CHAPTER XIX—Continued.

"The children all seemed strange to Carolyn May. But people move so quickly in Harton that this was not so queer. She hoped to see Edna or another little girl with whom she had been to school. But she could not find the very little girl of old-time boy-hall fame.

"Oh, Carolyn May! Is that the girl who has been looking through the window of the academy? He is the brother's son."

"Oh, Johnny! I'd just glad to see you. I've been thinking of you so much. You're more handsome than ever. How come you're in the army and navy?"

"I've been in the army and navy for a long time. I've been in the army and navy for a long time. I've been in the army and navy for a long time."

The Experiences of This Newspaper Man Like Mike Turner in a Novel—Lost for Eight Months in the Desert—At the Mercy of Semi-Savage Tribes, Man and Wife Escape at Last to Return in Safety and Health.

His Story Told to Beacon Reporter at Quarantine.

Carolyn May read no further. It did not particularly interest the little girl. Besides, she was very tired and tired to think of her own supper. Had she read on, however, even her simple mind might have been startled by the following paragraphs printed below the heading of this startling story:

Their wonderful good fortune in escaping from the disaster that overtook the party to which they traveled and which was caught between the hands of a French battleship and two of a Turkish squadron can only be equaled by the chance which followed. Naturally, the next morning, Mr. Turner prepared to tell the details of the adventure in the columns of the Beacon at a later date.

The boat in which they left the sinking ship was overturned in the night and from that of the other refugees the boat was carried by the current far to the south. In fact, they were enveloped by fog until they landed upon a stretch of deserted beach.

There was no town near, nor even an encampment of Arabs. But soon after their disembarkation and before the door in command could take means to communicate with any civilized or semi-civilized place a party of mounted and armed tribesmen swooped down on the castaways.

Caught Her Up in His Strong Arms and Hugged Her.

of something that none of them expected. A strange force entered in the room which was supposed to be empty.

"Whatever is that?" gasped the little girl.

"It's Prince! It's her dog!" shouted Uncle Joe.

"The child is here!" cried Amanda Parlow, and she was the first to enter the apartment.

Prince bounded wildly to meet her. He leaped and barked. A cry sounded from a room beyond. Miss Amanda and Uncle Joe rushed in.

Sleepily, her face flushed, rubbing her blue eyes wide open, Carolyn May sat up in bed.

"Oh, my dear! My dear! Oh, Miss Amanda!" she said. "It is just as if I were my own papa and mamma had come home and found me here."

"My dear! My dear!" sobbed Amanda Parlow, dropping to her knees beside the bed.

"You're a great big one!" cried the little girl, throwing her arms around the woman's neck. "You're a great big one!"

MADE OCCASION FOR FESTIVAL

Travelers in Northern Russia Fittingly Celebrate the Crossing of the Arctic Circle.

On the trails running northward across northern Russia, the crossing of the Arctic Circle is made the occasion for a festival similar to that which tourists tend to enjoy on shipboard when crossing the equator. The trail makes a stop of several hours in the midst of a snow-covered plain on the shores of the White sea. The people gets stretched their faces and take a substantial rest over the ice and snow.

The exact spot where the railroad crosses the Arctic is probably not determined with scientific accuracy, but the men who built the railroad apparently agreed on an approximate location, and this is marked with a suitable inscription. At this point also the railroad has been left a quarter of an inch between the rails so
