OAKLAND CO. FARM BUREAU NEWS

The few remaining details preliminary to the start of the membership drive of the Oakland County Farm Bureau on Oct. 15 were expected to be satisfactorily adjusted by Saturday when the executive board of the bureau was scheduled to hold its October monthly meeting in Pontiac.

Since the special meeting of the board two weeks ago much has been done by R. A. Holden of Milford campaign director, C. H. Cook county agent, and Charles A. Bingham, County Farm Bureau president, in preparing for the campaign which is expected to put the Oakland County bureau in a position where it can act efficiently and intelligently to promote the farmers' interests.

Approval of the organization has reached the bureau headquarters in Pontiac from every section of the county. The farmers are recognizing that their business is to survive the economic ebbs that are troubling the nation, they must have an agency such as the Farm Bureau, to guard and promote their interests on a broad scale.

But you can't get anything for nothing. And nobody realizes the truth of that adage better than the farmer. He knows especially around harvest time when he wants a hand or two. So its self-evident if the farm bureau is to accomplish its program, that it must have money and moral support of members.

The bureau's activities in the past have been limited. It has neither money nor many members. But in its reorganized form, with the majority of the 200,000 farmers in the state as members, it will be strong enough in every way to do much to improve marketing and transportation conditions for the farmers.

Get in closer understanding with the consumer and teach the general public the idea that the farmers of the country are rolling in wealth is not so.

Promote better rural educational methods and keep the farmers acquainted with everything pertinent to their welfare.

Deal with measures and policies rather than men in politics, insisting on a fair and just hearing of all matters relative to agriculture—in brief, a square deal for the farmer.

Assist the farmer in making it possible to pay a wage that will enable him to get competent help and still retain a reasonable profit.

The whole program is based on the idea that the farmer has a right to cost of land, cost of up-keep, cost of labor and other expenses and that not a pound of produce should leave any American farm which does not bring the cost of production and a reasonable profit.

When a Child Has Croup

Thousands of mothers say Foley Honey and Tar Compound is the best remedy for croup, coughs and colds. It cuts the thick, choking mucus, clears away the phlegm, opens air passages and eases hoarseness. The rasping, strangling fight for breath gives way to deep breathing and peaceful sleep. Sold everywhere.
