is now recognized, not as one of the five leading fairs of the country, but as the leader.

"There seems to be no limit to what the State Fair can do this year," Mr. Dickinson said today. "While we have one of the great exhibition grounds of the country, indications at present point towards their being too limited. The exhibitors are flooding us with requests for space. Never before in our history has there been such a demand.

"Of course, this is partially occasioned by the fact that the people throughout the country are awakened to the advantages of fairs. They see they can benefit from their neighbor's experience. Then, our premiums are such that the producers of the state cannot afford to keep out of the competition. Last year, we paid nearly $75,000 in prizes, and this year the premium list will not only show more prizes, but also larger individual amounts."
